10 Sikeston Girls Attend Girls State

The American Legion Auxiliary will sponsor its 25th session of Missouri Girls State on the campus of Stephens College, Columbia, June 19 through 25.

Girls State is a practical application of Americanism and good citizenship where girls learn by doing. The entire program is non-partisan, non-political attempt to teach and inculcate in the youth of Missouri a love and respect for God and Country.

Following registration, the first assembly will begin at 1:30 p.m.Sunday. The girls will be welcomed and told of the purpose and objectives of Missouri Girls State. At 6 p.m. Sunday evening the girls will be served their first meal at Stephens College. Following dinner, Girls State staff members will be introduced and will explain their programs and how they will assist the girls.

After assembly Sunday evening, "Government is Action" will start for the girls as they

615 to Attend Girls' State At Columbia Next Week

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- Faculty and staff members of the University of Missouri School of Journalism will participate in the 25th "Sterling Silver" session of Missouri Girls' State, June 19-25. The girls will take a tour on June 23 of the School of Journalism, where they will be greeted and addressed by Milton E. Gross, assistant dean and professor of journalism and faculty members of the several departments.

Girls' State is being held on the campus of Stephens College, Columbia. It is sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, Department of Missouri.

The week of "experience in democracy" for approximately 615 selected girls, who will be seniors this fall in Missouri high schools, involves the setting up of replicas of local, county and state governments including campaigns and elections.

M. Maude Freeland, University extension editor in journalism, is in charge of Girls' State journalism classes, which emphasize the relationship be-

20 Area Youths Attend Boys' State

Twenty area boys left today for Warrensburg to attend Missouri Boys' State, which will be held June 18-25 at Central Missouri State College.

Boys' State, sponsored by the American Legion, is a state political structure in miniature, from city through county and state levels. All citizens may vote and are eligible to hold the office. The program aims to provide practical training in government by enabling boys to participate in the various agencies of the state.

Educational, legal, professional, civic and business leaders staff all counseling departments of Boys' State.

The 960 high school seniors participating will be divided into two political parties for the elections.

Climax of the week-long session will be selection of two delegates to represent Missouri at Boys' Nation in Washington.

Area boys -- nonresidents of Sikeston -- attending are:

DEXTER -- David R. Cowan, John M. Agey and Larry S. Demaree.

CHARLESTON -- Bradley A. Fenton, Jon P. Carson, John L. Hequembourg and Charles I. Lutz.

EAST PRAIRIE -- Billie R. Cooper, Terry J. Hopgood, James S. Hodge, Kenton J. Hunter and Richard Reed Jr.

CHAFFEE -- James M.Stubbs Jr., Kenneth J. Richbourg, Loman Kent Duniphan, William C. Talley and Randy L. Scheeter.

Cracked Picture Frame Shows Every Day Is Father's Day in Home of Marine

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

EL MONTE, Calif. (AP) — A framed photo of a marine in Viet Nam will be the center of Father's Day attention at the Frederick Wayne Wilson home Sunday — but there's nothing unusual about that.

Every day is Father's Day with the Wilson family: wife Gloria, 21, 2-year-old Tammy and 10-month-old Fred Jr.

The photo symbolizes one family's solution to a problem faced by many young couples: how to keep the memory of daddy strong for the children while he's fighting a war?

The glass covering the photo of Sgt. Wilson, a reconnaissance patrol leader in Chu Lai, is cracked from what his wife calls "too much loving." She has no intention of replacing it.

"When Fred left," Mrs. Wilson said in an interview with Sheila Grattan of the Alhambra Post-Advocate, "we made plans to keep the presence of father as strong as possible in our home. We feel children need to be aware of their father . . . not forget his importance."

They had seen newsreels of soldier homecomings where the father was a stranger to the children. And they knew military wives who found it easier to ignore the existence of the father during long separations.

Little Tammy kisses the picture of her daddy morning and night. Another visual symbol is a Marine doll in full-dress blues.

"That's my daddy," Tammy shouts as she points it out to visitors.

Tammy also helps wrap cookies and candies, which are sent to her father regularly.

And there are letters. Wilson writes an average of five a week.

"I sit Tammy down and read to her all the parts she can understand," Mrs. Wilson says. She reads and rereads his letters and she writes him nightly — discussing Tammy and little Fred's development, discipline problems, "the cute things the children do."

Double Accident Sends Four To Second Hospital

A double accident Friday at 3:20 p.m., two miles north of Fredericktown on highway 67 when a 1963 Chevrolet, driven by Viola McKinney, 63, Whittier, Calif., attempted to pass another car, when both hit on the shoulder, after she lost control.

He husband, George McKinney, 65, received a bad head injury and was taken to the Fredericktown hospital, and later transferred to a St. Louis hospital. While enroute, the ambulance met in another accident at the junction of highway 67 and 110 near DeSoto.

A car driven by Judith Boyer, 18, Cadette, attempted to pull off the highway when the ambulance approached, causing her to skid in front of the ambulance, driven by John Simpson, 57, Fredericktown.

Injured in the second accident were, Miss Boyer, with a fractured pelvis; Helen Resinger, 41, Farmington, with a back injury, and John Bust, 18, Potosi, a passenger in the Boyer car, who received cuts and bruises.

All were taken to the Jefferson County Memorial Hospital, Crystal City.

In a accident Friday at 12;55 p.m. on I-55, a 1966 International tractor and trailer, driven by William Ray, 32, Shreveport, La., lost control and overturned, 15 miles south of Sikeston.

He was taken to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital, with injuries to his forehead and thumb.

Good Wheat Prospects In The Sikeston Area, But Acreage Is Cut

MIKE BURCH, son of Robert Burch, living south of Matthews, brings in a load of wheat to the W. A. Gemeinhardt Seed and Grain Co., Matthews, with a low moisture content of 14.7 per cent. The 40 acres are expected to average in the high 40s.

A BROWN SPUR farmer finishes a 36-acre field for an average of around 45 bushels per acre. Markus Koch, route three, is shown at right, Friday, their first day of combining. The fields received heavy water damage, causing a high moisture content, and a number of water spots in the field that drowned out a portion of the crop. His son Tim, at left, and brother John, handle the combine.

Wheat combining in the Sikeston area is in full swing, with the first reports of harvesting in Scott county starting on June 15.

From New Madrid south, combining started on Monday and brought favorable reports. The region north and west of Sikeston will start harvesting a few days later, and the wheat averages are reported good.

A survey in the west and southwest section, showed wheat averaging from 35 bushels per acre up to 55 bushels.

The increase in yields, in all cases, include a number of spots drowned out due to the heavy spring rains. If small acreages were taken, many cases would send the yield up to 60 bushels per acre.

Drop in wheat acreage planting had one bright spot for the grower, in that the price is now $1.70 per bushel, or 40 cents more than last year.

All wheat buyers will tell you that they expect smaller storage capacities this year, as the acreage in this area has been reduced greatly over previous years.

Combining over the Bootheel will last another ten days to two weeks, the time needed to bring the moisture content to the level desired and the area periods which mature at a later date, compared to the lower bootheel, which had a head start.

The wheat buyers show a moisture content in the first week which ranges from 14.2 to a high of 16 per cent, with the weight acreage around 59 pounds per bushel.

Any number of farmers are plowing their wheat ground and will plant the acreage in soybeans, which should boost the soybean acreage in the bootheel considerably.

Others will put their land to grade before putting in the soybean crop, if there is still enough time for the growing season.

A few of the area farmers were visited, while others who reported to the wheat buyers, had a varying range of production.

Robert Green, Matthews, had a high of 56 bushels on a number of acres, with an overall average of 45-48 on his total of 120 acres.

A. J. Croom, route three, who lives east of Canalou, had a low moisture content but early heavy water damage, that brought his yields in the upper 30s.

Dale Geske, Canalou, will have a yield in the upper 40s on a total of 68 acres, with a moisture content of 14.7 per cent. When finished with combining, he will plant the acreage in soybeans.

Whitworth Named Vice-President

L. O. Whitworth, Jr., P. E., of Sikeston has been elected Vice-President of the Missori Society of Professional Engineers. Mr. Whitworth and other new officers were recently installed at the Society's Annual Meeting in St. Joseph, Missouri.

Mr. Whitworth is a partner in the firm of Buchmueller, Whitworth and Associates of Sikeston. Mr. Whitworth was graduated from Wahington University with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Civil Engineering.

Mr. Whitworth is the outgoing Secretary of the Missouri Society of Professional Engineers and is also President of the Southeast Chapter of the Missouri Society of Professional engineers organized for the purpose of advancing the profession of engineering through professional improvement of its members and the promotion of high standards of ethical practice.

Other officers installed with Mr. Whitworth were President M. E. Monsees, P. E., Kansas City; President-Elect Gerald V. Williamson, P. E., St. Louis; Secretary David H. Lillard, P. E., Kansas City; Treasurer H. W. Kroeger, P. E., St. Louis; and Directors-at-Large N. A. Schemmer, EIT, Independence, and C. W. Yager, EIT, Centralia.

Teachers Spend Time In Touring Sikeston

A Missouriana Tour, consisting of 33 teachers, and two leaders, arrived in Sikeston Friday for an overnight stay, to visit the Potlatch Forests, Inc., and the Sikeston public schools.

Sponsored by the Central State College, Warrensburg, and the Missouri Chamber of Commerce, Jack Pearson, the director of publications, Jefferson City, and Dr. Agnes Horton, professor of history, Warrensburg State College, are in charge.

It was the 14th annual tour, and lasts for two weeks, traveling a total of almost 1,100 miles, and making at least 12 city stopovers.

The college course consists of the two weeks tour, and one week of class work to orient the teachers with economic conditions and basic industrial institutions.

The Womens Division of the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce were hosts to the group, and treated the visitors to a barbequed ribs and beef dinner last night at the Security National Bank community room. Mrs. Jolene Walker, president of the local group, gave the address of welcome, and told of the highlights of Sikeston.

Mr. Pearson described the tour over the two weeks and praised leaders in Sikeston for their fine hospitality over the six previous tours to this city, and led to this visit.

The tour started with a visit to the Hallmark Cards and Southwestern Bell Telephone

SUMMER SAFETY

Summer begins June 21 and brings with it special hazards. The pleasures of water sports will be enjoyed by many millions of people, and they will carry with them special dangers.

Swimming is still the chief problem and basic rules of safety should be observed always -- never swim alone, after eating or when overly tired; don't overestimate your ability and swim at protected pools or beaches, preferably under the supervision of someone trained in live-saving techniques; never dive into unknown waters and if a boat overturns, stay with it and don't try to swim a long distance to shore.

But now water safety is more complex. Proper management of the home swimming pool is a matter of concern to many thousands of families. Skin diving, water skiing and surf-boarding are specialized sports requiring particular care and knowledge.

This summer a greater variety of water sports are available than ever before -- let's make them safer too.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CENTENNIAL

The Christian Science Church held its annual meeting in Boston on Monday (June 6).

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE traces its centennial to an event in the life of its founder, Mary Baker Eddy. The almost instant healing of a severe injury in 1866 was, in Mrs. Eddy's own words, "the falling apple that led me to the discovery."

The discovery is not simply defined. Mrs. Eddy has written: "I knew the principle of all harmonious Mind-action to be God, and that cures were produced in primitive Christian healing by holy, uplifting faith; but I must know the Science of this healing, and I won my way to absolute conclusions through divine revelation, reason, and demonstration."

Mrs. Eddy did not at first expect to found a distinct church or denomination. She hoped that what she called her discovery would be accepted soon by existing churches. However, in a short time a distinct church became necessary to facilitate cooperation among Christian Scientists, to present Christian Science to other people, and to maintain the purity of teaching and practice. Mrs. Eddy with her followers founded the Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston in 1879.

BEFORE LONG, a central or Mother Church became necessary. So in 1892 the Christian Science Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, was founded in Boston. There are now more than 3,300 branches in more than 50 countries, all looking to the Mother Church as their center.

The heavy concentration of branches of course remains in the United States. Christian Science has large followings also in Britain and Germany. Today the church has a healing ministry carried on by more than 7,000 full-time public Christian Scientist practitioners in more than 40 countries.

The church maintains an extensive network of public reading rooms, supported by local branches, around the world, also a Board of Lectureship that provides for more than 4,500 talks a year. Incidentally, Erwin D. Canham, editor in chief of the Christian Science Monitor, is engaged in a year-long, world-wide series of lectures on "The Spiritual Revolution" which began in Sydney, Australia, on March 1.

IN ADDITION to the Monitor, which is generally ranked as among the best newspapers in this country by newspapermen regardless of faith--and which does not "push" Christian Science--the church provides a radio series that is broadcast by some 950 stations in several countries. It supports an armed services ministry that includes 447 lay workers as well as commissioned chaplains. Student organizations function in more than 400 colleges and universities.

The theology of Christian Science begins with the propositions that God is the only might or Mind, that He is "the divine Principle of all that really is." To define God further, Christian Science employs frequently the the word Good, besides such terms as Life, Truth, Love, Soul, Spirit, and Infinite Person.

The religion places a high emphasis on reason as well as spirit. Healing is an integral but not an over-reaching part of the faith. On the contrary, Scientists regard their religion as applicable to every human need.

By its very nature, Christian Science is optimistic and forward-looking. It is accused by some of putting a gloss on nature. But as it observes its rather arbitrary centennial, it is very much alive and kicking.

POEM FOR FATHER'S DAY

By Grace V. Watkins

My Father's hands were weather-brown.
Sometimes I saw them reaching down
To help a little child whose feet
Had stumbled on a rugged street.
Sometimes I saw them reaching out
To wrap a woolen cloak about
A traveler chilled with winter rain
Across a midnight - darkened plain.
And often in a twilight hour
I saw them clasped in humble prayer.
Oh, that my hands may ever be
As dedicated, Lord, to Thee!

LIKE DREAMS

Eugene F. Rinta, Director of Research of the Council of State Chambers of Commerce, has made an analysis of the proposed federal budget. And some of his findings point to dangers that are of the most direct interest to us all.

Appropriation requests come to a little under $100 billion. But when the new spending authority asked is added in, the figure becomes $112.4 billion.

The interest cost alone on the cumulative deficit of $36.3 billion for the six consecutive deficit years of 1961 through 1966 is $1.3 billion a year. And unless Congress substantially reduces this new spending authority, further deficits beyond 1966 are assured.

It would not be surprising if the final expenditure total for 1966 is ever greater than the budget estimate. For one thing, estimates of receipts could prove overly-optimistic, based as they are on the assumption that unbroken economic expansion will continue.

The implications in all this are of the utmost seriousness. At the top of the list is the possibility of more inflation -- of further degradation of our 48-cent dollar. If that happens, the dramatic goals that are now contemplated will fade like dreams.

MULTIBILLION DOLLAR DEEDS

Four southern investor-owned electric companies recently announced plans for joint development of a huge electric power pool. This has brought strong editorial praise from leading newspapers in the area. A typical comment was made by the Charleston, South Carolina, News and Courier when it said: "The financial strength of the four companies enables them to chart a program costing $4.4 billion by 1981. This capital comes from private investments. It will not take a penny from the taxpayers. Indeed it will create additional property on which taxes will be paid."

This joint company action is typical of what is going on throughout the country. Taking advantage of dramatic technological advances, such as extra-high-voltage transmission lines, groups of utilities are carrying pooling and interconnection arrangements forward at a spectacularly swift pace. Huge regions are thus assured of the ultimate in power service at minimum rates. It is certain that any conceivable demand, by any category of consumer, will be met. Every form of energy--oil, coal, water, the atom -- is involved.

The investor-owned utilities are proving, with multibillion dollar deeds financed by private earnings and savings, that there is not the slightest justification for socialized government power developments in the United States.

SWEET DREAM OF REVENGE

Do you too, ever wonder---

. If the fiends who fancy-wrap everything we buy can't open the packages either?

. If the guys who write and put up highway directional signs ever drive a car?

. Why all these folksy commercials on ugly pimples, bad breath, body odors, the drip, drip, drip of stomach acid and the woes of constipation have to come at mealtime?

. If the double-talkers who write the "simple" directions for assembling things that come disassembled are just showing off or deliberately trying to make us feel stupid?

Do you, too, ever wish that these characters----

. Had to open packages all day long without using a knife, scissors, crowbar, chisel, saw, TNT or unprintable language?

. Or try to interpret their own traffic signs at night or in rush-hour traffic?

. Or try to enjoy dinner with that stomach acid splash, splash splashing all over the place?

. Or try to put together something that "a five-year-old boy can assemble without tools?" (Your problem is that they forget to send along the kid.)

Just let those sadists try to do all that, and see what happens -- we hope.

HANMUM IS HASSLE IN ANYBODY'S BOOK

A Chinese newspaper can't be read without knowing at least 1,000 picture words (or Hanmum, Chinese ideographs), the Catholic Digest finds.

Imagine yourself memorizing the design on an Oriental rug, and you have an idea of how the heart sinks at the prospect of memorizing intricate Chinese characters. Some of them have as many as 40 strokes. And 1,000 characters is only a novice's level. University professors should know at least 20,000.

Confucian respect for elders dominates - and complicates -- the language. Every verb has a different form to show the degree of respect the speaker wishes to pay to the person addressed. NO GREATER DUTY

Numbers of members of Congress, confronted with a $100 billion budget, are worrying about where the money is to come from. They also could profitably worry about what the money will be worth.

There is more and more talk about possible new waves of inflation. If this happens, the lower income families, who are supposed to be helped by new and expanded federal programs, will be hardest hit.

The government can have no greater duty than to protect what is left of the dollar's value. All programs, all appropriations, should be considered with that end always in view.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- President Johnson's favorite method of proving that the people support his policies is to triumphantly pull public opinion polls out of his pocket.

To senate committee chairmen who were summoned to the White House the other day to discuss legislation, however, he confessed that the polls showed a falling off of support for him on Viet Nam.

This did not mean, he said, that the doves were overtaking the hawks. Hauling a huge fistful of polls out of his pocket, he recited figures that showed the people did not want to pull out of Viet Nam, but to press the war more vigorously.

The Wyoming poll, for example, claimed that 85 per cent of those questioned felt the President wasn't doing enough to win the war.

This roused Senate Foreign Relations Chairman William Fulbright, D-Ark., the senate's leading dove.

Pointing an accusing finger at Sen. Russell Long, D-La., an outspoken hawk, Fulbright blurted: "See, it's your damn hawks who are giving the President hell. It isn't me".

BEAUTY PARLOR WRATH

The Senate Beauty Shop is a place where senators' wives are waited on by young beauty operators addicted to movie magazines, teasing, and wiggy, go-go hairdos.

Their problem is to make the middle - aged senator's wife look as she sees herself 30 years ago, and since congressional beauty shops charge half the going rate of downtown shops, they are always filled with hopefuls.

One such was Sen. McClellan's wife.

Mrs. McClellan had patiently directed the placing and winding of each front curl, much to the annoyance of the operator. Finally, in order to finish the back without advice, the operator swung the chair around, away from a view of the mirror.

Mrs. McClellan exploded. In a fury she tore out each meticulously placed curler.

Another operator finished the job.

PUBLICITY PAYS PUBLIC

When congressmen operate in the full spotlight of the press they frequently operate differently than when behind closed doors. This was demonstrated when Rep. Wright Patman, the crusading, crusty congressman from Texarkana, Tex., prevented a probe of large banking instutitions from being scuttled last week. Had 17 members of the Banking and Currency Committee been able to force a vote behind closed doors, the probe would have been killed.

However, with the help of Reps. Charles Weltner, the Georgia Liberal, and Henry Gonzalez of San Antonio, first Mexican - American elected from Texas, Chairman Patman finally "persuaded" the 17-- a majority of the 32-member committee - to back down.

It took a long battle, which began when Rep. Lud Ashley of Toledo, champion of the Cleveland Trust Company, saw newsmen in the hearing room. He shouted at Patman:

"Mr. Chairman, a point of order: Shouldn't this be an executive, rather than an open session?"

Ashley was supported by Rep. William B. Widnall, R-N. J., ranking member of the committee's 11 Republicans, and several Democrats, including William Moorhead, D-Pa., who votes liberal on most things except the banks. His father once represented the Frick coal interests of Pittsburgh and Helen Frick sent him a contribution of $1,000 when he first ran for congress.

"I don't know of any rule requiring a closed session," replied Patman. "The public has a right to know what we do here. I want the press to attend. We've got nothing to hide in this banking investigation."

Patman cited House Res. 133, authorizing the committee and its subcommittees to conduct studies, issue subpoenas and hold hearings -- in the open.

"I am happy to have the public spotlight on this probe of banking institutions," he declared. "Some of the big ones are being run by dummy groups, or nominees, which hide the identity of the controlling stockholders."

This referred to Ashley's friends, the Cleveland Trust, which is controlled by a dummy partnership, the A.A. Welsh Co. Ashley, unabashed, countered with a motion which would have crippled the committee's right to subpoena bank executives, but insisted that the vote on his motion be taken behind closed doors, obviously to hide the identity of those supporting it.

PERSISTENT BANK CHAMPION

After he had filibustered at some length, the Ohio Democrat was told by the impatient Patman: "You've got your choice -- to talk or to vote here in the open."

"It's twelve o'clock," Ashley replied, pointing to the clock on the wall. "The house is in session. If this committee continues this meeting, it is out of order."

"You are right," agreed Patman. "However, the committee will continue after the house adjourns this afternoon. I intend to meet until we settle this matter of our subpoena power IN THE OPEN."

Patman's perseverance paid off. When he finally got the committee back into an open session at 5:15 P.M., Ashley, Moorehead, Widnall and their supporters were ready to toss in the sponge rather than operate in a glare of publicity. Ashley withdrew his motion to cripple the probe. Another motion by Weltner, approving subpoenas, was adopted.

The 17 congressmen who favored a secret vote were six Democrats -- Ashley, Moorhead, Robert Stephens, Ga., Tom Gettys, S. C., Richard Ottinger, N. Y., and John Hansen, Iowa, together with 11 Republicans -- Widnall, Paul Fino, and Seymour Halpern of N. Y., Florence Dwyer, N. J., James Harvey, Mich., Bill Brock, Tenn., Burt Talcott and Del Clawson, Calif., Albert W. Johnson, Pa., J. William Stanton, Ohio, and Chester Mize, Kans.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Dubinsky Sears Anti-Humphrey Liberals; Gives H. H. H. Powerful Backing in Bob Kennedy's Home State.

New York: -- Typically, it was an intimate party. Just 1,200 friends dropped into the hotel to eat some food, drink some whiskey, cry a little and cheer a lot as "little Dave" Dubinsky said farewell to those in the ladies' garment union who had been close to him.

But that night farewell was prelude. History was tailored as skillfully as any $400 cloak or suit.

For on the dais with "D. D." and his soft - voiced successor, Louis Stullberg, was the big union's only honorary member -- Hubert Humphrey, otherwise known as vice president of the U. S.

Somewhere amidst the tears and cheers, Dubinsky turned to Mr. Humphrey and told him, "We are with you all the way."

And somewhere in the audience someone shouted loudly, "On to the White House."

The cry was lost amidst the roar which followed D. D.'s words. Dubinsky, whom Lyndon Johnson has called his "teacher", is given to many words, but everyone is meaningful. He is the master of pins and needles.

And skillfully he cut the pattern the other night, pinning a little here and needling a little there.

What he said about Hubert Humphrey was an expression of confidence. It will be taken by many -- and was -- as an expression of preference.

This is, after all, the home state of Senator Robert Kennedy. The historicity of recent politics, the razor - edged rivalry inside the liberal movements of the land, the sotto - voce reports of the differences between Lyndon Johnson and Bob Kennedy -- all are evidence of a Capulet and Montague division which has befallen the liberal wing of the Democratic party.

And now Dubinsky, quite gillingly, was playing Juliet to Humphrey's Romeo.

There can be no doubt that Dave Dubinsky is a powerful figure in the history of president making, and his role on the stage of the Hotel Astor's grand ballroom that night was as significant as any he has played since Franklin Roosevelt was elected.

Head on, he smashed into the liberals who were impugning Hubert Humphrey's motives.

"He has the guts to fight for principles," shouted D. D. "He fought for liberal causes when they were not popular. He fights for them now."

Later D. D. told a friend, "Humphrey is fighting for what he thinks is right on the Viet Nam issue. I'm convinced he believes it. I'm certain he's certain of the issues and fights through conviction and not just because he is vice president under Lyndon Johnson."

At the microphone, Dubinsky roared at the liberal critics of the man from Minnesota.

"Where were the professors when Stalin killed the Jewish writers, Erlich and Alter?" asked D. D. "I never saw them picket any Russian embassies.

"Where were they when Stalin killed the Jewish doctors? Where were they when the Russians approved pogroms? Where were they when Khrushchev persecuted the Jews?

"Now we know where the so-called liberals are. They are picketing because we are not dancing to the Soviet tunes.

"Well, peace does not mean surrender. We do not need another Munich."

Every word was significant -- as was the occasion. Dubinsky has just returned from Europe and the Near East. He had been abroad last month when he had accepted in absentia an award from the Americans for Democratic Action (ADA).

His statement to that convention, where many had tried to pillory Hubert, read by Gus Tyler, the garment union's assistant president, said in part: "It took courage for him as the Senator from Minnesota to accept the chairmanship of ADA. It takes courage for him now to continue his battle as champion of liberalism on both the domestic and international front.

". . . In accepting the honor bestowed upon me tonight, I am pleased to do so not as an outsider, but as one who identifies himself with ADA, and with one of its most celebrated founders, Hubert Humphrey, and with the ideal of free men in a free world."

Thus then and the other night D. D. embraced H. H. H. And Dubinsky is no mere rhetorical liberal. He is an actionist.

He and the hatters' Alex Rose built the New York Liberal Party. It gave the late John Kennedy the balance of power in the balance - of - power state in '60.

Its voice is heard and respected, even feared, in powerful Democratic circles. It is one of the strongest blocs of unseen votes at Democratic conventions. And on the night of the farewell party, D. D. said H. H. is his friend "all the way."

And Dubinsky plans to be around for a long time--especially now on the political scene.

The other night's performance was the curtain raiser for just Act One.

An Editor's Outlook

END NEIGHBORHOOD SCHOOLS?

LAST month, U.S. Commissioner of Education Harold Howe II made a little-noticed speech to the City Club of Chicago which deserves a lot of attention.

For this powerful federal official, with billions of dollars at his command, is apparently dedicated to the destruction of the neighborhood schools and bussing of children long distances from their homes.

Said Commissioner Howe, as quoted, on page A 2946 of the May 31 Congressional Record: "Traditional school district boundaries often serve education badly and may have to be changed . . . .We could, for example, alter political boundaries to bring the social, economic, and intellectual strengths of the suburbs to bear on the problems of the city schools.

Building programs for the future could be planned so that new schools break up, rather than continue, segregation of both the racial and economic sort. The Office of Education will provide Federal planning funds for such efforts right now . . . .and if I have my way the Office will provide construction funds before long.

"We have recently been considering financial support for a comprehensive study of a system of educational parks to be established within the inner city. We visualize each of these centralized school complexes as educational centers that would provide classes ranging from prekindergarten through junior college.

"And we are particularly interested in finding one or two great American cities that are adventurous enough to join us in planning the educational park of the future. These entities will house 20,000 or more pupils, and will cut across all geographic, economic and social boundaries to draw students. While such a park would deny the neighborhood school, it would express the vitality, the imagination, and the cultural mix that every vigorous city exemplifies."

Well, there you have it. "The educational park of the future." The use of government funds "if I have my way," not merely to plan but to construct super-schools to which even pre-kindergarteners will be transported to provide a "cultural mix." This, remember, is the U.S. Commissioner of Education speaking.

WHEN federal aid to education was first proposed you remember that doubters expressed the fear that this would open the way for federal direction of America's public education. The proponents vigorously denied this. All that was wanted, they swore, was to enlist the federal government helping in improving schools that would still be under "local control."

Now, what is Commissioner Howe up to? He would take money from all the taxpayers living in all school districts and use part of it for special construction bonuses for cities that adopted his plan. Such a special bonus, conferred upon the few made up of funds contributed by the many, is the same as a penalty against the many. This, then would be a form of punishment levied against all school districts that didn't fall in with Commissioner Howe's scheme.

WHEN agitation was started to create some form of "cultural mix" by hauling children long distances to schools in strange neighborhoods the outcry from parents, particularly in New York City area, was loud. In a subsequent opinion even the U.S. Supreme Court disclaimed any intention of outlawing the right of a parent to send his child to the school closest to home.

And even the far-out social theorists, who revel in compulsion designed to achieve noble aims, were reluctant to grasp the nettle of picking specific pupils to go to specific schools. But Commissioner Howe has apparently solved the problem. He would destroy the neighborhood school, itself. It would do parents no good to move around, seeking a better school environment for their children. If they lived in a city in which five per cent of school age children were Negroes, the "educational park of the future", with its 20,000 or more pupils, would be five per cent Negro. And if the Negro school population were 60 per cent, the superschools would be the same.

Some unreconstructed parents might then attempt to move out of the city school district altogether, to flee to the suburbs. But Mr. Howe has prepared a whammy for them.

YOU recall that he said: "We could, for example, alter political boundaries to bring the social, economic, and intellectual strengths of the suburbs to bear on the problems of the city schools."

What else can you read into this except that Commissioner Howe is prepared to rush in where the Supreme Court feared to tread? And the power behind the revolution he seeks to engineer are the dollars taken from all citizens which, his boys were swearing a year ago, would never be used in any attempt at federal direction.

Little Joe's Gray Hairs Only Thing New on Bonanza Set

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Meanwhile, back at Ponderosa —

They're already at work on the 1966-67 season of "Bonanza," which has proven its name for NBC, its sponsor, producers and stars. Those indominable Cartwrights are once more at home on the range — Lorne Greene ever the father image, Dan Blocker fat and sassy, and Mike Landon the sex symbol, though slightly gray-haired.

Little Joe gray-haired? Yes, it's true, though the aging process has set in early. Otherwise Mike Landon remains the picture of youthful vigor, thanks to his daily sessions in the Paramount Studio gym while others are feeding in the commissary.

Landon, like his fellow Cartwrights, exudes confidence about the coming season.

The actor reflected on the number of opposition shows that have hit the boneyard and commented: "The best opposition we've had has been the feature movies."

ABC will once again be pitting the features against "Bonanza". The color Western will be offering more of its same formula in the series' eighth year.

"We're not planning anything new," commented Landon. "There may be more two-parters, which I don't entirely approve of. Experience has shown that the ratings suffer when we do them.

"Guest stars? I don't think we'll be using too many — unless the ratings drop. But experience has also proved that guest stars don't help the rating to any degree. Of course, if Paul Newman was available — "

Landon and his fellow stars have signed up for another five years of "Bonanza," after which they should be able to buy the State of Colorado. Mike admittedly enjoys the money, and he is content with the work as well.

"Acting is a job, just as being an engineer or doctor is a job," he reasoned. "There is a certain amount of routine in doing a series, but there is also a creative aspect of helping with scripts and writing an occasional one yourself."

Miss Virginia Gohn Is Honored With Tea Tuesday

Miss Virginia Gohn of West Plains was guest of honor at a tea given Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Harwell, 901 Moore.

Miss Gohn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Gohn of West Plains, and the bride-elect of William Sapp, Jr., of Sikeston.

Plans are being completed for an August wedding at the First Methodist church in West Plains.

The Harwell home was appointed throughout with magnolia blossoms and greenery. The mantle in the living room was decorated with spiral white tapers, magnolia leaves and fleur'd amour. Miniature bride and groom dolls completed the arrangement.

An electric fountain in the sun room sprayed a cascade of perfumed water over magnolia blossoms and two hand carved white doves. A scroll with engraved names, Virginia and "Rocky" was above the fountain.

Miss Gohn received her guests in an original sea green Irish linen creation, with matching accessories. Her corsage was pale pink angora asters.

The dining room table was adorned with a white French embroidered organza cloth. The centerpiece was a crystal and silver epergne holding white magnolia, and plumosa fern.

Miss Katie Blanton, Miss Vicky Heckemeyer, and Miss Sarah Reid assisted Mrs. Harwell in serving punch and cake to the guests.

Mrs. William Sapp, Sr., mother of the prospective bride-groom and those who assisted in serving were presented lavender and pink aster corsages by the hostess.

Guests included alumni and present members of Miss Gohn's sorority, Kappa Kappa Gamma, and other University friends.

Tommy Sanders Celebrates 4th Birthday

Tommy Sanders celebrated his fourth birthday at Vacation Bible School at the Eastside Church of the Nazarene Wednesday evening.

His classmates enjoyed birthday cupcakes and soft drinks during the refreshment period. They sang "Happy Birthday" to him.

Enjoying the party with Tommy was the kindergarten department of the Bible school, Timmie and Randy Riley, Rickie Ramsey, Charles Trimble, Gerald Norman, Cheryl Southern, Chris Launius, Karen Malone, Jay Sherrod, Robert Bon, Kimberly Morris and Rusty Deal.

Trot-in System Latest Thing in Banking

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. AP -- Residents of this resort island in the Straits of Mackinac will have a chance after July 1 to do some "trot-in banking."

The First National Bank of St. Ignace plans to open a branch here next month, one which will cater to the island's favorite means of transportation, the horse. Cars are prohibited on the island.

Patrons arriving on horseback or in one of the popular horse-drawn surries will find hitching posts in place of parking lots, said the bank president, Warren Hagen.

The bank plans to offer two lumps of sugar to each horse bringing a new customer on opening day, Hagen said.

Crider Defeats Godwin

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Bill Stewart of Springfield was the only former champion remaining in the Missouri Amateur Golf Tournament going into today's quarter-finals, and he was matched against the oldest man in the field.

The semifinals were scheduled for this afternoon.

Stewart faced 59-year-old James Patrick Quinn, Kansas City lawyer who chews licorice bars for energy.

Others in this morning's round were:

Jim Benson, St. Louis, vs. Mike Crider, St. Charles.

Jim Patton, Springfield, vs. Richard Pearce, St. Louis.

Bob Nieberding Jr., St. Louis, vs. Richard Poe, Columbia.

Stewart, 42, who won the title in 1953 and 1957, moved into the favorite's role after four-time champion Bob Cochran of St. Louis had to withdraw Friday because of a back injury.

Quinn, who needed seven licorice bars to see him through Friday's two rounds, is in a field that features youth. Crider is 17, Nieberding 19, Pearce 22, Poe 23 and Patton 36.

Friday's third round results:

Benson won from Cochran by default.

Crider defeated Luther Godwin, Poplar Bluff, 3 and 2.

Stewart defeated Bob Davis, St. Louis, 2 and 1.

Quinn defeated Leo Van Dover, Poplar Bluff, 3 and 1.

Patton defeated Jim Jackson, St. Louis, 4 and 3.

Pearce defeated Peter Beardsley, St. Louis, 4 and 2.

Nieberding defeated Bob Sauer, St. Louis, 3 and 2.

Poe defeated Bob Smith, Joplin, 2 and 1.

Cards Sign Shortstop

The Cardinals have signed Shortstop Wald Schaefer, a junior at the University of Connecticut, to a Sarasota contract, it was announced tonight (June 17) by Director of Scouting, George Silvey.

Schaeffer, a 20-year-old left-handed hitter, also can play second base, according to Scout Jeff Jones, who signed the Westport, Connecticut, athlete. Schaeffer stands 5 feet, 11 inches, and weighs 175.

Jones says that Schaefer hit well over .300 with six home runs during the college season. Sarasota is in the Florida Rookie League.

Cards Go Down In Nineth

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Philadelphia's Tony Taylor raced home from second on reliever Hal Woodeshick's wild pitch for the tying run in the eighth, and then singled across the wining run in the ninth for a 6-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Friday night.

The California Angels continued their rise in the American League, taking their sixth straight victory, 4-2, at Kansas City.

Taylor's game-winning single drove in Richie Allen, who had singled and reached second when John Callison was thrown out at the plate.

Pinch hitter Bob Tolan put the Cardinals into the lead, 5-4, with his first major league homer in the seventh off Philadelphia starter Larry Jackson. But the Phillies came back to tie it when Taylor singled, stole second and came home on the wild pitch.

Mike Shannon doubled in one run and Julian Javier singled home another for St. Louis in the second. Philadelphia sent Cardinal starter Curt Simmons to a shower and scored four runs in the third on a double, five singles, a walk and a wild pitch.

Willie Smith slammed a two-run triple in the seventh inning to provide California's margin over Kansas City, and giving loser Jim Catfish Hunter a 5-6 record.

Kansas City turned two walks by Marcelino Lopez into two runs in the second. Then Jack Sanford, 7-2, took over from Lopez with two out in the inning and held the A's to one hit until he left for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

The Angels got to Hunter for a run in the fifth on Bob Rodgers' single and Jose Cardenal's triple and tied the score in the sixth on Jim Fregosi's triple and Ed Kirkpatrick's sacrafice fly.

Dean Chance 4-8 will pitch for California tonight against Kansas City's Chuck Dobson 2-5.

Bob Buhl 2-4 of Philadelphia will oppose St. Louis' Al Jackson 5-5 tonight.

Dodgers Fall To Third

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Willie McCovey still has his home run touch, but Gaylord Perry finally has lost his.

McCovey had his touch in the eighth inning and slammed a tie-breaking three-run homer while Perry worked without his touch and scattered seven hits as National League leading San Francisco knocked the Los Angeles Dodgers into third place, 4-1.

Perry, completing his first game since an ankle injury three weeks ago, brought his record to 8-1—the best in the major leagues on a percentage basis. And the big reason for his amazing flip-flop from last year's 8-12 record is his home run record.

The 27-year-old right-hander, who never has won more than 12 games in his career, has not allowed a homer in 11 games this season. Last year he was tagged at a one-homer-every-other-game clip and surrendered a total of 21.

McCovey, meanwhile, brought his homer total to 14 and combined with Perry to build the Giants' winning streak to six and their NL lead to 3½ games over Pittsburgh and four over the defending champion Dodgers.

The Pirates moved up with a 4-2 victory over Atlanta, Philadelphia edged St. Louis 6-5 and the New York Mets swept Cincinnati 6-5 and 2-1. Houston and the Chicago Cubs were not scheduled.

In the American League, Baltimore downed Boston 5-3, Washington nipped Cleveland 5-4 in 11 innings, California took Kansas City 4-2, the Chicago White Sox whipped Minnesota 3-1 and the New York Yankees beat Detroit 5-2.

Matty Alou collected four of the Pirates' 13 hits, triggering a two-run first inning uprising and driving in the final run in the eighth inning with another single. Don Cardwell, tagged for a homer by Mack Jones, got the victory with relief help from Pete Mikkelsen, and Woody Fryman. Mikkelsen was touched for a homer by Felipe Alou.

Tony Taylor pulled the Phillies into a 5-5 tie in the eighth when he singled, stole second and raced home on Hal Woodeshick's wild pitch. Then he singled home Rich Allen with the winning run in the ninth after John Callison had been thrown out at the plate trying to score from Second on Allen's single.

Eddie Bressoud, who slammed a three-run homer in the first game for the Mets, drove in their only runs in the nightcap with a bases-loaded single off Hank Fischer in the seventh inning. Fischer, acquired from Atlanta Wednesday, had the Mets shut out on two hits through six innings.

Bressoud's homer in the opener pulled the Mets into a 3-3 tie. The Reds pulled ahead but New York came from behind and won it on Ron Hunt's two-run double in the eighth inning. Bob Shaw, acquired in a cash deal with San Francisco, won his second in as many starts for the Mets.

Fishing generally on Ozark lakes and streams continues to be rated fair to good. Several of the large impoundments report activity on white bass jumps. Topwater fishing is producing results early morning and late evening though the plastic worm is accounting for most bass catches. Night fishing under lantern is producing some good catches of white bass and crappie on all of the major impoundments. Bluegill are schooling and being taken in three to six foot of water. A number of excellent catfish catches have been reported the past week. Lake Hunnewell and Lake Seivers in northeast Missouri are the only impoundments with dingy water and fishing is rated poor to fair. There is a possibility that some cloudy to dingy water will move into the upper arms of Pomme de Terre and the upper portion of the Lake of the Ozarks by the weekend. All Missouri streams are in excellent condition with fishing rated fair to good on goggle-eye, bass and perch. The Mississippi River is up 3½ feet and will level off for the weekend. The river is murky and fishing is expected to be poor. River stages are: Clarksville, 24.7; Winfield, 24.3; Grafton, 16.3; Alton Pool, 18.8; Valley Park (Meramec), 0.7; Union (Bourbeuse), 1.3; Lake of the Ozarks (Bagnell Dam) Lakeside Pool, 652.82; Table Rock, 914.28; Norfolk, 550.86; Bull Shoals, 653.24; Pomme de Terre, 839.8; Greers Ferry, 458.38; Beaver, 1111.79; Clearwater, 495.07; Kentucky, 359.

One Player Qualifies From Missouri -Kansas For Finals of Open

SAN FRANCISCO AP -- Stan Thrisk of Shawnee Mission was the only player from Missouri and Kansas to survive the 151-stroke cutoff mark and qualify for the final rounds of the National Open Golf Tournament.

Dexter Happiness Is a Head Start Program

TAKE 100 pounds of clay, add 67 children and you have all the ingredients for a good time at school.

Proving Education Can Be Fun

By WARREN SOKOLIS

DEXTER -- To a beatnik, it's his beard, and to the Yankees, it's a four - game sweep, but happiness to a five or six-year-old child at Dexter is the Head Start program at Central elementary school.

The persons connected with Head Start -- administrators, teachers, teacher - aides, volunteers and pupils -- are proving that education need not be a sterile process. And whether the pupils realize it or not, they are learning valuable skills that will benefit them throughout the rest of their educational careers.

The children work with clay, solve puzzles, paint, listen to records and play games. To the laymen this might seem like a waste of federal funds--which are used to finance the Head Start program -- but to the professional in the field of education the skills and patterns of behavior developed through this "play" are the foundation on which a good education is built.

For example, playing with clay is not only fun, but it aids in muscle development, the Head Start teachers explained. The same thing applies to the use of tinker toys.

Listening skills are developed through the use of phonograph records. Songs instructing the children to make some physical movement are played while the children follow the instructions.

To the children it's a game, but they are also learning to listen for and follow the instructions.

The educational puzzles provide for the child something to coordinate his hands with his thought process, teachers said.

However, "play" is not the only project covered in the program. Good health and cleanliness are also stressed. Each child is given a toothbrush, toothpaste and soap and taught how to use them properly, Carl Davis, elementary school supervisor, noted.

The children are also given medical and dental examinations, Davis said. In the morning they are fed a snack, consisting of milk or juice and a cookie or fruit. At noon they eat a well - balanced meal with one meat dish, two vegetables, dessert, milk, bread and butter.

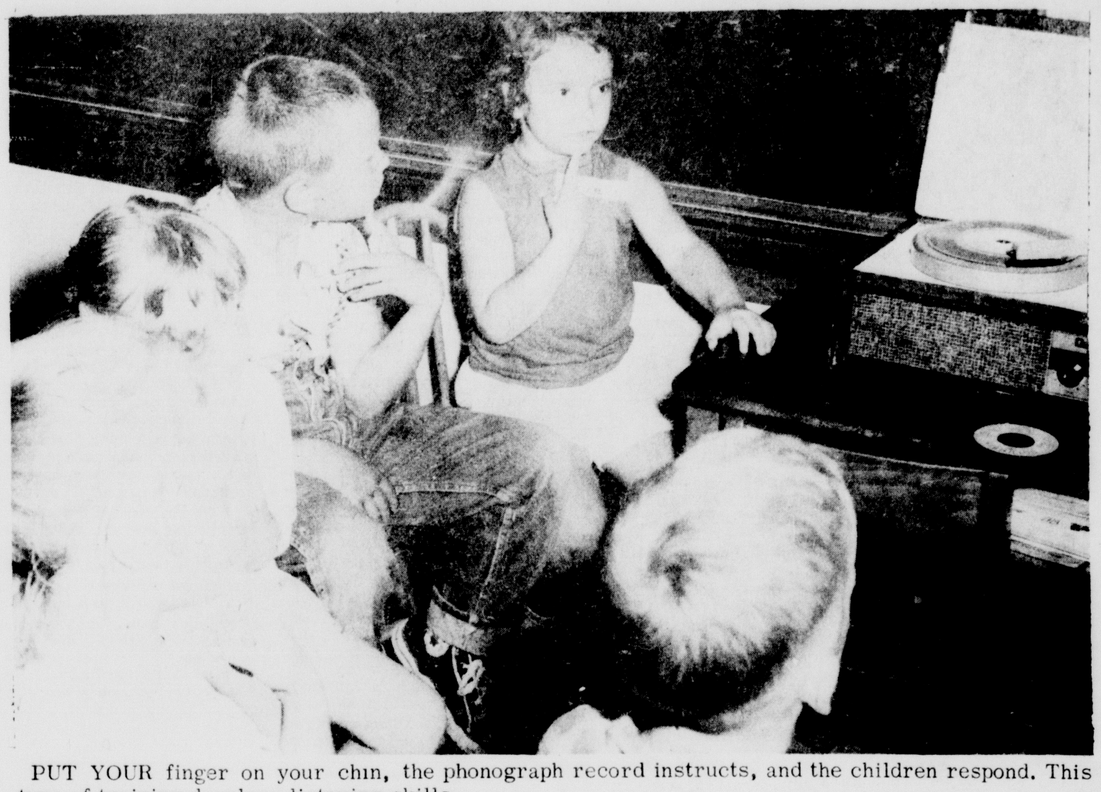

The program is held five days a week from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. This was the first week of the eight - week program.

The attendance records of pupils gives adequate illustration of the way they feel about Head Start. Last year 72 children were enrolled when the program began, Davis pointed out. After registration two children moved out of the Dexter school district, and the average daily attendance was 68 a day.

This year 67 pupils are enrolled in Head Start. There are four classes and four teachers, four teacher - aides and four volunteers working in the program. The volunteers are mothers of the children enrolled, which is encouraged so mothers can see how their children are being taught, Davis explained.

In evaluating the achievement of Head Start, the teachers noted that pupils learn to make social adjustments necessary for the work the children must do when they enter first grade in the fall.

As one teacher said, when the children complete this eight weeks of training, "they are ready for school."

PUT YOUR finger on your chin, the phonograph record instructs, and the children respond. This type of training develops listening skills.

THESE HAND puppets take on the personalities of the children who operate them and provide the pupils with the basic skills of small-group learning.

THIS IS another example of following instructions by listening to a record, but some of the children became distracted when they discovered they were on a not-so-candid camera.

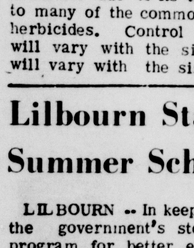

THE PLOT thickens and the children's faces express concern for the fate of the hero.

RED ROVER, red rover and someone comes over. During recess the children "discover" a game that has been played by many generations of youngsters.

INSECTICIDES AND CORN FOR DAIRY CATTLE

Some of our dairymen need to purchase corn from commercial sources to feed their cattle. Some dairymen are asking if they have to worry about purchasing corn from fields treated with aldrin or heptachlor insecticides.

M-U Extension Entomologist George Thomas has some good news for these men. He says shelled or ear corn harvested from fields treated with the recommended dosages of soil insecticides aldrin or heptachlor has not been found to contain detectable amounts of these chemicals. Research has shown that these residues in corn grain are not detectable until the per-acre dosage rates reach ten or more pounds per acre.

However. . . the stalk or leaves, particularly the lower portion of the plant, may contain residues following soil application of these insecticides. Therefore, it would be suggested that dairymen check the insecticide history of the crop before buying silage from commercial sources.

CONTROL OF MULTIFLORA ROSE

Although multiflora rose is often recommended for conservation uses, it sometimes becomes a weed problem on farms. Some of these farmers are asking about control recommendations.

M-U Extension Weed Control Specialist L. E. Anderson says multiflora rose is difficult to eradicate due to its tolerance to many of the commonly used herbicides. Control methods will vary with the size of will vary with the size of the area to be treated.

For extensive areas, Anderson recommends the application of Silvex or 2, 3, 5-TP at a rate of three-pounds acid equivalent per acre. This in a carrier consisting of 20-gallons diesel oil and 80-gallons of water. Apply after the leaves have reached the fully-expanded stage of growth. . . . and when the shrubs are making rapid growth. Drift of this herbicide, Silvex, can be a hazard to nearby sensitive crops . . . so apply with caution.

Individual plants of multiflora rose can be eradicated by applying two-teaspoons of monuron around the base of the bush.

VITAMIN A LOSS IN HAY

Farmers putting up hay are storing some of this hay for longer than a year. These livestockmen are asking what Vitamin A losses occur when green, leafy hay is stored for this long a period.

M-U Extension Animal Husbandman Homer Sewell says hay may lose three-quarters or more of its original Vitamin A value after one year of storage. Hay that has been stored in a mow through two summer seasons is NOT a dependable source of Vitamin A.

Sewell explains . . .plants do not contain Vitamin A. Instead . . . .plants contain carotene, a pigment which animals convert into Vitamin A. Carotene and Vitamin A are easily destroyed by oxidation. .. . and carotene is lost from hay in storage at a faster rate during high temperatures. Severe heating of hay in the mow can destroy much of its Vitamin A value.

Bootheel Farmers Move South, Strike It Rich

MUCH HAS BEEN WRITTEN about the loss of farm population in the Missouri Bootheel because of advances in the mechanization of agriculture and the growing use of chemicals in weed control. Many residents of the region have, over the years, viewed with alarm the drying up of day labor jobs on the farms, forcing the workers off the land and out of the area.

Very little, however, has been written and said about another distinct loss to the Bootheel that has been taking place for several years in the agricultural industry, the "migration" of a number of substantial farm families to the Deep South -- the states of Mississippi and Louisiana. These are not day labor or former sharecropper families, but long-time large landowners of the Bootheel, many of whom were fine community and area leaders.

What seems to have set up this southern movement of Missouri farm operators a few years ago was the wide difference in the prices of farmland in Missouri and the two southern states. A number of fairly large Bootheel landowners discovered they could sell their farms at the higher prices prevailing in Missouri, then go to Mississippi or Louisiana and buy as much as twice the acreage of excellent farm land for the same money.

In addition, with the land there selling at lower prices, taxes were lower, and they could gain as much as 30 days in the growing season as compared with that in Missouri, giving more assurance for making a crop and also producing greater yields at less cost. As one Bootheel farmer and gin operator stated, "While we're paying $6 a day for field labor here, they are paying from $3.50 to $4 down there."

A member of a Hayti family which moved to Louisiana, in town on a visit, said that another money-making deal there was buying woods land, then removing the trees which are sold to pulp mills. After that the land is cleared for farming with heave equipment--then you're in business to farm or sell the improved land at a substantial profit. Others raise cattle and soybeans which, according to our reports, are quite profitable operations. One Hayti area farmer sold out his Pemiscot county land, went to Mississippi two years ago, taking on a 1000-acre tract which he developed. We are told that he has had an offer for it that would give him a $100,000 profit.

In most cases, however, it was a matter of getting in on a good thing at the right time. Since then the prices of farmland in Mississippi have climbed until it has reached the point where other Bootheel farmers considering moving down there say they haven't been able to find any bargains. The gap between Missouri and Mississippi land prices appears to have closed up rather rapidly, mainly because of the growing number of Missouri farmers and others going down there and buying in.

There are various explanations of why farmland prices in Mississippi were so low a few years ago compared with prices in the Bootheel. Landowners there saw the old traditional South caving in around them with the new civil rights movement and they wanted to sell out and get out. Large plantations, owned by the same family for many years, were broken up and sold, the new generations apparently showing little interest in continuing to own and operate them.

New Community Program For New Madrid Co.

MOREHOUSE -- North New Madrid County Community Action Agency Council is the name chosen for the Delta Area Economic Opportunity program, held at Morehouse last night at the school cafeteria.

W. A. Graves, assistant director, Portageville, was in charge of the meeting, at which time officers, county board members and advisory committee members were chosen.

Herbert Bird, Matthews, was elected president; Ivan McNew, Morehouse, vice-president; Mrs. David Croom, Canalou, secretary.

Named to the county board were, Charles Menees and Mrs. Barbara Lawrence, both of Morehouse, and Lonnie Lawson, Canalou.

Chosen for the advisory committee are, Sue Nimmo and Bill Westerfield, both of Morehouse, Charles Ralph, Canalou; Mrs. John Calvin, Fairview, and Randolph Kem, Matthews.

The first order of business following the election of officers and committees, was the naming of the new organization, followed by the sending of application blanks to secure aides. Those filing applications should return them to the secretary, Mrs. Croom, no later than June 23.

The next meeting will be held in the Morehouse city hall next Thursday night.

BABYSITTING

When a teen-ager babysits, she not only has a responsibility to the family for whom she is sitting but she has a responsibility to herself.

Here are a few hints you might follow if you plan to babysit in the near future.

First, if you receive a call to babysit from someone you do not know, always take their name, phone number, and address. Ask them for the name of the person who referred you to them. Then tell the person you will have to call them back to confirm the date.

You should then check the phone number and address in your phone book and call the family who referred you to them. This serves as a check for you and helps this family to realize that you take your job seriously.

Whenever you babysit, you should always leave the phone number, name and address of the family you are babysitting with, with your family so that they can contact you if they need to do so.

Here's another hint, if this is the first time you have sat for a family and if the children do not know you, it is always a good idea to have a get acquainted time for both you and the children. This may be done by arranging to visit with the family the day before or to arrive about thirty minutes before the parents are to leave. It is always harder for children to be left with strangers than friends.

Whenever you babysit, there is a list of information you should have to be a well informed babysitter. Be sure to find out where the parents will be and the phone number by which they can be reached.

Another good number to know is the fire station, police station, or sheriff. It is a good idea to have the number of the next door neighbor, grandparents or close relatives and the family doctor.

An up-to-date babysitter will know the favorite name the family calls the child. She will know if there is a family pet and know its name. She should know if the child has a favorite toy, record, or story. A wise babysitter is always prepared with a story, game or song with which to entertain the child.

Other questions you might to be the answer to are: Does the child sleep with the lights on? What windows, if any, the parents leave open? Time for bed? How much T.V.? Or any medicine the child may need to take?

All these things take a little extra time and trouble to find out, but the results are worth the trouble.

Remember the University of Missouri Extension Centers of your county will be conducting "Babysitting" Clinics in your county this year. Look for further information in this paper or contact the Extension Center in your county for more information.

"Reindeer Age"

The "Reindeer Age," 25,000 to 30,000 years ago, marked the dawn of human history. From that period, cave-man pictures have come down to us. The best were those of reindeer, principal support of man in that age.

Hotel Guest Steps Out for Air Onto 11th Floor Ledge

ST. LOUIS AP -- A Canadian businessman, who stepped onto an 11th floor ledge at the downtown Hotel Thursday night, did not need coaxing to return to his room.

A small crowd gathered on the street below when Donald Napier, 45, of Ontario, appeared on the ledge. Two police officers rushed upstairs.

But Napier quickly corrected his mistake. He told police he thought he was stepping onto a balcony for some fresh air.

Thrift Committee Dies For Lack of Funds

CHICAGO AP -- The National Thrift committee, Inc., which for 49 years has spread the gospel of regular savings and thrifty habits, has decided to cease functioning.

Helen White, executive secretary of the Chicago-based organization, says that the organization became caught in the grip of a tight money market.

The squeeze on earnings of its 725-member financial institutions began 18 months ago and their contributions fell off.

Unable to raise the money for the annual budget of $50,000, the board decided to cease functioning effective July 1.

Lilbourn Starts Summer School

LILBOURN -- In keeping with the government's stepped-up program for better education for boys and girls, Supt. Max Timmons of the Lilbourn R-4 school district has two summer school programs in operation. Both programs got underway Monday June 13.

The preschool Head Start program has enrolled 72 youngsters to date, and afew more are expected to enroll.

Head Start seeks to prepare children, who will be six years of age by Oct. 1, for a "quick take off" when they enter the regular classes at the beginning of the regular school term this fall. It provides reading readiness, health examinations, dental care, and immunizations for all children eligible to enter school in September.

Teachers working in this program were required to take a one week orientation course at the University of Missouri to qualify. They are -- H. B. Mitchell, director; Ruby Tope, Aliene Mitchell, Claudette Scott, Dorothy Wade, Ellenora Giddens, Susie Noe, Bennie Holyfield, and J. D. Washington, a visiting teacher. Mrs. Juanita Newton, a registered nurse, is also assisting.

Mothers of children in Head Start employed as teacher-aids are Mrs. W. C. Stanley, Mrs. Meford Gremore, Mrs. Elethra Small, Mrs. Lucy Baehr, Mrs. Annie Conner, Mrs. George Smith, and Mrs. Ilene Wade. These aids will serve for the first four weeks and then another group of mothers will assist.

In addition to the Head Start program, the school is conducting a program in remedial reading and arithmetic. This program has a total enrollment of 166 pupils who are deficient in the regular school work. Like Head Start, this program will continue for eight weeks.

Teachers in the remedial program are Imogene Calbert, Lessie Snelling, Mrs. J. D. Washington, Sophia Taylor, Doris Clay, Marcella Carrol, Jane Nunn, Shelby Hurley, Gayttye Sutherland, and Curtis Cross.

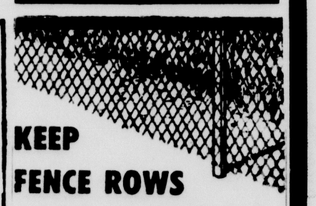

These teachers are provided aids, who are college students training to become teachers. They are Carole Cooper, Mary Farmer, Barbara Wolf, Gale Timmons, Pat Hayes, Linda Tinsley, Barbara Robinson, Joyce Gremore, Linda Coffee and Mrs. Loretta Moore.

Other employees in the programs are cafeteria workers, bus drivers, and a secretary.

SILAGE WEIGHT TEST PROVES GEHL CHOP-ALL CHOPS BEST
SHORT CUT SILAGE SAVES UP TO 28% STORAGE SPACE

There's more to fine chopping than meets the eye. The real proving ground of a short cut is in your silo. Short cut silage distributes better, packs better, unloads better . . . makes better feed.

To prove that the Gehl Chop-All cuts finer than any other chopper, silage from a Gehl and 11 competitive choppers was weighed and compared during the forage harvester field demonstrations at a recent Farm Progress Show. The method of handling and weighing each sample of silage was identical.

The Gehl-chopped silage outweighed all other samples, even though the volume of each was the same. The chart above shows what this means to you. You can actually put up to 55 tons (28%) more Gehl-chopped silage in a 16' x 50' silo (based on 50 lbs. per cubic foot of Gehl-chopped silage.) A real saving in storage space and costs! The reason? Gehl's short cut silage packs better!

Here's why the Chop-All cuts best: Six chrome-edged knives, on an unbreakable flywheel, cut forage from inside to outside (just like scissors) against a tungsten carbide cutter bar. Three power-driven compression rollers flatten the crop and hold it tight while the knives cut true, even and short. Two heavy-duty bearings hold the chopping flywheel rigidly in place for an unvarying short cut.

Here's News! Gehl's Select-A-Cut Transmission enables you to select short, medium or long forage length with the push of a lever. Another quality feature of the Chop-All.

THE MISSOURI Public Service Commission will accelerate its program of investigation into illegal water and sewer operations in Missouri.

"Unauthorized water and sewer utility operations are costing Missourians needless money and inconvenience," PSC Chairman William R. Clark said.

Variable Star

The star Mira is famous for its light changes. It expands and contracts every 330 days. This expansion and contraction causes the star's light to grow brighter, then dimmer.

The name Dublin is a corruption of Dubh Linn in Gaelic and means "black pool" after the color of the waters of the River Liffey, which divides the capital of Ireland in two.

FUEL INJECTOR

The spoon is one of man's earliest inventions. It was the first instrument of any kind to be used in preparing and consuming food. The cave men used hollowed out stones and the early Egyptian, Greek and Roman civilizations used spoons of silver and gold. Since man had to eat to live, he first developed tools to handle his food, and the basic shape of the common spoon has changed little since first devised.

The spoon is just one of many articles man has devised to solve his problems. The newspaper Want Ad is another, invented to solve a communications problem. Since Colonial times, people from all walks of life have used Want Ads as a low cost means of delivering a message to large numbers of their fellow men. Today Want Ads do more things for more people at lower cost than any other form of advertising.

A JOURNAL WANT AD WILL WORK FOR YOU

Below Normal Temperatures Anticipated

The tendency for cool weather which slowed crop development early in the season remains in the weather outlook. The 30 day period ending in mid-July is expected to bring below normal temperatures and near normal rainfall to the Missouri Bootheel.

Drying periods between rains during the past few weeks have kept a good balance between adequate sub-soil moisture and soils firm enough to support heavy equipment. There are still a few areas troubled by excess water but field work is in progress in most sections of the Bootheel.

Rains during the period from mid-June to mid-July will come generally in showers and thundershowers preceding cold fronts. These may be expected on 8 to 10 days with good drying conditions between shower periods.

Normal rainfall for the Bootheel division as a whole is 3.59 inches from mid-June to mid-July. Normals for specific cities are:

Caruthersville, 3.46 inches; Fisk, 3.81 inches; New Madrid, 3.89 inches; Poplar Bluff, 3.75 inches; Dexter, 3.79 inches; Morehouse, 3.53 inches; Parma, 3.76 inches; Sikeston, 3.64 inches.

Short term averages for other Bootheel cities are:

Charleston, 3.56 inches; Kennett, 3.49 inches; Portageville, 3.45 inches; Malden, 3.34 inches.

High pressure systems moving inland from the Pacific Northwest will provide periodic cooling and shower periods as they push into the upper Great Plains and Mississippi Valley. High pressure in the southwest will promote shorter periods of warming than are normally encountered at this time of year. Consequently, relative humidity will not be as persistantly high as in most seasons. Usually temperatures rise above 90 degrees on more than half the days during this period. 100 degree heat is not common this early in the year. Cooler than normal days and nights will tend to slow crop development.

A number of dry days will be available for application of chemical controls. Forecasts should be watched in order to avoid brisk winds associated with cool outbreaks. Best time for spraying will usually be the second day after a front passes and high pressure settles over the region.

Water loss due to evaporation and plant use normally runs near 3 inches greater than precipitation from mid - June through mid-July. Cooler temperatures will reduce water loss a bit but some crops, particularly on lighter soils, may need irrigation. Weather early in the season should be generally favorable for completion of wheat harvest and bean planting. Cotton should be watched for possible problems with aphids. Consult your County Director for advice on the need for treatment.

Farmers should check 5-Day Outlooks released three times each week as guides to open weather for haying. Maximum temperature forecasts may help potato growers to schedule harvesting on days least likely to cause heat damage.

PUBLIC NOTICES

Required by law to inform citizens of matters affecting them or their property.

Sealed proposals for the construction of two additional classrooms to the Math - Science Building, Senior High School, Sikeston, Missouri Scott County Reorganized School District R-6, will be received at the office of the Board of Education Sikeston, Missouri until 4:00 p.m. DST, Wednesday, June 29th, 1966 at which time bids will be opened publicly.

Plans and specifications for the project may be inspected and information concerning the securing thereof and the deposit therefor, the work to be done thereunder, the manner of payment therefor, the conditions of bidding, the required bid security, and the contract documents, may be obtained, together with the printed form on which BIDS MUST BE MADE, at the office of Buchmueller, Whitworth & Associates, Architects and Engineers, 412 Tanner Street, Sikeston, Missouri

Attention is called to the fact that the rates of pay for labor and mechanics engaged in the construction of the project will not be less than the prevailing local wage rates for similar work as determined by the Industrial Commission of Missouri.

The Board of Education reserves the right to waive any informalities and to reject any or all bids.

FDA Cracks Down On Diet Labels

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government announced new regulations today which affect the labeling or content, or both, of most special diet foods and diet supplements.

Dr. James L. Goddard, commissioner of food and drugs, told a news conference the regulations are designed to become effective 180 days after publication in the Federal Register Saturday.

The Food and Drug Administration said the revised regulations are aimed at providing the consumer with more facts about the food he buys for weight control, for dietary supplementation with vitamins and minerals, and for other special diet needs such as controlling salt intake.

A major change from current procedure is adoption of Recommended Dietary Allowances as a guide to meeting nutritional needs. These allowances, based upon findings of the National Academy of Sciences, replace what Goddard described as FDA's outmoded 25-year-old concept of "minimum daily requirements."

The new regulations will:

Restrict "low calorie" labeling to foods that contain 15 or fewer calories per serving.

Limit "reduced in calorie" claims to products which contain at least 50 per cent fewer calories than their ordinary counterparts.

Establish eight classes of foods which may be "fortified" with vitamins and minerals. These include breakfast cereals and iodized salt.

Stipulate which nutritional elements, and the amounts of each, that may be used in "fortified" foods.

Prohibit extravagant promotion of "shotgun" multivitamins and mineral supplements containing nutrients that meet no dietary need and tend to deceive the consumer.

THE PRAYER
For Today From The Upper Room

SATURDAY, JUNE 18, 1966

"Do not be anxious about tomorrow, for tomorrow will be anxious for itself. Let the day's own trouble be sufficient for the day." (Matthew 6;34 RSV)

PRAYER: Our Father, may our faith in Thy goodness and mercy be deep in our souls and the desires of our hearts be in keeping with Thy will. Grant us, as children of Thine, that we may be led by Thee in our daily lives. For the Savior's sake. Amen.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter is 14 and driving me out of my mind because of her obsession with what she considers up-to-the-minute style.

I have gone along with Lois up to now because I haven't wanted her to feel different from the rest of the girls in her crowd. But things have gotten out of hand. The girl is getting herself up to look like a comic. I feel I must draw the line somewhere -- but WHERE?

Lois has hemmed up all her dresses so that they hit her about four inches above the knees. She wants everything right around the hips and the louder the colors and patterns the better.

She goes around both day and night wearing sunglasses as large as coffee cups. Her hair (which she irons on a board) hangs in her eyes and looks ghastly. I am happy that she is allergic to eye make-up and cannot wear it. For several months last winter she looked like a raccoon.

My husband and I have had some serious talks about what to do but we just don't know where to draw the line. Will you please print this letter not only for us but for other parents who must be equally baffled? -- ADRIFT WITHOUT ANSWERS

Dear Adrift: Styles do change - and they will continue to change because it's good for morale and good for business. But some of the stuff I've seen lately -- not only on teen-agers, but on their mothers -- may be considered fashionable, but it strikes me as positively indecent.

The op look and the pop look and the ironed hair and the kooky glasses -- o.k., if a girl keeps herself clean. But those skin- tight, thigh-high skirts are vulgar. There's nothing left for a girl to do to attract attention except to set her hair on fire.

Parents not only have the right but they have an obligation to say, "This far -- and NO further!" There comes a point at which respectability must take precedence over "trend" -- and, so help me, over "what everybody else in the crowd is doing." When you feel that your teen-ager is getting too far out, step in and lower the boom.

Dear Ann Landers: I was 18 when I fell madly in love with a married man. I waited for him three years, until he could get a divorce.

We have been married 14 months and have a son who is six weeks old. The baby is sickly and cries a lot. My husband says his other children never cried at night and he doesn't see why this one has to. According to him it is my fault.

He criticizes my housekeeping and says his first wife was wonderful that way and he isn't accustomed to anything else. He knew I hated housework before I married him but he said it didn't make any difference.

Last night he made a mean remark about my figure and it really hurt. I explained that it takes a woman about three months to get her shape back after a baby. He said his ex-wife got her shape back in three weeks on four different occasions.

I'm very unhappy and afraid he is, too. What happened to the most exciting love affair in history? -- NO NAME

Dear No: It was legalized.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents. . . If you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged by Parents? How To Get More Freedom." Send 50¢ in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Caruthersville Gets $73,500 Grant for Industrial Park Road

WASHINGTON AP -- A $73,500 grant to help Caruthersvill, Mo., build a four-lane access road to an industrial park was announced today by the Department of Commerce.

The money, from the Economic Development Administration, will be matched by the city, making the total available for the project $147,000.

The city said that four firms in the industrial park plan expansions when the access road is completed, adding about 400 new jobs.

SCOTT AND MISSISSIPPI COUNTY 4-H CAMP

Plans are nearly complete for the Scott and Mississippi County 4-H Camp at Lake Wappapello. The camp is planned for Wednesday, July 6, to Friday, July 8.

The planned camp program includes some of the usual camp activities such as swimming, canoeing, and basket weaving. Some of the new features o this year's camp will be a program sponsored by a local electric cooperative on lighting using several demonstrations. Also included in the program will be a session on "Hidden Benefits of Wildlife" presented by the Missouri Conservation Commission. Other activities planned include archery and rifle instructions by qualified instructors.

Both evenings at camp will be filled with flag lowering, vespers, group singing, and other group activities and recreation.

All 4-H'ers attending this camp will need a doctor's statement that they are physically fit, and a health form filled out and signed by their parents to be turned in to the Extension Center by June 20. The camp fee will be due in the Extension Center, June 27.

Anyone having questions is asked to call the University Extension Center in Benton or Charleston.

GRAVEL HILL 4-H'ERS TO HOST HORSE SHOW

The Gravel Hill Rough Riders 4-H Club will host a horse show Saturday, June 18, beginning at 7:30 (daylight savings time). The horse show will take place at the Rough Rider's Horse Show Arena located on Route D, two miles east of Route UU.

All 4-H'ers will be admitted free upon presentation of their 4-H membership card.

Extension Center News

Last week in this column we encouraged farmers who applied nitrogen preplant or very early in the growing season to consider adding additional nitrogen . The reason for this recommendation is the loss of nitrogen due to excessive rainfall.

Several farmers have asked exactly how nitrogen is lost from the soil and John Garret, Area Soils Agent, sums it up this way.

Nitrogen is removed from the soil in three main ways: 1. Crop removal, 2. leaching, and 3. denitrification. The ideal way would be for it all to be removed by the growing crop. However, this is seldom if ever the case. Under ideal conditions, the amount removed by first year crop is about 65 to 70 percent of total applied.

Leaching is the downward movement of nitrogen through the soil profile. This nitrogen often moves below the root zone so it becomes unavailable. Leaching is more severe on sandy to very fine sandy soils than loam or clay soils. This is the main reason fall or winter application of nitrogen is discouraged on sandy soils.

Denitrification is the loss of nitrogen as a gas into the atmosphere. When soils get saturated or waterlogged, bacteria present in the soil will use oxygen from the nitrate fertilizer for survival. This leaves the nitrogen free to escape as a gas.

Denitrification is the most severe on heavy clay soils that have poor internal drainage. Often times, more nitrogen is lost by this method than by leaching on sandy soils. To give you a little idea of how serious it can be, the following research from Mississippi is cited.

On heavy clay soil, they applied 120 pounds of nitrogen and kept the soil waterlogged for periods of 10 and 20 days. Over a four year period the soil lost an average of 63 pounds of nitrogen after ten days and 92 pounds after 20 days. In other words, from 50 to 75 per cent of the 120 pounds applied was lost each year. Many farmers applied all of their nitrogen preplant in March or early April. Some applied as much as 200 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre. We have had ideal conditions for leaching and denitrification since the nitrogen was applied. April was an extremely wet month with some areas receiving as much as 20 inches of rain. Corn was replanted on many farms but nitrogen was not reapplied. Some fields still have less than desirable stands, but it is too late to do anything about that. Well, what can be done about the nitrogen problem? First, inventory your present situation. Did you apply your nitrogen preplant or sidedress most of it? If it was sidedressed since corn has come up, you are probably okay. If your corn on a soil subject to severe leaching and denitrification? Does the corn have a yellow color instead of a dark green? Yellow corn usually means nitrogen deficiency. Do you have enough plants left to justify additional nitrogen? If the answer is "yes" to most of the above you need to sidedress extra nitrogen as soon as possible.

Springfield Guard Unit Again No. 1

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. AP -- The 1107th Transportation Company of the 142nd Transportation Battalion will again receive the Eisenhower trophy for excellence in administration, training, strength and attendance.

This is the second time in three years that the Springfield National Guard unit has won the state's highest award for the most outstanding unit of company size.

The trophy will be formally presented next Thursday to Capt. James Eubanks, company commander.

CREATE COOL COMFORT WITH SIMPLE DECORATING TRICKS

Creating a cool, summertime atmosphere in a room is a surprisingly simple way to beat the heat -- at little expense and practically no effort. Just see what you can accomplish in the living room with a stack of pretty bath towels, for instance: Convert the towels into summer slipcovers -- using the big bath sheets or beach towels in a cool color such as aqua or lemon yellow, or some pastel that fits into the general decorative scheme. Or choose bold multicolor stripes just for fun.

These temporary slipcovers can be fitted to sofa and chairs by stretching the towels smoothly on back, arms, and seat or cushion, then anchoring them with short hatpins. Mitre the corners of each towel by folding them square, the way a hospital bed is made, so they will look trim. These covers can be removed easily and put into the washer often.

Heavy drapers at the windows add nothing to summer comfort, so replace them with handsized terry cloth towels -- gay little pieces that can be clipped onto a curtain rod a la cafe curtains, using the decorative clips especially designed for just such a purpose. These can serve as shades as well as window dressing. Nothing washes as quickly and easily as terry, and not a stroke of the iron needed.

Little finger-tip towels are perfect for upholstered chair which you don't want to cover entirely. Besides being colorful, they protect fabrics from soil. Pin them to the backs of chairs and sofa, and to the arms where soil collects.

Big cotton kerchiefs, such as the traditional bandanna, make gay trimmings for small windows in kitchen or bathroom. If you don't want the trouble of installing permanent curtain rods, make use of the easy-up telescope-type rods that fit inside the window frame. These have a spring action, plus suction cups at both ends, that allow them to fit snugly into any space and to be removed any time with a twist of the wrist.

The less cluttered a room, the cooler it seems. Heavy pieces of furniture are best put in storage for the hot months, and a piece or two of lightweight summer furniture substituted. Wrought iron pieces upholstered in easy-to-suds - off woven plastic are good choices because the woven plastic "breathes" just like fabric and provides the same summertime comfort.

Since the easiest housekeeping in hot weather is the kind you can do with a speedy suds-and-water going-over, why burden yourself with thick rugs? After all, nothing is cooler than a bare floor which is freshly swabbed.

Q—Who founded the first circulating library in America?

A—Benjamin Franklin in 1731 at Philadelphia.

Q—How is the age of a wild mammal determined?

A—There is no known way by which this can be determined, but a general idea can be gathered from the wear of its teeth—provided the average life span of the species is known.

Lesczynski Added To 'Ten Most Wanted'

Walter Leonard Lesczynski, a convicted bank robber who fled from an Illinois hospital while awaiting removal of one of seven police bullets that struck him while he fled from a $25,000 amusement park holdup, has been added to the FBI's list of "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives."

He is currently charged with an April, 1965, bank robbery in Calumet City, Illinois, and has reportedly vowed not to return to prison and be prepared to shoot it out with any law enforcement officer attempting to arrest him.

Lesczynski allegedly robbed the First Calumet City Savings and Loan Association, 555 Burnham Avenue, Calumet City, Illinois, of $5,988 at the point of a shiny, snub-nosed revolver on the morning of April 5, 1965, fleeing with the loot stuffed in his pockets.

On August 29, 1965, Lesczynski was shot at least seven times while trying to flee from some 40 police officers after allegedly participating in the $25,000 holdup of a children's amusement concession at Melrose Park, Illinois. Four bullets passed completely through his body, some were removed by operations and he was confined, under guard, at the Cook County Jail Hospital awaiting removal of another slug from his upper hip joint when he escaped at 5 a.m. on the morning of December 17, 1965.

On the same day as the escape, a Federal warrnat charging him with the Calumet City bank robbery was issued at Chicago, Illinois.

Lesczynski's first criminal conviction occurered in March, 1953, when he was sentenced to one year in the Cook County Jail on a charge of petty larceny and burglary. He was released in February, 1954.

Less than a year later he was charged with armed robbery and upon conviction in January, 1955, he was sentenced to serve from seven to fifteen years in the Illinois State Penitentiary at Joliet. He was paroled in December, 1959.

A little more than one year later, he was arrested at Chicago on numerous armed robbery charges and the following day was charged by the FBI with two Chicago bank robberies, one occurring in October, 1960, and the other in December, 1960. He and an accomplice took $5,494 in the first holdup and $18,274 in the second. Pleading guilty to both offenses, Lesczynski was sentenced to two concurrent five-year terms to run concurrently with any sentence received from local authorities for the local armed robberies. He was returned to the Illinois State Penitentiary at Joliet where he remained until November 25, 1964, when he was again paroled. Less than five months later he allegedly committed the Calumet City bank robbery for which he is currently being sought.

Lesczynski is a white American, who was born at Chicago, Illinois, on May 12, 1930. He is 5' 11" to 6' tall, weighs 175 to 185 pounds, has a fair complexion, medium build, hazel eyes and dark brown hair that is receding. He has scars on palm and heel of his right hand plus bullet hole scars on both hands, both legs, his right shoulder and above his left hip. He also has operation scars on his lower abdomen and the right side of his chest. Tattooed on his upper right arm is "SSN 352-22-2845." He reportedly has false dentures and occasionally wears black, horn-rimmed glasses. He has worked in the past as a machinist and machine operator but is said to be a good typist and to prefer clerical work.

He is said to be above average in intelligence, enjoys expensive clothes, food and lodging when finances permit, maintains an extremely neat and well - groomed appearance, drinks coffee avidly and likes to frequent night clubs although he drinks lightly, usually consuming only one or two drinks. Lesczynski reportedly enjoys participating in various sports, being particularly fond of swimming and handball.

Lesczynski should be considered armed and extremely dangerous. Anyone with information concerning the whereabouts of this fugitive should immediately contact the nearest office of the FBI, the telephone number of which may be found on the first page of local telephone directories.

divide into wards and political parties. Each ward in each party will elect committeewomen who meet and select their officers. These committeewomen immediately canvass their wards for candidates for city offices. The city elections are held on Monday, county elections on Tuesday, state primaries on Wednesday, and the state elections on Thursday.

Every girl is encouraged to file for the officer of her choice in the city, county, amd state elections. The girls, their committeewomen, and political parties conduct campaigns, have rallies, make speeches and conduct their city, county, and state elections, learn the duties of their offices, and hold county and state conventions. They are guided in these political affairs by instructors, advisors and a manual.

In addition to these political activities, each girl enrolls in one of the daily morning classes: political science, law, peace officers and patrol. Each girl also selects one of the following afternoon classes: journalism, parlimentary law, chorus and band.

The inauguration for the newly elected state officers, the candle lighting ceremony, and the governor's tea will be on Thursday evening.

On Friday, court trials conducted by the peace officers classes, the general assembly will be held and the Panel of Americans will present an informative human relations program.

Two girls will be selected from the citizens of Girls State for outstanding all around citizenship, regardless of political office held at Missouri Girls State to attend Girls Nation, which will be held in Washington D. C. July 24-30.

There will be chartered buses leaving Cape Girardeau, Sunday at 6 a.m. D.S.T. Reservations for the 10 girls attending Girls State from Sikeston has been made through Mrs. Alice Stark, Cape Girardeau, who is in charge of bus transportation for the 52 girls of the 14th District American Legion Auxiliary. The buses will return the girls to Cape Girardeau on Saturday, June 25th, not later than 6 p.m. D.S.T.

The girls who will attend Girls State from Sikeston are Camille Bowman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee A. Bowman, sponsored by the Lions Club; Mary Ann Bruce, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Leo Bruce, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club; Linda Sue Chaney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy O. Chaney, sponsored by Rotary Club; Sally Ann Faulkner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Faulkner, sponsored by Junior Woman's Club; Jane Anne Miederhoff, daughter of Mrs. Clara Miederhoff, sponsored by Coalesce Club; Melinda Sue Morrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Morrison, sponsored by Business and Professional Womens Club; Sandra Lou Nickell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Nickell, sponsored by Women's Civic Club; Connie Larue Nowell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nowell, sponsored by Sikeston Woman's Club; Vicki Jane Schindler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Schindler, sponsored by Henry Meldrum Unit No. 114, American Legion Auxiliary; Deidra Rae Yancy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Yancy, sponsored by Henry Meldrum Unit No. 114, American Legion Auxiliary.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

EL MONTE, Calif. (AP) — A framed photo of a marine in Viet Nam will be the center of Father's Day attention at the Frederick Wayne Wilson home Sunday — but there's nothing unusual about that.

Every day is Father's Day with the Wilson family: wife Gloria, 21, 2-year-old Tammy and 10-month-old Fred Jr.

The photo symbolizes one family's solution to a problem faced by many young couples: how to keep the memory of daddy strong for the children while he's fighting a war?

The glass covering the photo of Sgt. Wilson, a reconnaissance patrol leader in Chu Lai, is cracked from what his wife calls "too much loving." She has no intention of replacing it.

"When Fred left," Mrs. Wilson said in an interview with Sheila Grattan of the Alhambra Post-Advocate, "we made plans to keep the presence of father as strong as possible in our home. We feel children need to be aware of their father . . . not forget his importance."

They had seen newsreels of soldier homecomings where the father was a stranger to the children. And they knew military wives who found it easier to ignore the existence of the father during long separations.

Little Tammy kisses the picture of her daddy morning and night. Another visual symbol is a Marine doll in full-dress blues.

"That's my daddy," Tammy shouts as she points it out to visitors.

Tammy also helps wrap cookies and candies, which are sent to her father regularly.

And there are letters. Wilson writes an average of five a week.

"I sit Tammy down and read to her all the parts she can understand," Mrs. Wilson says. She reads and rereads his letters and she writes him nightly — discussing Tammy and little Fred's development, discipline problems, "the cute things the children do."

Double Accident Sends Four To Second Hospital

A double accident Friday at 3:20 p.m., two miles north of Frederickton on highway 67 when a 1963 Chevrolet, driven by Viola McKinney, 63, Whittier, Calif., attempted to pass another car, when both hit on the shoulder, after she lost control.

He husband, George McKinney, 65, received a bad head injury and was taken to the Fredericktown hospital, and later transferred to a St. Louis hospital. While enroute, the ambulance met in another accident at the junction of highway 67 and 110 near DeSoto.

A car driven by Judith Boyer, 18, Cadette, attempted to pull off the highway when the ambulance approached, causing her to skid in front of the ambulance, driven by John Simpson, 57, Fredericktown.

Injured in the second accident were, Miss Boyer, with a fractured pelvis; Helen Resinger, 41, Farmington, with a back injury, and John Bust, 18, Potosi, a passenger in the Boyer car, who received cuts and bruises.

All were taken to the Jefferson County Memorial Hospital, Crystal City.

In a accident Friday at 12:55 p.m. on I-55, a 1966 International tractor and trailer, driven by William Ray, 32, Shreveport, La., lost control and overturned, 15 miles south of Sikeston.

He was taken to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital, with injuries to his forehead and thumb.

Good Wheat Prospects In The Sikeston Area, But Acreage Is Cut

MIKE BURCH, son of Robert Burch, living south of Matthews, brings in a load of wheat to the W. A. Gemeinhardt Seed and Grain Co., Matthews, with a low moisture content of 14.7 per cent. The 40 acres are expected to average in the high 40s.

A BROWN SPUR farmer finishes a 36-acre field for an average of around 45 bushels per acre. Markus Koch, route three, is shown at right, Friday, their first day of combining. The fields received heavy water damage, causing a high moisture content, and a number of water spots in the field that drowned out a portion of the crop. His son Tim, at left, and brother John, handle the combine.

Wheat combining in the Sikeston area is in full swing, with the first reports of harvesting in Scott county starting on June 15.

From New Madrid south, combining started on Monday and brought favorable reports. The region north and west of Sikeston will start harvesting a few days later, and the wheat averages are reported good.

A survey in the west and southwest section, showed wheat averaging from 35 bushels per acre up to 55 bushels.

The increase in yields, in all cases, include a number of spots drowned out due to the heavy spring rains. If small acreages were taken, many cases would send the yield up to 60 bushels per acre.

Drop in wheat acreage planting had one bright spot for the grower, in that the price is now $1.70 per bushel, or 40 cents more than last year.

All wheat buyers will tell you that they expect smaller storage capacities this year, as the acreage in this area has been reduced greatly over previous years.

Combining over the Bootheel will last another ten days to two weeks, the time needed to bring the moisture content to the level desired and the area periods which mature at a later date, compared to the lower bootheel, which had a head start.

The wheat buyers show a moisture content in the first week which ranges from 14.2 to a high of 16 per cent, with the weight acreage around 59 pounds per bushel.

Any number of farmers are plowing their wheat ground and will plant the acreage in soybeans, which should boost the soybean acreage in the bootheel considerably.

Others will put their land to grade before putting in the soybean crop, if there is still enough time for the growing season.

A few of the area farmers were visited, while others who reported to the wheat buyers, had a varying range of production.

Robert Green, Matthews, had a high of 56 bushels on a number of acres, with an overall average of 47-48 on his total of 120 acres.

A. J. Croom, route three, who lives east of Canalou, had a low moisture content but early heavy water damage, that brought his yields in the upper 30s.

Dale Geske, Canalou, will have a yield in the upper 40s on a total of 68 acres, with a moisture content of 14.7 per cent. When finished with combining, he will plant the acreage in soybeans.

Teachers Spend Time In Touring Sikeston

A Missouriana Tour, consisting of 33 teachers, and two leaders, arrived in Sikeston Friday for an overnight stay, to visit the Potlatch Forests, Inc., and the Sikeston public schools.

Sponsored by the Central State College, Warrensburg, and the Missouri Chamber of Commerce, Jack Pearson, the director of publications, Jefferson City, and Dr. Agnes Horton, professor of history, Warrensburg State College, are in charge.

It was the 14th annual tour, and lasts for two weeks, traveling a total of almost 1,100 miles, and making at least 12 city stopovers.

The college course consists of the two weeks tour, and one week of class work to orient the teachers with economic conditions and basic industrial institutions.

The Womens Division of the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce were hosts to the group, and treated the visitors to a barbequed ribs and beef dinner last night at the Security National Bank community room. Mrs. Jolene Walker, president of the local group, gave the address of welcome, and told of the highlights of Sikeston.

Mr. Pearson described the tour over the two weeks and praised leaders in Sikeston for their fine hospitality over the six previous tours to this city, and led to this visit.

The tour started with a visit to the Hallmark Cards and Southwestern Bell Telephone

615 to Attend Girls' State At Columbia Next Week

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- Faculty and staff members of the University of Missouri School of Journalism will participate in the 25th "Sterling Silver" session of Missouri Girls' State, June 19-25. The girls will take a tour on June 23 of the School of Journalism, where they will be greeted and addressed by Milton E. Gross, assistant dean and professor of journalism and faculty members of the several departments.

Girls' State is being held on the campus of Stephens College, Columbia. It is sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, Department of Missouri.

The week of "experience in democracy" for approximately 615 selected girls, who will be seniors this fall in Missouri high schools, involves the setting up of replicas of local, county and state governments including campaigns and elections.

M. Maude Freeland, University extension editor in journalism, is in charge of Girls' State journalism classes, which emphasize the relationship be-

20 Area Youths Attend Boys' State

Twenty area boys left today for Warrensburg to attend Missouri Boys' State, which will be held June 18-25 at Central Missouri State College.

Boys' State, sponsored by the American Legion, is a state political structure in miniature, from city through county and state levels. All citizens may vote and are eligible to hold the office. The program aims to provide practical training in government by enabling boys to participate in the various agencies of the state.

Educational, legal, professional, civic and business leaders staff all counseling departments of Boys' State.

The 960 high school seniors participating will be divided into two political parties for the elections.

Climax of the week-long session will be selection of two delegates to represent Missouri at Boys' Nation in Washington.

Area boys -- nonresidents of Sikeston -- attending are:

DEXTER -- David R. Cowan, John M. Agey and Larry S. Demaree.

CHARLESTON -- Bradley A. Fenton, Jon P. Carson, John L. Hequembourg and Charles I. Lutz.

EAST PRAIRIE -- Billie R. Cooper, Terry J. Hopgood, James S. Hodge, Kenton J. Hunter and Richard Reed Jr.

CHAFFEE -- James M. Stubbs Jr., Kenneth J. Richbourg, Loman Kent Duniphan, William C. Talley and Randy L. Scheeter.

LILBOURN -- Michael M. Baughman.

Cracked Picture Frame Shows Every Day Is Father's Day in Home of Marine

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

EL MONTE, Calif. (AP) — A framed photo of a marine in Viet Nam will be the center of Father's Day attention at the Frederick Wayne Wilson home Sunday — but there's nothing unusual about that.

Every day is Father's Day with the Wilson family: wife Gloria, 21, 2-year-old Tammy and 10-month-old Fred Jr.

The photo symbolizes one family's solution to a problem faced by many young couples: how to keep the memory of daddy strong for the children while he's fighting a war?

The glass covering the photo of Sgt. Wilson, a reconnaissance patrol leader in Chu Lai, is cracked from what his wife calls "too much loving." She has no intention of replacing it.

"When Fred left," Mrs. Wilson said in an interview with Sheila Grattan of the Alhambra Post-Advocate, "we made plans to keep the presence of father as strong as possible in our home. We feel children need to be aware of their father . . . not forget his importance."

They had seen newsreels of soldier homecomings where the father was a stranger to the children. And they knew military wives who found it easier to ignore the existence of the father during long separations.

Little Tammy kisses the picture of her daddy morning and night. Another visual symbol is a Marine doll in full - dress blues.

"That's my daddy," Tammy shouts as she points it out to visitors.

Tammy also helps wrap cookies and candies, which are sent to her father regularly.

And there are letters. Wilson writes an average of five a week.

"I sit Tammy down and read to her all the parts she can understand," Mrs. Wilson says. She reads and rereads his letters and she writes him nightly — discussing Tammy and little Fred's development, discipline problems, "the cute things the children do."

Double Accident Sends Four To Second Hospital

A double accident Friday at 3:20 p.m., two miles north of Fredericktown on highway 67 when a 1963 Chevrolet, driven by Viola McKinney, 63, Whittier, Calif., attempted to pass another car, when both hit on the shoulder, after she lost control.

He husband, George McKinney, 65, received a bad head injury and was taken to the Fredericktown hospital, and later transferred to a St. Louis hospital. While enroute, the ambulance met in another accident at the junction of highway 67 and 110 near DeSoto.

A car driven by Judith Boyer, 18, Cadette, attempted to pull off the highway when the ambulance approached, causing her to skid in front of the ambulance, driven by John Simpson, 57, Fredericktown.

Injured in the second accident were, Miss Boyer, with a fractured pelvis; Helen Resinger, 41, Farmington, with a back injury, and John Bust, 18, Potosi, a passenger in the Boyer car, who received cuts and bruises.

All were taken to the Jefferson County Memorial Hospital, Crystal City.

In a accident Friday at 12:55 p.m. on I-55, a 1966 International tractor and trailer, driven by William Ray, 32, Shreveport, La., lost control and overturned, 15 miles south of Sikeston.

He was taken to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital, with injuries to his forehead and thumb.

SUMMER SAFETY

Summer begins June 21 and brings with it special hazards. The pleasures of water sports will be enjoyed by many millions of people, and they will carry with them special dangers.

Swimming is still the chief problem and basic rules of safety should be observed always -- never swim alone, after eating or when overly tired; don't overestimate your ability and swim at protected pools or beaches, preferably under the supervision of someone trained in live-saving techniques; never dive into unknown waters and if a boat overturns, stay with it and don't try to swim a long distance to shore.

But now water safety is more complex. Proper management of the home swimming pool is a matter of concern to many thousands of families. Skin diving, water skiing and surf-boarding are specialized sports requiring particular care and knowledge.

This summer a greater variety of water sports are available than ever before -- let's make them safer too.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CENTENNIAL

The Christian Science Church held its annual meeting in Boston on Monday (June 6).

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE traces its centennial to an event in the life of its founder, Mary Baker Eddy. The almost instant healing of a severe injury in 1866 was, in Mrs. Eddy's own words, "the falling apple that led me to the discovery."

The discovery is not simply defined. Mrs. Eddy has written: "I knew the principle of all harmonious Mind-action to be God, and that cures were produced in primitive Christian healing by holy, uplifting faith; but I must know the Science of this healing, and I won my way to absolute conclusions through divine revelation, reason, and demonstration."

Mrs. Eddy did not at first expect to found a distinct church or denomination. She hoped that what she called her discovery would be accepted soon by existing churches. However, in a short time a distinct church became necessary to facilitate cooperation among Christian Scientists, to present Christian Science to other people, and to maintain the purity of teaching and practice. Mrs. Eddy with her followers founded the Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston in 1879.

BEFORE LONG, a central or Mother Church became necessary. So in 1892 the Christian Science Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, was founded in Boston. There are now more than 3,300 branches in more than 50 countries, all looking to the Mother Church as their center.

The heavy concentration of branches of course remains in the United States. Christian Science has large followings also in Britain and Germany. Today the church has a healing ministry carried on by more than 7,000 full-time public Christian Scientist practitioners in more than 40 countries.

The church maintains an extensive network of public reading rooms, supported by local branches, around the world, also a Board of Lectureship that provides for more than 4,500 talks a year. Incidentally, Erwin D. Canham, editor in chief of the Christian Science Monitor, is engaged in a year-long, world-wide series of lectures on "The Spiritual Revolution" which began in Sydney, Australia, on March 1.

IN ADDITION to the Monitor, which is generally ranked as among the best newspapers in this country by newspapermen regardless of faith--and which does not "push" Christian Science--the church provides a radio series that is braodcast by some 950 stations in several countries. It supports an armed services ministry that includes 447 lay workers as well as commissioned chaplains. Student organizations function in more than 400 colleges and universities.

The theology of Christian Science begins with the propositions that God is the only might or Mind, that He is "the divine Principle of all that really is." To define God further, Christian Science employs frequently the the word Good, besides such terms as Life, Truth, Love, Soul, Spirit, and Infinite Person.

The religion places a high emphasis on reason as well as spirit. Healing is an integral but not an over-reaching part of the faith. On the contrary, Scientists regard their religion as applicable to every human need.

By its very nature, Christian Science is optimistic and forward-looking. It is accused by some of putting a gloss on nature. But as it observes its rather arbitrary centennial, it is very much alive and kicking.

POEM FOR FATHER'S DAY

By Grace V. Watkins

My Father's hands were weather-brown.
Sometimes I saw them reaching down
To help a little child whose feet
Had stumbled on a rugged street.
Sometimes I saw them reaching out
To wrap a woolen cloak about
A traveler chilled with winter rain
Across a midnight - darkened plain.
And often in a twilight hour
I saw them clasped in humble prayer.
Oh, that my hands may ever be
As dedicated, Lord, to Thee!

LIKE DREAMS

Eugene F. Rinta, Director of Research of the Council of State Chambers of Commerce, has made an analysis of the proposed federal budget. And some of his findings point to dangers that are of the most direct interest to us all.

Appropriation requests come to a little under $100 billion. But when the new spending authority asked is added in, the figure becomes $112.4 billion.

The interest cost alone on the cumulative deficit of $36.3 billion for the six consecutive deficit years of 1961 through 1966 is $1.3 billion a year. And unless Congress substantially reduces this new spending authority, further deficits beyond 1966 are assured.

It would not be surprising if the final expenditure total for 1966 is ever greater than the budget estimate. For one thing, estimates of receipts could prove overly-optimistic, based as they are on the assumption that unbroken economic expansion will continue.

The implications in all this are of the utmost seriousness. At the top of the list is the possibility of more inflation -- of further degradation of our 48-cent dollar. If that happens, the dramatic goals that are now contemplated will fade like dreams.

MULTIBILLION DOLLAR DEEDS

Four southern investor-owned electric companies recently announced plans for joint development of a huge electric power pool. This has brought strong editorial praise from leading newspapers in the area. A typical comment was made by the Charleston, South Carolina, News and Courier when it said: "The financial strength of the four companies enables them to chart a program costing $4.4 billion by 1981. This capital comes from private investments. It will not take a penny from the taxpayers. Indeed it will create additional property on which taxes will be paid."

This joint company action is typical of what is going on throughout the country. Taking advantage of dramatic technological advances, such as extra-high-voltage transmission lines, groups of utilities are carrying pooling and interconnection arrangements forward at a spectacularly swift pace. Huge regions are thus assured of the ultimate in power service at minimum rates. It is certain that any conceivable demand, by any category of consumer, will be met. Every form of energy--oil, coal, water, the atom -- is involved.

The investor-owned utilities are proving, with multibillion dollar deeds financed by private earnings and savings, that there is not the slightest justification for socialized government power developments in the United States.

HANMUM IS HASSLE IN ANYBODY'S BOOK

A Chinese newspaper can't be read without knowing at least 1,000 picture words (or Hanmum, Chinese ideographs), the Catholic Digest finds.

Imagine yourself memorizing the design on an Oriental rug, and you have an idea of how the heart sinks at the prospect of memorizing intricate Chinese characters. Some of them have as many as 40 strokes. And 1,000 characters is only a novice's level. University professors should know at least 20,000.

Confucian respect for elders dominates - and complicates -- the language. Every verb has a different form to show the degree of respect the speaker wishes to pay to the person addressed. Humility is foremost. An error in this respect is far more offensive than any error in mere grammar, vocabulary, or pronunciation.

NO GREATER DUTY

Numbers of members of Congress, confronted with a $100 billion budget, are worrying about where the money is to come from. They also could profitably worry about what the money will be worth.

There is more and more talk about possible new waves of inflation. If this happens, the lower income families, who are supposed to be helped by new and expanded federal programs, will be hardest hit.

The government can have no greater duty than to protect what is left of the dollar's value. All programs, all appropriations, should be considered with that end always in view.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- President Johnson's favorite method of proving that the people support his policies is to triumphantly pull public opinion polls out of his pocket.

To senate committee chairmen who were summoned to the White House the other day to discuss legislation, however, he confessed that the polls showed a falling off of support for him on Viet Nam.

This did not mean, he said, that the doves were overtaking the hawks. Hauling a huge fistful of polls out of his pocket, he recited figures that showed the people did not want to pull out of Viet Nam, but to press the war more vigorously.

The Wyoming poll, for example, claimed that 85 per cent of those questioned felt the President wasn't doing enough to win the war.

This roused Senate Foreign Relations Chairman William Fulbright, D-Ark., the senate's leading dove.

Pointing an accusing finger at Sen. Russell Long, D-La., an outspoken hawk, Fulbright blurted: "See, it's your damn hawks who are giving the President hell. It isn't me".

BEAUTY PARLOR WRATH

The Senate Beauty Shop is a place where senators' wives are waited on by young beauty operators addicted to movie magazines, teasing, and wiggy, go-go hairdos.

Their problem is to make the middle - aged senator's wife look as she sees herself 30 years ago, and since congressional beauty shops charge half the going rate of downtown shops, they are always filled with hopefuls.

One such was Sen. McClellan's wife.

Mrs. McClellan had patiently directed the placing and winding of each front curl, much to the annoyance of the operator. Finally, in order to finish the back without advice, the operator swung the chair around, away from a view of the mirror.

Mrs. McClellan exploded. In a fury she tore out each meticulously placed curler.

Another operator finished the job.

PUBLICITY PAYS PUBLIC

When congressmen operate in the full spotlight of the press they frequently operate differently than when behind closed doors. This was demonstrated when Rep. Wright Patman, the crusading, crusty congressman from Texarkana, Tex., prevented a probe of large banking instutitions from being scuttled last week. Had 17 members of the Banking and Currency Committee been able to force a vote behind closed doors, the probe would have been killed.

However, with the help of Reps. Charles Weltner, the Georgia Liberal, and Henry Gonzalez of San Antonio, first Mexican - American elected from Texas, Chairman Patman finally "persuaded" the 17-- a majority of the 32-member committee - to back down.

It took a long battle, which began when Rep. Lud Ashley of Toledo, champion of the Cleveland Trust Company, saw newsmen in the hearing room. He shouted at Patman:

"Mr. Chairman, a point of order: Shouldn't this be an executive, rather than an open session?"

Ashley was supported by Rep. William B. Widnall, R-N. J., ranking member of the committee's 11 Republicans, and several Democrats, including William Moorhead, D-Pa., who votes liberal on most things except the banks. His father once represented the Frick coal interests of Pittsburgh and Helen Frick sent him a contribution of $1,000 when he first ran for congress.

"I don't know of any rule requiring a closed session," replied Patman. "The public has a right to know what we do here. I want the press to attend. We've got nothing to hide in this banking investigation."

Patman cited House Res. 133, authorizing the committee and its subcommittees to conduct studies, issue subpoenas and hold hearings -- in the open.

"I am happy to have the public spotlight on this probe of banking institutions," he declared. "Some of the big ones are being run by dummy groups, or nominees, which hide the identity of the controlling stockholders."

This referred to Ashley's friends, the Cleveland Trust, which is controlled by a dummy partnership, the A. A. Welsh Co. Ashley, unabashed, countered with a motion which would have crippled the committee's right to subpoena bank executives, but insisted that the vote on his motion be taken behind closed doors, obviously to hide the identity of those supporting it.

PERSISTENT BANK CHAMPION

After he had filibustered at some length, the Ohio Democrat was told by the impatient Patman: "You've got your choice -- to talk or to vote here in the open."

"It's twelve o'clock," Ashley replied, pointing to the clock on the wall. "The house is in session. If this committee continues this meeting, it is out of order."

"You are right," agreed Patman. "However, the committee will continue after the house adjourns this afternoon. I intend to meet until we settle this matter of our subpoena power IN THE OPEN."

Patman's perseverance paid off. When he finally got the committee back into an open session at 5:15 P.M., Ashley, Moorehead, Widnall and their supporters were ready to toss in the sponge rather than operate in a glare of publicity. Ashley withdrew his motion to cripple the probe. Another motion by Weltner, approving subpoenas, was adopted.

The 17 congressmen who favored a secret vote were six Democrats -- Ashley, Moorhead, Robert Stephens, Ga., Tom Gettys, S. C., Richard Ottinger, N. Y., and John Hansen, Iowa, together with 11 Republicans -- Widnall, Paul Fino, and Seymour Halpern of N. Y., Florence Dwyer, N. J., James Harvey, Mich., Bill Brock, Tenn., Burt Talcott and Del Clawson, Calif., Albert W. Johnson, Pa., J. William Stanton, Ohio, and Chester Mize, Kans.

Dubinsky Sears Anti-Humphrey Liberals; Gives H. H. H. Powerful Backing in Bob Kennedy's Home State.

New York: -- Typically, it was an intimate party. Just 1,200 friends dropped into the hotel to eat some food, drink some whiskey, cry a little and cheer a lot as "little Dave" Dubinsky said farewell to those in the ladies' garment union who had been close to him.

But that night farewell was prelude. History was tailored as skillfully as any $400 cloak or suit.

For on the dais with "D. D." and his soft - voiced successor, Louis Stullberg, was the big union's only honorary member -- Hubert Humphrey, otherwise known as vice president of the U. S.

Somewhere amidst the tears and cheers, Dubinsky turned to Mr. Humphrey and told him, "We are with you all the way."

And somewhere in the audience someone shouted loudly, "On to the White House."

The cry was lost amidst the roar which followed D. D.'s words. Dubinsky, whom Lyndon Johnson has called his "teacher", is given to many words, but everyone is meaningful. He is the master of pins and needles.

And skillfully he cut the pattern the other night, pinning a little here and needling a little there.

What he said about Hubert Humphrey was an expression of confidence. It will be taken by many -- and was -- as an expression of preference.

This is, after all, the home state of Senator Robert Kennedy. The historicity of recent politics, the razor - edged rivalry inside the liberal movements of the land, the sotto - voce reports of the differences between Lyndon Johnson and Bob Kennedy -- all are evidence of a Capulet and Montague division which has befallen the liberal wing of the Democratic party.

And now Dubinsky, quite gillingly, was playing Juliet to Humphrey's Romeo.

There can be no doubt that Dave Dubinsky is a powerful figure in the history of president making, and his role on the stage of the Hotel Astor's grand ballroom that night was as significant as any he has played since Franklin Roosevelt was elected.

Head on, he smashed into the liberals who were impugning Hubert Humphrey's motives.

"He has the guts to fight for principles," shouted D. D. "He fought for liberal causes when they were not popular. He fights for them now."

Later D. D. told a friend, "Humphrey is fighting for what he thinks is right on the Viet Nam issue. I'm convinced he believes it. I'm certain he's certain of the issues and fights through conviction and not just because he is vice president under Lyndon Johnson."

At the microphone, Dubinsky roared at the liberal critics of the man from Minnesota.

"Where were the professors when Stalin killed the Jewish writers, Erlich and Alter?" asked D. D. "I never saw them picket any Russian embassies.

"Where were they when Stalin killed the Jewish doctors? Where were they when the Russians approved pogroms? Where were they when Khrushchev persecuted the Jews?

"Now we know where the so-called liberals are. They are picketing because we are not dancing to the Soviet tunes.

"Well, peace does not mean surrender. We do not need another Munich."

Every word was significant -- as was the occasion. Dubinsky has just returned from Europe and the Near East. He had been abroad last month when he had accepted in absentia an award from the Americans for Democratic Action (ADA).

His statement to that convention, where many had tried to pillory Hubert, read by Gus Tyler, the garment union's assistant president, said in part: "It took courage for him as the Senator from Minnesota to accept the chairmanship of ADA. It takes courage for him now to continue his battle as champion of liberalism on both the domestic and international front.

". . . In accepting the honor bestowed upon me tonight, I am pleased to do so not as an outsider, but as one who identifies himself with ADA, and with one of its most celebrated founders, Hubert Humphrey, and with the ideal of free men in a free world."

Thus then and the other night D. D. embraced H. H. H. And Dubinsky is no mere rhetorical liberal. He is an actionist.

He and the hatters' Alex Rose built the New York Liberal Party. It gave the late John Kennedy the balance of power in the balance - of - power state in '60.

Its voice is heard and respected, even feared, in powerful Democratic circles. It is one of the strongest blocs of unseen votes at Democratic conventions. And on the night of the farewell party, D. D. said H. H. is his friend "all the way."

And Dubinsky plans to be around for a long time--especially now on the political scene.

The other night's performance was the curtain raiser for just Act One.

An Editor's Outlook

END NEIGHBORHOOD SCHOOLS?

LAST month, U.S. Commissioner of Education Harold Howe II made a little-noticed speech to the City Club of Chicago which deserves a lot of attention.

For this powerful federal official, with billions of dollars at his command, is apparently dedicated to the destruction of the neighborhood schools and bussing of children long distances from their homes.

Said Commissioner Howe, as quoted, on page A 2946 of the May 31 Congressional Record: "Traditional school district boundaries often serve education badly and may have to be changed . . . .We could, for example, alter political boundaries to bring the social, economic, and intellectual strengths of the suburbs to bear on the problems of the city schools.

Building programs for the future could be planned so that new schools break up, rather than continue, segregation of both the racial and economic sort. The Office of Education will provide Federal planning funds for such efforts right now . . . .and if I have my way the Office will provide construction funds before long.

"We have recently been considering financial support for a comprehensive study of a system of educational parks to be established within the inner city. We visualize each of these centralized school complexes as educational centers that would provide classes ranging from prekindergarten through junior college.

"And we are particularly interested in finding one or two great American cities that are adventurous enough to join us in planning the educational park of the future. These entities will house 20,000 or more pupils, and will cut across all geographic, economic and social boundaries to draw students. While such a park would deny the neighborhood school, it would express the vitality, the imagination, and the cultural mix that every vigorous city exemplifies."

Well, there you have it. "The educational park of the future." The use of government funds "if I have my way," not merely to plan but to construct super-schools to which even pre-kindergarteners will be transported to provide a "cultural mix." This, remember, is the U.S. Commissioner of Education speaking.

WHEN federal aid to education was first proposed you remember that doubters expressed the fear that this would open the way for federal direction of America's public education. The proponents vigorously denied this. All that was wanted, they swore, was to enlist the federal government helping in improving schools that would still be under "local control."

Now, what is Commissioner Howe up to? He would take money from all the taxpayers living in all school districts and use part of it for special construction bonuses for cities that adopted his plan. Such a special bonus, conferred upon the few made up of funds contributed by the many, is the same as a penalty against the many. This, then would be a form of punishment levied against all school districts that didn't fall in with Commissioner Howe's scheme.

WHEN agitation was started to create some form of "cultural mix" by hauling children long distances to schools in strange neighborhoods the outcry from parents, particularly in New York City area, was loud. In a subsequent opinion even the U.S. Supreme Court disclaimed any intention of outlawing the right of a parent to send his child to the school closest to home.

And even the far-out social theorists, who revel in compulsion designed to achieve noble aims, were reluctant to grasp the nettle of picking specific pupils to go to specific schools. But Commissioner Howe has apparently solved the problem. He would destroy the neighborhood school, itself. It would do parents no good to move around, seeking a better school environment for their children. If they lived in a city in which five per cent of school age children were Negroes, the "educational park of the future", with its 20,000 or more pupils, would be five per cent Negro. And if the Negro school population were 60 per cent, the superschools would be the same.

Some unreconstructed parents might then attempt to move out of the city school district altogether, to flee to the suburbs. But Mr. Howe has prepared a whammy for them.

YOU recall that he said: "We could, for example, alter political boundaries to bring the social, economic, and intellectual strengths of the suburbs to bear on the problems of the city schools."

What else can you read into this except that Commissioner Howe is prepared to rush in where the Supreme Court feared to tread? And the power behind the revolution he seeks to engineer are the dollars taken from all citizens which, his boys were swearing a year ago, would never be used in any attempt at federal direction.

SUMMER SAFETY

Summer begins June 21 and brings with it special hazards. The pleasures of water sports will be enjoyed by many millions of people, and they will carry with them special dangers.

Swimming is still the chief problem and basic rules of safety should be observed always -- never swim alone, after eating or when overly tired; don't overestimate your ability and swim at protected pools or beaches, preferably under the supervision of someone trained in live-saving techniques; never dive into unknown waters and if a boat overturns, stay with it and don't try to swim a long distance to shore.

But now water safety is more complex. Proper management of the home swimming pool is a matter of concern to many thousands of families. Skin diving, water skiing and surf-boarding are specialized sports requiring particular care and knowledge.

This summer a greater variety of water sports are available than ever before -- let's make them safer too.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CENTENNIAL

The Christian Science Church held its annual meeting in Boston on Monday (June 6).

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE traces its centennial to an event in the life of its founder, Mary Baker Eddy. The almost instant healing of a severe injury in 1866 was, in Mrs. Eddy's own words, "the falling apple that led me to the discovery."

The discovery is not simply defined. Mrs. Eddy has written: "I knew the principle of all harmonious Mind-action to be God, and that cures were produced in primitive Christian healing by holy, uplifting faith; but I must know the Science of this healing, and I won my way to absolute conclusions through divine revelation, reason, and demonstration."

Mrs. Eddy did not at first expect to found a distinct church or denomination. She hoped that what she called her discovery would be accepted soon by existing churches. However, in a short time a distinct church became necessary to facilitate cooperation among Christian Scientists, to present Christian Science to other people, and to maintain the purity of teaching and practice. Mrs. Eddy with her followers founded the Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston in 1879.

BEFORE LONG, a central or Mother Church became necessary. So in 1892 the Christian Science Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, was founded in Boston. There are now more than 3,300 branches in more than 50 countries, all looking to the Mother Church as their center.

The heavy concentration of branches of course remains in the United States. Christian Science has large followings also in Britain and Germany. Today the church has a healing ministry carried on by more than 7,000 full-time public Christian Scientist practitioners in more than 40 countries.

The church maintains an extensive network of public reading rooms, supported by local branches, around the world, also a Board of Lectureship that provides for more than 4,500 talks a year. Incidentally, Erwin D. Canham, editor in chief of the Christian Science Monitor, is engaged in a year-long, world-wide series of lectures on "The Spiritual Revolution" which began in Sydney, Australia, on March 1.

IN ADDITION to the Monitor, which is generally ranked as among the best newspapers in this country by newspapermen regardless of faith--and which does not "push" Christian Science--the church provides a radio series that is braodcast by some 950 stations in several countries. It supports an armed services ministry that includes 447 lay workers as well as commissioned chaplains. Student organizations function in more than 400 colleges and universities.

The theology of Christian Science begins with the propositions that God is the only might or Mind, that He is "the divine Principle of all that really is." To define God further, Christian Science employs frequently the the word Good, besides such terms as Life, Truth, Love, Soul, Spirit, and Infinite Person.

The religion places a high emphasis on reason as well as spirit. Healing is an integral but not an over-reaching part of the faith. On the contrary, Scientists regard their religion as applicable to every human need.

By its very nature, Christian Science is optimistic and forward-looking. It is accused by some of putting a gloss on nature. But as it observes its rather arbitrary centennial, it is very much alive and kicking.

POEM FOR FATHER'S DAY

By Grace V. Watkins

My Father's hands were weather-brown.
Sometimes I saw them reaching down
To help a little child whose feet
Had stumbled on a rugged street.
Sometimes I saw them reaching out
To wrap a woolen cloak about
A traveler chilled with winter rain
Across a midnight - darkened plain.
And often in a twilight hour
I saw them clasped in humble prayer.
Oh, that my hands may ever be
As dedicated, Lord, to Thee!

LIKE DREAMS

Eugene F. Rinta, Director of Research of the Council of State Chambers of Commerce, has made an analysis of the proposed federal budget. And some of his findings point to dangers that are of the most direct interest to us all.

Appropriation requests come to a little under $100 billion. But when the new spending authority asked is added in, the figure becomes $112.4 billion.

The interest cost alone on the cumulative deficit of $36.3 billion for the six consecutive deficit years of 1961 through 1966 is $1.3 billion a year. And unless Congress substantially reduces this new spending authority, further deficits beyond 1966 are assured.

It would not be surprising if the final expenditure total for 1966 is ever greater than the budget estimate. For one thing, estimates of receipts could prove overly-optimistic, based as they are on the assumption that unbroken economic expansion will continue.

The implications in all this are of the utmost seriousness. At the top of the list is the possibility of more inflation -- of further degradation of our 48-cent dollar. If that happens, the dramatic goals that are now contemplated will fade like dreams.

MULTIBILLION DOLLAR DEEDS

Four southern investor-owned electric companies recently announced plans for joint development of a huge electric power pool. This has brought strong editorial praise from leading newspapers in the area. A typical comment was made by the Charleston, South Carolina, News and Courier when it said: "The financial strength of the four companies enables them to chart a program costing $4.4 billion by 1981. This capital comes from private investments. It will not take a penny from the taxpayers. Indeed it will create additional property on which taxes will be paid."

This joint company action is typical of what is going on throughout the country. Taking advantage of dramatic technological advances, such as extra-high-voltage transmission lines, groups of utilities are carrying pooling and interconnection arrangements forward at a spectacularly swift pace. Huge regions are thus assured of the ultimate in power service at minimum rates. It is certain that any conceivable demand, by any category of consumer, will be met. Every form of energy--oil, coal, water, the atom -- is involved.

The investor-owned utilities are proving, with multibillion dollar deeds financed by private earnings and savings, that there is not the slightest justification for socialized government power developments in the United States.

HANMUM IS HASSLE IN ANYBODY'S BOOK

A Chinese newspaper can't be read without knowing at least 1,000 picture words (or Hanmum, Chinese ideographs), the Catholic Digest finds.

Imagine yourself memorizing the design on an Oriental rug, and you have an idea of how the heart sinks at the prospect of memorizing intricate Chinese characters. Some of them have as many as 40 strokes. And 1,000 characters is only a novice's level. University professors should know at least 20,000.

Confucian respect for elders dominates - and complicates -- the language. Every verb has a different form to show the degree of respect the speaker wishes to pay to the person addressed. Humility is foremost. An error in this respect is far more offensive than any error in mere grammar, vocabulary, or pronunciation.

A stern father was taking his little son Johnny for a walk in the park when suddenly a honeybee settled on a rock in front of them. Just for spite, the boy smashed it with a rock, whereupon his father, said, "That was cruel, and for being cruel you'll get no honey for a whole year."

Later, Johnny deliberately stepped on a butterfly. "And for that, young man," said the father, "you'll get no butter for a year."

When they returned home, Johnny's mother was busy fixing dinner. Just as they entered the kitchen, she spied a cockroach and immediately crushed it. The little boy looked at his father impishly, and said: "Shall I tell her, Dad, or will you?"

NO GREATER DUTY

Numbers of members of Congress, confronted with a $100 billion budget, are worrying about where the money is to come from. They also could profitably worry about what the money will be worth.

There is more and more talk about possible new waves of inflation. If this happens, the lower income families, who are supposed to be helped by new and expanded federal programs, will be hardest hit.

The government can have no greater duty than to protect what is left of the dollar's value. All programs, all appropriations, should be considered with that end always in view.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- President Johnson's favorite method of proving that the people support his policies is to triumphantly pull public opinion polls out of his pocket.

To senate committee chairmen who were summoned to the White House the other day to discuss legislation, however, he confessed that the polls showed a falling off of support for him on Viet Nam.

This did not mean, he said, that the doves were overtaking the hawks. Hauling a huge fistful of polls out of his pocket, he recited figures that showed the people did not want to pull out of Viet Nam, but to press the war more vigorously.

The Wyoming poll, for example, claimed that 85 per cent of those questioned felt the President wasn't doing enough to win the war.

This roused Senate Foreign Relations Chairman William Fulbright, D-Ark., the senate's leading dove.

Pointing an accusing finger at Sen. Russell Long, D-La., an outspoken hawk, Fulbright blurted: "See, it's your damn hawks who are giving the President hell. It isn't me".

BEAUTY PARLOR WRATH

The Senate Beauty Shop is a place where senators' wives are waited on by young beauty operators addicted to movie magazines, teasing, and wiggy, go-go hairdos.

Their problem is to make the middle - aged senator's wife look as she sees herself 30 years ago, and since congressional beauty shops charge half the going rate of downtown shops, they are always filled with hopefuls.

One such was Sen. McClellan's wife.

Mrs. McClellan had patiently directed the placing and winding of each front curl, much to the annoyance of the operator. Finally, in order to finish the back without advice, the operator swung the chair around, away from a view of the mirror.

Mrs. McClellan exploded. In a fury she tore out each meticulously placed curler.

Another operator finished the job.

PUBLICITY PAYS PUBLIC

When congressmen operate in the full spotlight of the press they frequently operate differently than when behind closed doors. This was demonstrated when Rep. Wright Patman, the crusading, crusty congressman from Texarkana, Tex., prevented a probe of large banking instutitions from being scuttled last week. Had 17 members of the Banking and Currency Committee been able to force a vote behind closed doors, the probe would have been killed.

However, with the help of Reps. Charles Weltner, the Georgia Liberal, and Henry Gonzalez of San Antonio, first Mexican - American elected from Texas, Chairman Patman finally "persuaded" the 17-- a majority of the 32-member committee - to back down.

It took a long battle, which began when Rep. Lud Ashley of Toledo, champion of the Cleveland Trust Company, saw newsmen in the hearing room. He shouted at Patman:

"Mr. Chairman, a point of order: Shouldn't this be an executive, rather than an open session?"

Ashley was supported by Rep. William B. Widnall, R-N. J., ranking member of the committee's 11 Republicans, and several Democrats, including William Moorhead, D-Pa., who votes liberal on most things except the banks. His father once represented the Frick coal interests of Pittsburgh and Helen Frick sent him a contribution of $1,000 when he first ran for congress.

"I don't know of any rule requiring a closed session," replied Patman. "The public has a right to know what we do here. I want the press to attend. We've got nothing to hide in this banking investigation."

Patman cited House Res. 133, authorizing the committee and its subcommittees to conduct studies, issue subpoenas and hold hearings -- in the open.

"I am happy to have the public spotlight on this probe of banking institutions," he declared. "Some of the big ones are being run by dummy groups, or nominees, which hide the identity of the controlling stockholders."

This referred to Ashley's friends, the Cleveland Trust, which is controlled by a dummy partnership, the A.A. Welsh Co. Ashley, unabashed, countered with a motion which would have crippled the committee's right to subpoena bank executives, but insisted that the vote on his motion be taken behind closed doors, obviously to hide the identity of those supporting it.

PERSISTENT BANK CHAMPION

After he had filibustered at some length, the Ohio Democrat was told by the impatient Patman: "You've got your choice -- to talk or to vote here in the open."

"It's twelve o'clock," Ashley replied, pointing to the clock on the wall. "The house is in session. If this committee continues this meeting, it is out of order."

"You are right," agreed Patman. "However, the committee will continue after the house adjourns this afternoon. I intend to meet until we settle this matter of our subpoena power IN THE OPEN."

Patman's perseverance paid off. When he finally got the committee back into an open session at 5:15 P.M., Ashley, Moorehead, Widnall and their supporters were ready to toss in the sponge rather than operate in a glare of publicity. Ashley withdrew his motion to cripple the probe. Another motion by Weltner, approving subpoenas, was adopted.

The 17 congressmen who favored a secret vote were six Democrats -- Ashley, Moorhead, Robert Stephens, Ga., Tom Gettys, S. C., Richard Ottinger, N. Y., and John Hansen, Iowa, together with 11 Republicans -- Widnall, Paul Fino, and Seymour Halpern of N. Y., Florence Dwyer, N. J., James Harvey, Mich., Bill Brock, Tenn., Burt Talcott and Del Clawson, Calif., Albert W. Johnson, Pa., J. William Stanton, Ohio, and Chester Mize, Kans.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Dubinsky Sears Anti-Humphrey Liberals; Gives H. H. H. Powerful Backing in Bob Kennedy's Home State.

New York: -- Typically, it was an intimate party. Just 1,200 friends dropped into the hotel to eat some food, drink some whiskey, cry a little and cheer a lot as "little Dave" Dubinsky said farewell to those in the ladies' garment union who had been close to him.

But that night farewell was prelude. History was tailored as skillfully as any $400 cloak or suit.

For on the dais with "D. D." and his soft - voiced successor, Louis Stullberg, was the big union's only honorary member -- Hubert Humphrey, otherwise known as vice president of the U. S.

Somewhere amidst the tears and cheers, Dubinsky turned to Mr. Humphrey and told him, "We are with you all the way."

And somewhere in the audience someone shoutedloudly, "On to the White House."

The cry was lost amidst the roar which followed D. D.'s words. Dubinsky, whom Lyndon Johnson has called his "teacher", is given to many words, but everyone is meaningful. He is the master of pins and needles.

And skillfully he cut the pattern the other night, pinning a little here and needling a little there.

What he said about Hubert Humphrey was an expression of confidence. It will be taken by many -- and was -- as an expression of preference.

This is, after all, the home state of Senator Robert Kennedy. The historicity of recent politics, the razor - edged rivalry inside the liberal movements of the land, the sotto - voce reports of the differences between Lyndon Johnson and Bob Kennedy -- all are evidence of a Capulet and Montague division which has befallen the liberal wing of the Democratic party.

And now Dubinsky, quite qillingly, was playing Juliet to Humphrey's Romeo.

There can be no doubt that Dave Dubinsky is a powerful figure in the history of president making, and his role on the stage of the Hotel Astor's grand ballroom that night was as significant as any he has played since Franklin Roosevelt was elected.

Head on, he smashed into the liberals who were impugning Hubert Humphrey's motives.

"He has the guts to fight for principles," shouted D. D. "He fought for liberal causes when they were not popular. He fights for them now."

Later D. D. told a friend, "Humphrey is fighting for what he thinks is right on the Viet Nam issue. I'm convinced he believes it. I'm certain he's certain of the issues and fights through conviction and not just because he is vice president under Lyndon Johnson."

At the microphone, Dubinsky roared at the liberal critics of the man from Minnesota.

"Where were the professors when Stalin killed the Jewish writers, Erlich and Alter?" asked D. D. "I never saw them picket any Russian embassies.

"Where were they when Stalin killed the Jewish doctors? Where were they when the Russians approved pogroms? Where were they when Khrushchev persecuted the Jews?

"Now we know where the so-called liberals are. They are picketing because we are not dancing to the Soviet tunes.

"Well, peace does not mean surrender. We do not need another Munich."

Every word was significant -- as was the occasion. Dubinsky has just returned from Europe and the Near East. He had been abroad last month when he had accepted in absentia an award from the Americans for Democratic Action (ADA).

His statement to that convention, where many had tried to pillory Hubert, read by Gus Tyler, the garment union's assistant president, said in part: "It took courage for him as the Senator from Minnesota to accept the chairmanship of ADA. It takes courage for him now to continue his battle as champion of liberalism on both the domestic and international front.

". . . In accepting the honor bestowed upon me tonight, I am pleased to do so not as an outsider, but as one who identifies himself with ADA, and with one of its most celebrated founders, Hubert Humphrey, and with the ideal of free men in a free world."

Thus then and the other night D. D. embraced H. H. H. And Dubinsky is no mere rhetorical liberal. He is an actionist.

He and the hatters' Alex Rose built the New York Liberal Party. It gave the late John Kennedy the balance of power in the balance - of - power state in '60.

Its voice is heard and respected, even feared, in powerful Democratic circles. It is one of the strongest blocs of unseen votes at Democratic conventions. And on the night of the farewell party, D. D. said H. H. is his friend "all the way."

And Dubinsky plans to be around for a long time--especially now on the political scene.

The other night's performance was the curtain raiser for just Act One.

An Editor's Outlook

END NEIGHBORHOOD SCHOOLS?

LAST month, U.S. Commissioner of Education Harold Howe II made a little-noticed speech to the City Club of Chicago which deserves a lot of attention.

For this powerful federal official, with billions of dollars at his command, is apparently dedicated to the destruction of the neighborhood schools and bussing of children long distances from their homes.

Said Commissioner Howe, as quoted, on page A 2946 of the May 31 Congressional Record:

"Traditional school district boundaries often serve education badly and may have to be changed . . . .We could, for example, alter political boundaries to bring the social, economic, and intellectual strengths of the suburbs to bear on the problems of the city schools.

Building programs for the future could be planned so that new schools break up, rather than continue, segregation of both the racial and economic sort. The Office of Education will provide Federal planning funds for such efforts right now . . . .and if I have my way the Office will provide construction funds before long.

"We have recently been considering financial support for a comprehensive study of a system of educational parks to be established within the inner city. We visualize each of these centralized school complexes as educational centers that would provide classes ranging from prekindergarten through junior college.

"And we are particularly interested in finding one or two great American cities that are adventurous enough to join us in planning the educational park of the future. These entities will house 20,000 or more pupils, and will cut across all geographic, economic and social boundaries to draw students. While such a park would deny the neighborhood school, it would express the vitality, the imagination, and the cultural mix that every vigorous city exemplifies."

Well, there you have it. "The educational park of the future." The use of government funds "if I have my way," not merely to plan but to construct super-schools to which even pre-kindergarteners will be transported to provide a "cultural mix." This, remember, is the U.S. Commissioner of Education speaking.

WHEN federal aid to education was first proposed you remember that doubters expressed the fear that this would open the way for federal direction of America's public education. The proponents vigorously denied this. All that was wanted, they swore, was to enlist the federal government helping in improving schools that would still be under "local control."

Now, what is Commissioner Howe up to? He would take money from all the taxpayers living in all school districts and use part of it for special construction bonuses for cities that adopted his plan. Such a special bonus, conferred upon the few made up of funds contributed by the many, is the same as a penalty against the many. This, then would be a form of punishment levied against all school districts that didn't fall in with Commissioner Howe's scheme.

WHEN agitation was started to create some form of "cultural mix" by hauling children long distances to schools in strange neighborhoods the outcry from parents, particularly in New York City area, was loud. In a subsequent opinion even the U.S. Supreme Court disclaimed any intention of outlawing the right of a parent to send his child to the school closest to home.

And even the far-out social theorists, who revel in compulsion designed to achieve noble aims, were reluctant to grasp the nettle of picking specific pupils to go to specific schools. But Commissioner Howe has apparently solved the problem. He would destroy the neighborhood school, itself. It would do parents no good to move around, seeking a better school environment for their children. If they lived in a city in which five per cent of school age children were Negroes, the "educational park of the future", with its 20,000 or more pupils, would be five per cent Negro. And if the Negro school population were 60 per cent, the superschools would be the same.

Some unreconstructed parents might then attempt to move out of the city school district altogether, to flee to the suburbs. But Mr. Howe has prepared a whammy for them.

YOU recall that he said: "We could, for example, alter political boundaries to bring the social, economic, and intellectual strengths of the suburbs to bear on the problems of the city schools."

What else can you read into this except that Commissioner Howe is prepared to rush in where the Supreme Court feared to tread? And the power behind the revolution he seeks to engineer are the dollars taken from all citizens which, his boys were swearing a year ago, would never be used in any attempt at federal direction.

J. A. Blankenships Mark Golden Anniversary

NEW MADRID -- The children of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Blankenship of New Madrid, honored them Sunday, May 29, with a family reunion and reception at the community building in observance of their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

The hall was beautiful with many bouquets of flowers sent by friends and neighbors. There was a three tiered cake decorated with yellow rosebuds topped with a large golden 50.

A salad luncheon was served at noon to the family and out-of-town guests and cake and punch was served all afternoon to visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. Blankenship were married in Paducah, Ky., March 16, 1916. They lived in Kentucky the first years of their married life, then moved to Southern Illinois where they lived on the Glen Wood farm until 1939.

He then moved to Missouri, west of Kewanee, where he farmed until 1949, at which time he moved to New Madrid.

They have seven children, James L. Blankenship of Flint, Mich., Mary A. Thompson of Nashville, Tenn., Evelyn F. Pinnell of Sikeston, Jay A. Blankenship of Kewanee, Edward F. Blankenship of Kewanee, Jo Anne Wilson of Flint, Mich., Robert W. Blankenship of Sikeston.

Two sons were absent from the reunion as were five grandchildren and one great grandchild. There are seven children, 15 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren in the family.

Lucy Smith Circle Meets at Parma

PARMA -- The Lucy Smith Circle of the First Baptist Church of Parma held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. J.O. Niswonger, Monday.

The meeting was opened by prayer and scripture reading by Mrs. Audrey Pulling. A short business session was conducted by Mrs. Ruth Ward, followed by a preview of the book, "CHRISTIAN WITNESSING," given by Mrs. Niswonger and Mrs. Ward. The meeting was then closed with prayer, led by Evia Calhoun.

Attending were nine members and one visitor.

Mrs. Doyle Is Honored at Bridal Shower

NEW MADRID -- Monday evening, June 6, a bridal shower was held in the home of Mrs. F. M. Robbins by Mrs. Robbins and Mrs. C. E. LaValle, in honor of Mrs. Patrick O. Doyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Hunter Jr.

An umbrella filled with spring flowers hung above the gift table, with the centerpiece on the serving table being of white mums with yellow candles, the brides colors.

Guests included relatives and close friends of the bride.

Miss Virginia Gohn Is Honored With Tea Tuesday

Miss Virginia Gohn of West Plains was guest of honor at a tea given Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Harwell, 901 Moore.

Miss Gohn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Gohn of West Plains, and the bride-elect of William Sapp, Jr., of Sikeston.

Plans are being completed for an August wedding at the First Methodist church in West Plains.

The Harwell home was appointed throughout with magnolia blossoms and greenery. The mantle in the living room was decorated with spiral white tapers, magnolia leaves and fleur'd amour. Miniature bride and groom dolls completed the arrangement.

An electric fountain in the sun room sprayed a cascade of perfumed water over magnolia blossoms and two hand carved white doves. A scroll with engraved names, Virginia and "Rocky" was above the fountain.

Miss Gohn received her guests in an original sea green Irish linen creation, with matching accessories. Her corsage was pale pink angora asters.

The dining room table was adorned with a white French embroidered organza cloth. The centerpiece was a crystal and silver epergne holding white magnolia, and plumosa fern.

Miss Katie Blanton, Miss Vicky Heckemeyer, and Miss Sarah Reid assisted Mrs. Harwell in serving punch and cake to the guests.

Mrs. William Sapp, Sr., mother of the prospective bridegroom and those who assisted in serving were presented lavender and pink aster corsages by the hostess.

Guests included alumni and present members of Miss Gohn's sorority, Kappa Kappa Gamma, and other University friends.

Little Joe's Gray Hairs Only Thing New on Bonanza Set

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Meanwhile, back at Ponderosa —

They're already at work on the 1966-67 season of "Bonanza," which has proven its name for NBC, its sponsor, producers and stars. Those indominable Cartwrights are once more at home on the range — Lorne Greene ever the father image, Dan Blocker fat and sassy, and Mike Landon the sex symbol, though slightly gray-haired.

Little Joe gray-haired? Yes, it's true, though the aging process has set in early. Otherwise Mike Landon remains the picture of youthful vigor, thanks to his daily sessions in the Paramount Studio gym while others are feeding in the commissary.

Landon, like his fellow Cartwrights, exudes confidence about the coming season.

The actor reflected on the number of opposition shows that have hit the boneyard and commented: "The best opposition we've had has been the feature movies."

ABC will once again be pitting the features against "Bonanza". The color Western will be offering more of its same formula in the series' eighth year.

"We're not planning anything new," commented Landon. "There may be more two-parters, which I don't entirely approve of. Experience has shown that the ratings suffer when we do them.

"Guest stars? I don't think we'll be using too many — unless the ratings drop. But experience has also proved that guest stars don't help the rating to any degree. Of course, if Paul Newman was available — "

Landon and his fellow stars have signed up for another five years of "Bonanza," after which they should be able to buy the State of Colorado. Mike admittedly enjoys the money, and he is content with the work as well.

"Acting is a job, just as being an engineer or doctor is a job," he reasoned. "There is a certain amount of routine in doing a series, but there is also a creative aspect of helping with scripts and writing an occasional one yourself."

Trot-in System Latest Thing in Banking

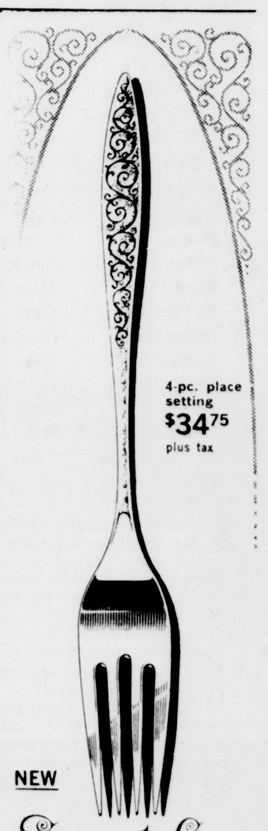

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. AP -- Residents of this resort island in the Straits of Mackinac will have a chance after July 1 to do some "trot-in banking."

The First National Bank of St. Ignace plans to open a branch here next month, one which will cater to the island's favorite means of transportation, the horse. Cars are prohibited on the island.

Patrons arriving on horseback or in one of the popular horse-drawn surries will find hitching posts in place of parking lots, said the bank president, Warren Hagen.

The bank plans to offer two lumps of sugar to each horse bringing a new customer on opening day, Hagen said.

The dining room table was adorned with a white French embroidered organza cloth. The centerpiece was a crystal and silver epergne holding white magnolia, and plumosa fern.

Miss Katie Blanton, Miss Vicky Heckemeyer, and Miss Sarah Reid assisted Mrs. Harwell in serving punch and cake to the guests.

Mrs. William Sapp, Sr., mother of the prospective bridegroom and those who assisted in serving were presented lavender and pink aster corsages by the hostess.

Guests included alumni and present members of Miss Gohn's sorority, Kappa Kappa Gamma, and other University friends.

Little Joe's Gray Hairs Only Thing New on Bonanza Set

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Meanwhile, back at Ponderosa —

They're already at work on the 1966-67 season of "Bonanza," which has proven its name for NBC, its sponsor, producers and stars. Those indominable Cartwrights are once more at home on the range — Lorne Greene ever the father image, Dan Blocker fat and sassy, and Mike Landon the sex symbol, though slightly gray-haired.

Little Joe gray-haired? Yes, it's true, though the aging process has set in early. Otherwise Mike Landon remains the picture of youthful vigor, thanks to his daily sessions in the Paramount Studio gym while others are feeding in the commissary.

Landon, like his fellow Cartwrights, exudes confidence about the coming season.

The actor reflected on the number of opposition shows that have hit the boneyard and commented: "The best opposition we've had has been the feature movies."

ABC will once again be putting the features against "Bonanza". The color Western will be offering more of its same formula in the series' eighth year.

"We're not planning anything new," commented Landon. "There may be more two-parters, which I don't entirely approve of. Experience has shown that the ratings suffer when we do them.

"Guest stars? I don't think we'll be using too many — unless the ratings drop. But experience has also proved that guest stars don't help the rating to any degree. Of course, if Paul Newman was available — "

Landon and his fellow stars have signed up for another five years of "Bonanza," after which they should be able to buy the State of Colorado. Mike admittedly enjoys the money, and he is content with the work as well.

"Acting is a job, just as being an engineer or doctor is a job," he reasoned. "There is a certain amount of routine in doing a series, but there is also a creative aspect of helping with scripts and writing an occasional one yourself."

Trot-in System Latest Thing in Banking

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. AP -- Residents of this resort island in the Straits of Mackinac will have a chance after July 1 to do some "trot-in banking."

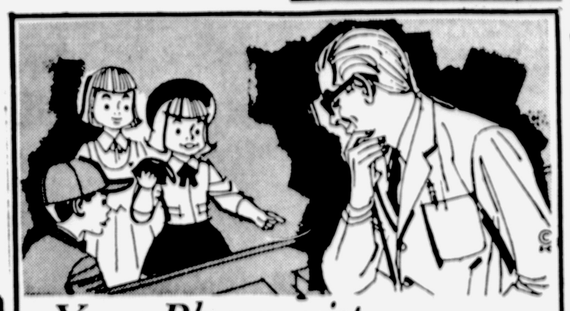

The First National Bank of St. Ignace plans to open a branch here next month, one which will cater to the island's favorite means of transportation, the horse. Cars are prohibited on the island.

Patrons arriving on horseback or in one of the popular horse-drawn surries will find hitching posts in place of parking lots, said the bank president, Warren Hagen.

The bank plans to offer two lumps of sugar to each horse bringing a new customer on opening day, Hagen said.

Crider Defeats Godwin

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Bill Stewart of Springfield was the only former champion remaining in the Missouri Amateur Golf Tournament going into today's quarter-finals, and he was matched against the oldest man in the field.

The semifinals were scheduled for this afternoon.

Stewart faced 59-year-old James Patrick Quinn, Kansas City lawyer who chews licorice bars for energy.

Others in this morning's round were:

Jim Benson, St. Louis, vs. Mike Crider, St. Charles.

Jim Patton, Springfield, vs. Richard Pearce, St. Louis.

Bob Nieberding Jr., St. Louis, vs. Richard Poe, Columbia.

Stewart, 42, who won the title in 1953 and 1957, moved into the favorite's role after four-time champion Bob Cochran of St. Louis had to withdraw Friday because of a back injury.

Quinn, who needed seven licorice bars to see him through Friday's two rounds, is in a field that features youth. Crider is 17, Nieberding 19, Pearce 22, Poe 23 and Patton 36.

Friday's third round results:

Benson won from Cochran by default.

Crider defeated Luther Godwin, Poplar Bluff, 3 and 2.

Stewart defeated Bob Davis, St. Louis, 2 and 1.

Quinn defeated Leo Van Dover, Poplar Bluff, 3 and 1.

Patton defeated Jim Jackson, St. Louis, 4 and 3.

Pearce defeated Peter Beardsley, St. Louis, 4 and 2.

Nieberding defeated Bob Sauer, St. Louis, 3 and 2.

Poe defeated Bob Smith, Joplin, 2 and 1.

Cards Sign Shortstop

The Cardinals have signed Shortstop Wald Schaefer, a junior at the University of Connecticut, to a Sarasota contract, it was announced tonight (June 17) by Director of Scouting, George Silvey.

Schaeffer, a 20-year-old left-handed hitter, also can play second base, according to Scout Jeff Jones, who signed the Westport, Connecticut, athlete. Schaeffer stands 5 feet, 11 inches, and weighs 175.

Jones says that Schaefer hit well over .300 with six home runs during the college season. Sarasota is in the Florida Rockie League.

One Player Qualifies From Missouri-Kansas For Finals of Open

SAN FRANCISCO AP -- Stan Thrisk of Shawnee Mission was the only player from Missouri and Kansas to survive the 151-stroke cutoff mark and qualify for the final rounds of the National Open Golf Tournament.

Thirsk had a 72-79 - 151 for the first two rounds.

Joe Jimenez of Jefferson City had a 77-76-153. Albert Chandler of Columbia had a 74-80-154. Rod Horn, an amateur from Overland Park, had a 76-83 - 159. Dick Shaiper of Normandy had a 79-83-162.

WICHITA, Kan. AP -- The National Baseball Congress announced today that July 1-4 have been selected as the dates of the Missouri district tournament at Warsaw.

The tournament is a qualifying event for the 31st annual Missouri state tournament at Sedalia starting July 19.

Cards Go Down In Nineth

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Philadelphia's Tony Taylor raced home from second on reliever Hal Woodeshick's wild pitch for the tying run in the eighth, and then singled across the wining run in the ninth for a 6-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Friday night.

The California Angels continued their rise in the American League, taking their sixth straight victory, 4-2, at Kansas City.

Taylor's game-winning single drove in Richie Allen, who had singled and reached second when John Callison was thrown out at the plate.

Pinch hitter Bob Tolan put the Cardinals into the lead, 5-4, with his first major league homer in the seventh off Philadelphia starter Larry Jackson. But the Phillies came back to tie it when Taylor singled, stole second and came home on the wild pitch.

Mike Shannon doubled in one run and Julian Javier singled home another for St. Louis in the second. Philadelphia sent Cardinal starter Curt Simmons to a shower and scored four runs in the third on a double, five singles, a walk and a wild pitch.

Willie Smith slammed a two-run triple in the seventh inning to provide California's margin over Kansas City, and giving loser Jim Catfish Hunter a 5-6 record.

Kansas City turned two walks by Marcelino Lopez into two runs in the second. Then Jack Sanford, 7-2, took over from Lopez with two out in the inning and held the A's to one hit until he left for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

The Angels got to Hunter for a run in the fifth on Bob Rodgers' single and Jose Cardenal's triple and tied the score in the sixth on Jim Fregosi's triple and Ed Kirkpatrick's sacrafice fly.

Dean Chance 4-8 will pitch for California tonight against Kansas City's Chuck Dobson 2-5.

Bob Buhl 2-4 of Philadelphia will oppose St. Louis' Al Jackson 5-5 tonight.

Dodgers Fall To Third

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Willie McCovey still has his home run touch, but Gaylord Perry finally has lost his.

McCovey had his touch in the eighth inning and slammed a tie-breaking three-run homer while Perry worked without his touch and scattered seven hits as National League leading San Francisco knocked the Los Angeles Dodgers into third place, 4-1.

Perry, completing his first game since an ankle injury three weeks ago, brought his record to 8-1—the best in the major leagues on a percentage basis. And the big reason for his amazing flip-flop from last year's 8-12 record is his home run record.

The 27-year-old right-hander, who never has won more than 12 games in his career, has not allowed a homer in 11 games this season. Last year he was tagged at a one-homer-every-other-game clip and surrendered a total of 21.

McCovey, meanwhile, brought his homer total to 14 and combined with Perry to build the Giants' winning streak to six and their NL lead to 3½ games over Pittsburgh and four over the defending champion Dodgers.

The Pirates moved up with a 4-2 victory over Atlanta, Philadelphia edged St. Louis 6-5 and the New York Mets swept Cincinnati 6-5 and 2-1. Houston and the Chicago Cubs were not scheduled.

In the American League, Baltimore downed Boston 5-3, Washington nipped Cleveland 5-4 in 11 innings, California took Kansas City 4-2, the Chicago White Sox whipped Minnesota 3-1 and the New York Yankees beat Detroit 5-2.

Matty Alou collected four of the Pirates' 13 hits, triggering a two-run first inning uprising and driving in the final run in the eighth inning with another single. Don Cardwell, tagged for a homer by Mack Jones, got the victory with relief help from Pete Mikkelsen, and Woody Fryman. Mikkelsen was touched for a homer by Felipe Alou.

Tony Taylor pulled the Phillies into a 5-5 tie in the eighth when he singled, stole second and raced home on Hal Woodeshick's wild pitch. Then he singled home Rich Allen with the winning run in the ninth after John Callison had been thrown out at the plate trying to score from Second on Allen's single.

Eddie Bressoud, who slammed a three-run homer in the first game for the Mets, drove in their only runs in the nightcap with a bases-loaded single off Hank Fischer in the seventh inning. Fischer, acquired from Atlanta Wednesday, had the Mets shut out on two hits through six innings.

Bressoud's homer in the opener pulled the Mets into a 3-3 tie. The Reds pulled ahead but New York came from behind and won it on Ron Hunt's two-run double in the eighth inning. Bob Shaw, acquired in a cash deal with San Francisco, won his second in as many starts for the Mets.

Fishing generally on Ozark lakes and streams continues to be rated fair to good. Several of the large impoundments report activity on white bass jumps. Topwater fishing is producing results early morning and late evening though the plastic worm is accounting for most bass catches. Night fishing under lantern is producing some good catches of white bass and crappie on all of the major impoundments. Bluegill are schooling and being taken in three to six foot of water. A number of excellent catfish catches have been reported the past week. Lake Hunnewell and Lake Seivers in northeast Missouri are the only impoundments with dingy water and fishing is rated poor to fair. There is a possibility that some cloudy to dingy water will move into the upper arms of Pomme de Terre and the upper portion of the Lake of the Ozarks by the weekend. All Missouri streams are in excellent condition with fishing rated fair to good on goggle-eye, bass and perch. The Mississippi River is up 3½ feet and will level off for the weekend. The river is murky and fishing is expected to be poor. River stages are: Clarksville, 24.7; Winfield, 24.3; Grafton, 16.3; Alton Pool, 18.8; Valley Park (Meramec), 0.7; Union (Bourbeuse), 1.3; Lake of the Ozarks (Bagnell Dam) Lakeside Pool, 652.82; Table Rock, 914.28; Norfolk, 550.86; Bull Shoals, 653.24; Pomme de Terre, 839.8; Greers Ferry, 458.38; Beaver, 1111.79; Clearwater, 495.07; Kentucky, 359.

Crider Defeats Godwin

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Bill Stewart of Springfield was the only former champion remaining in the Missouri Amateur Golf Tournament going into today's quarter-finals, and he was matched against the oldest man in the field.

The semifinals were scheduled for this afternoon.

Stewart faced 59-year-old James Patrick Quinn, Kansas City lawyer who chews licorice bars for energy.

Others in this morning's round were:

Jim Benson, St. Louis, vs. Mike Crider, St. Charles.

Jim Patton, Springfield, vs. Richard Pearce, St. Louis.

Bob Nieberding Jr., St. Louis, vs. Richard Poe, Columbia.

Stewart, 42, who won the title in 1953 and 1957, moved into the favorite's role after four-time champion Bob Cochran of St. Louis had to withdraw Friday because of a back injury.

Quinn, who needed seven licorice bars to see him through Friday's two rounds, is in a field that features youth. Crider is 17, Nieberding 19, Pearce 22, Poe 23 and Patton 36.

Friday's third round results:

Benson won from Cochran by default.

Crider defeated Luther Godwin, Poplar Bluff, 3 and 2.

Stewart defeated Bob Davis, St. Louis, 2 and 1.

Quinn defeated Leo Van Dover, Poplar Bluff, 3 and 1.

Patton defeated Jim Jackson, St. Louis, 4 and 3.

Pearce defeated Peter Beardsley, St. Louis, 4 and 2.

Nieberding defeated Bob Sauer, St. Louis, 3 and 2.

Poe defeated Bob Smith, Joplin, 2 and 1.

Cards Sign Shortstop

The Cardinals have signed Shortstop Wald Schaefer, a junior at the University of Connecticut, to a Sarasota contract, it was announced tonight (June 17) by Director of Scouting, George Silvey.

Schaeffer, a 20-year-old left-handed hitter, also can play second base, according to Scout Jeff Jones, who signed the Westport, Connecticut, athlete. Schaeffer stands 5 feet, 11 inches, and weighs 175.

Jones says that Schaefer hit well over .300 with six home runs during the college season. Sarasota is in the Florida Rookie League.

Cards Go Down In Nineth

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Philadelphia's Tony Taylor raced home from second on reliever Hal Woodeshick's wild pitch for the tying run in the eighth, and then singled across the wining run in the ninth for a 6-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Friday night.

The California Angels continued their rise in the American League, taking their sixth straight victory, 4-2, at Kansas City.

Taylor's game-winning single drove in Richie Allen, who had singled and reached second when John Callison was thrown out at the plate.

Pinch hitter Bob Tolan put the Cardinals into the lead, 5-4, with his first major league homer in the seventh off Philadelphia starter Larry Jackson. But the Phillies came back to tie it when Taylor singled, stole second and came home on the wild pitch.

Mike Shannon doubled in one run and Julian Javier singled home another for St. Louis in the second. Philadelphia sent Cardinal starter Curt Simmons to a shower and scored four runs in the third on a double, five singles, a walk and a wild pitch.

Willie Smith slammed a two-run triple in the seventh inning to provide California's margin over Kansas City, and giving loser Jim Catfish Hunter a 5-6 record.

Kansas City turned two walks by Marcelino Lopez into two runs in the second. Then Jack Sanford, 7-2, took over from Lopez with two out in the inning and held the A's to one hit until he left for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

The Angels got to Hunter for a run in the fifth on Bob Rodgers' single and Jose Cardenal's triple and tied the score in the sixth on Jim Fregosi's triple and Ed Kirkpatrick's sacrafice fly.

Dean Chance 4-8 will pitch for California tonight against Kansas City's Chuck Dobson 2-5.

Bob Buhl 2-4 of Philadelphia will oppose St. Louis' Al Jackson 5-5 tonight.

Dodgers Fall To Third

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Willie McCovey still has his home run touch, but Gaylord Perry finally has lost his.

McCovey had his touch in the eighth inning and slammed a tie-breaking three-run homer while Perry worked without his touch and scattered seven hits as National League leading San Francisco knocked the Los Angeles Dodgers into third place, 4-1.

Perry, completing his first game since an ankle injury three weeks ago, brought his record to 8-1—the best in the major leagues on a percentage basis. And the big reason for his amazing flip-flop from last year's 8-12 record is his home run record.

The 27-year-old right-hander, who never has won more than 12 games in his career, has not allowed a homer in 11 games this season. Last year he was tagged at a one-homer-every-other-game clip and surrendered a total of 21.

McCovey, meanwhile, brought his homer total to 14 and combined with Perry to build the Giants' winning streak to six and their NL lead to 3½ games over Pittsburgh and four over the defending champion Dodgers.

The Pirates moved up with a 4-2 victory over Atlanta, Philadelphia edged St. Louis 6-5 and the New York Mets swept Cincinnati 6-5 and 2-1. Houston and the Chicago Cubs were not scheduled.

In the American League, Baltimore downed Boston 5-3, Washington nipped Cleveland 5-4 in 11 innings, California took Kansas City 4-2, the Chicago White Sox whipped Minnesota 3-1 and the New York Yankees beat Detroit 5-2.

Matty Alou collected four of the Pirates' 13 hits, triggering a two-run first inning uprising and driving in the final run in the eighth inning with another single. Don Cardwell, tagged for a homer by Mack Jones, got the victory with relief help from Pete Mikkelsen, and Woody Fryman. Mikkelsen was touched for a homer by Felipe Alou.

Tony Taylor pulled the Phillies into a 5-5 tie in the eighth when he singled, stole second and raced home on Hal Woodeshick's wild pitch. Then he singled home Rich Allen with the winning run in the ninth after John Callison had been thrown out at the plate trying to score from Second on Allen's single.

Eddie Bressoud, who slammed a three-run homer in the first game for the Mets, drove in their only runs in the nightcap with a bases-loaded single off Hank Fischer in the seventh inning. Fischer, acquired from Atlanta Wednesday, had the Mets shut out on two hits through six innings.

Bressoud's homer in the opener pulled the Mets into a 3-3 tie. The Reds pulled ahead but New York came from behind and won it on Ron Hunt's two-run double in the eighth inning. Bob Shaw, acquired in a cash deal with San Francisco, won his second in as many starts for the Mets.

Fishing generally on Ozark lakes and streams continues to be rated fair to good. Several of the large impoundments report activity on white bass jumps. Topwater fishing is producing results early morning and late evening though the plastic worm is accounting for most bass catches. Night fishing under lantern is producing some good catches of white bass and crappie on all of the major impoundments. Bluegill are schooling and being taken in three to six foot of water. A number of excellent catfish catches have been reported the past week. Lake Hunnewell and Lake Seivers in northeast Missouri are the only impoundments with dingy water and fishing is rated poor to fair. There is a possibility that some cloudy to dingy water will move into the upper arms of Pomme de Terre and the upper portion of the Lake of the Ozarks by the weekend. All Missouri streams are in excellent condition with fishing rated fair to good on goggle-eye, bass and perch. The Mississippi River is up 3½ feet and will level off for the weekend. The river is murky and fishing is expected to be poor. River stages are: Clarksville, 24.7; Winfield, 24.3; Grafton, 16.3; Alton Pool, 18.8; Valley Park (Meramec), 0.7; Union (Bourbeuse), 1.3; Lake of the Ozarks (Bagnell Dam) Lakeside Pool, 652.82; Table Rock, 914.28; Norfolk, 550.86; Bull Shoals, 633.24; Pomme de Terre, 839.8; Greers Ferry, 458.38; Beaver, 1111.79; Clearwater, 495.07; Kentucky, 359.

Dexter Happiness Is a Head Start Program

TAKE 100 pounds of clay, add 67 children and you have all the ingredients for a good time at school.

Proving Education Can Be Fun

By WARREN SOKOLIS

DEXTER -- To a beatnik, it's his beard, and to the Yankees, it's a four - game sweep, but happiness to a five or six-year-old child at Dexter is the Head Start program at Central elementary school.

The persons connected with Head Start -- administrators, teachers, teacher - aides, volunteers and pupils -- are proving that education need not be a sterile process. And whether the pupils realize it or not, they are learning valuable skills that will benefit them throughout the rest of their educational careers.

The children work with clay, solve puzzles, paint, listen to records and play games. To the laymen this might seem like a waste of federal funds--which are used to finance the Head Start program -- but to the professional in the field of education the skills and patterns of behavior developed through this "play" are the foundation on which a good education is built.

For example, playing with clay is not only fun, but it aids in muscle development, the Head Start teachers explained. The same thing applies to the use of tinker toys.

Listening skills are developed through the use of phonograph records. Songs instructing the children to make some physical movement are played while the children follow the instructions.

To the children it's a game, but they are also learning to listen for and follow the instructions.

The educational puzzles provide for the child something to coordinate his hands with his thought process, teachers said.

However, "play" is not the only project covered in the program. Good health and cleanliness are also stressed. Each child is given a toothbrush, toothpaste and soap and taught how to use them properly, Carl Davis, elementary school supervisor, noted.

The children are also given medical and dental examinations, Davis said. In the morning they are fed a snack, consisting of milk or juice and a cookie or fruit. At noon they eat a well - balanced meal with one meat dish, two vegetables, dessert, milk, bread and butter.

The program is held five days a week from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. This was the first week of the eight - week program.

The attendance records of pupils gives adequate illustration of the way they feel about Head Start. Last year 72 children were enrolled when the program began, Davis pointed out. After registration two children moved out of the Dexter school district, and the average daily attendance was 68 a day.

This year 67 pupils are enrolled in Head Start. There are four classes and four teachers, four teacher - aides and four volunteers working in the program. The volunteers are mothers of the children enrolled, which is encouraged so mothers can see how their children are being taught, Davis explained.

In evaluating the achievement of Head Start, the teachers noted that pupils learn to make social adjustments necessary for the work the children must do when they enter first grade in the fall.

As one teacher said, when the children complete this eight weeks of training, "they are ready for school."

PUT YOUR finger on your chin, the phonograph record instructs, and the children respond. This type of training develops listening skills.

THESE HAND puppets take on the personalities of the children who operate them and provide the pupils with the basic skills of small-group learning.

THIS IS another example of following instructions by listening to a record, but some of the children became distracted when they discovered they were on a not-so-candid camera.

THE PLOT thickens and the children's faces express concern for the fate of the hero.

RED ROVER, red rover and someone comes over. During recess the children "discover" a game that has been played by many generations of youngsters.

INSECTICIDES AND CORN FOR DAIRY CATTLE

Some of our dairymen need to purchase corn from commercial sources to feed their cattle. Some dairymen are asking if they have to worry about purchasing corn from fields treated with aldrin or heptachlor insecticides.

M-U Extension Entomologist George Thomas has some good news for these men. He says shelled or ear corn harvested from fields treated with the recommended dosages of soil insecticides aldrin or heptachlor has not been found to contain detectable amounts of these chemicals. Research has shown that these residues in corn grain are not detectable until the per-acre dosage rates reach ten or more pounds per acre.

However. . . the stalk or leaves, particularly the lower portion of the plant, may contain residues following soil application of these insecticides. Therefore, it would be suggested that dairymen check the insecticide history of the crop before buying silage from commercial sources.

CONTROL OF MULTIFLORA ROSE

Although multiflora rose is often recommended for conservation uses, it sometimes becomes a weed problem on farms. Some of these farmers are asking about control recommendations.

M-U Extension Weed Control Specialist L. E. Anderson says multiflora rose is difficult to eradicate due to its tolerance to many of the commonly used herbicides. Control methods will vary with the size of the area to be treated.

For extensive areas, Anderson recommends the application of Silvex or 2, 3, 5-TP at a rate of three-pounds acid equivalent per acre. This in a carrier consisting of 20-gallons diesel oil and 80-gallons of water. Apply after the leaves have reached the fully-expanded stage of growth. . . . .and when the shrubs are making rapid growth. Drift of this herbicide, Silvex, can be a hazard to nearby sensitive crops . . . so apply with caution.

Individual plants of multiflora rose can be eradicated by applying two-teaspoons of monuron around the base of the bush.

VITAMIN A LOSS IN HAY

Farmers putting up hay are storing some of this hay for longer than a year. These livestockmen are asking what Vitamin A losses occur when green, leafy hay is stored for this long a period.

M-U Extension Animal Husbandman Homer Sewell says hay may lose three-quarters or more of its original Vitamin A value after one year of storage. Hay that has been stored in a mow through two summer seasons is NOT a dependable source of Vitamin A.

Sewell explains . . .plants do not contain Vitamin A. Instead . . . .plants contain carotene, a pigment which animals convert into Vitamin A. Carotene and Vitamin A are easily destroyed by oxidation. .. . and carotene is lost from hay in storage at a faster rate during high temperatures. Severe heating of hay in the mow can destroy much of its Vitamin A value.

Lilbourn Starts Summer School

LILBOURN -- In keeping with the government's stepped-up program for better education for boys and girls, Supt. Max Timmons of the Lilbourn R-1 school district has two summer school programs in operation. Both programs got underway Monday June 13.

The preschool Head Start program has enrolled 72 youngsters to date, and afew more are expected to enroll.

Head Start seeks to prepare children, who will be six years of age by Oct. 1, for a "quick take off" when they enter the regular classes at the beginning of the regular school term this fall. It provides reading readiness, health examinations, dental care, and immunizations for all children eligible to enter school in September.

Teachers working in this program were required to take a one week orientation course at the University of Missouri to qualify. They are -- H. B. Mitchell, director; Ruby Tope, Aliene Mitchell, Claudette Scott, Dorothy Wade, Ellenora Giddens, Susie Noe, Bennie Holyfield, and J. D. Washington, a visiting teacher. Mrs. Juanita Newton, a registered nurse, is also assisting.

Mothers of children in Head Start employed as teacher-aids are Mrs. W. C. Stanley, Mrs. Meford Gremore, Mrs. Elethra Small, Mrs. Lucy Baehr, Mrs. Annie Conner, Mrs. George Smith, and Mrs. Ilene Wade. These aids will serve for the first four weeks and then another group of mothers will assist.

In addition to the Head Start program, the school is conducting a program in-remedial reading and arithmetic. This program has a total enrollment of 166 pupils who are deficient in the regular school work. Like Head Start, this program will continue for eight weeks.

Teachers in the remedial program are Imogene Calbert, Lessie Snelling, Mrs. J. D. Washington, Sophia Taylor, Doris Clay, Marcella Carrol, Jane Nunn, Shelby Hurley, Gayttye Sutherland, and Curtis Cross.

These teachers are provided aids, who are college students training to become teachers. They are Carole Cooper, Mary Farmer, Barbara Wolf, Gale Timmons, Pat Hayes, Linda Tinsley, Barbara Robinson, Joyce Gremore, Linda Coffee and Mrs. Loretta Moore.

Other employees in the programs are cafeteria workers, bus drivers, and a secretary.

Bootheel Farmers Move South, Strike It Rich

MUCH HAS BEEN WRITTEN about the loss of farm population in the Missouri Bootheel because of advances in the mechanization of agriculture and the growing use of chemicals in weed control. Many residents of the region have, over the years, viewed with alarm the drying up of day labor jobs on the farms, forcing the workers off the land and out of the area.

Very little, however, has been written and said about another distinct loss to the Bootheel that has been taking place for several years in the agricultural industry, the "migration" of a number of substantial farm families to the Deep South -- the states of Mississippi and Louisiana. These are not day labor or former sharecropper families, but long-time large landowners of the Bootheel, many of whom were fine community and area leaders.

What seems to have set up this southern movement of Missouri farm operators a few years ago was the wide difference in the prices of farmland in Missouri and the two southern states. A number of fairly large Bootheel landowners discovered they could sell their farms at the higher prices prevailing in Missouri, then go to Mississippi or Louisiana and buy as much as twice the acreage of excellent farm land for the same money.

In addition, with the land there selling at lower prices, taxes were lower, and they could gain as much as 30 days in the growing season as compared with that in Missouri, giving more assurance for making a crop and also producing greater yields at less cost. As one Bootheel farmer and gin operator stated, "While we're paying $6 a day for field labor here, they are paying from $3.50 to $4 down there."

A member of a Hayti family which moved to Louisiana, in town on a visit, said that another money-making deal there was buying woods land, then removing the trees which are sold to pulp mills. After that the land is cleared for farming with heave equipment--then you're in business to farm or sell the improved land at a substantial profit. Others raise cattle and soybeans which, according to our reports, are quite profitable operations. One Hayti area farmer sold out his Pemiscot county land, went to Mississippi two years ago, taking on a 1000-acre tract which he developed. We are told that he has had an offer for it that would give him a $100,000 profit.

In most cases, however, it was a matter of getting in on a good thing at the right time. Since then the prices of farmland in Mississippi have climbed until it has reached the point where other Bootheel farmers considering moving down there say they haven't been able to find any bargains. The gap between Missouri and Mississippi land prices appears to have closed up rather rapidly, mainly because of the growing number of Missouri farmers and others going down there and buying in.

There are various explanations of why farmland prices in Mississippi were so low a few years ago compared with prices in the Bootheel. Landowners there saw the old traditional South caving in around them with the new civil rights movement and they wanted to sell out and get out. Large plantations, owned by the same family for many years, were broken up and sold, the new generations apparently showing little interest in continuing to own and operate them.

New Community Program For New Madrid Co.

MOREHOUSE -- North New Madrid County Community Action Agency Council is the name chosen for the Delta Area Economic Opportunity program, held at Morehouse last night at the school cafeteria.

W. A. Graves, assistant director, Portageville, was in charge of the meeting, at which time officers, county board members and advisory committee members were chosen.

Herbert Bird, Matthews, was elected president; Ivan McNew, Morehouse, vice-president; Mrs. David Croom, Canalou, secretary.

Named to the county board were, Charles Menees and Mrs. Barbara Lawrence, both of Morehouse, and Lonnie Lawson, Canalou.

Chosen for the advisory committee are, Sue Nimmo and Bill Westerfield, both of Morehouse, Charles Ralph, Canalou; Mrs. John Calvin, Fairview, and Randolph Kem, Matthews.

The first order of business following the election of officers and committees, was the naming of the new organization, followed by the sending of application blanks to secure aides. Those filing applications should return them to the secretary, Mrs. Croom, no later than June 23.

The next meeting will be held in the Morehouse city hall next Thursday night.

BABYSITTING

When a teen-ager babysits, she not only has a responsibility to the family for whom she is sitting but she has a responsibility to herself.

Here are a few hints you might follow if you plan to babysit in the near future.

First, if you receive a call to babysit from someone you do not know, always take their name, phone number, and address. Ask them for the name of the person who referred you to them. Then tell the person you will have to call them back to confirm the date.

You should then check the phone number and address in your phone book and call the family who referred you to them. This serves as a check for you and helps this family to realize that you take your job seriously.

Whenever you babysit, you should always leave the phone number, name and address of the family you are babysitting with, with your family so that they can contact you if they need to do so.

Here's another hint, if this is the first time you have sat for a family and if the children do not know you, it is always a good idea to have a get acquainted time for both you and the children. This may be done by arranging to visit with the family the day before or to arrive about thirty minutes before the parents are to leave. It is always harder for children to be left with strangers than friends.

Whenever you babysit, there is a list of information you should have to be a well informed babysitter. Be sure to find out where the parents will be and the phone number by which they can be reached.

Another good number to know is the fire station, police station, or sheriff. It is a good idea to have the number of the next door neighbor, grandparents or close relatives and the family doctor.

An up-to-date babysitter will know the favorite name the family calls the child. She will know if there is a family pet and know its name. She should know if the child has a favorite toy, record, or story. A wise babysitter is always prepared with a story, game or song with which to entertain the child.

Other questions you might to be the answer to are: Does the child sleep with the lights on? What windows, if any, the parents leave open? Time for bed? How much T.V.? Or any medicine the child may need to take?

All these things take a little extra time and trouble to find out, but the results are worth the trouble.

Remember the University of Missouri Extension Centers of your county will be conducting "Babysitting" Clinics in your county this year. Look for further information in this paper or contact the Extension Center in your county for more information.

"Reindeer Age"

The "Reindeer Age," 25,-000 to 30,000 years ago, marked the dawn of human history. From that period, cave-man pictures have come down to us. The best were those of reindeer, principal support of man in that age.

Hotel Guest Steps Out for Air Onto 11th Floor Ledge

ST. LOUIS AP -- A Canadian businessman, who stepped onto an 11th floor ledge at the downtown Hotel Thursday night, did not need coaxing to return to his room.

A small crowd gathered on the street below when Donald Napier, 45, of Ontario, appeared on the ledge. Two police officers rushed upstairs.

But Napier quickly corrected his mistake. He told police he thought he was stepping onto a balcony for some fresh air.

Thrift Committee Dies For Lack of Funds

CHICAGO AP -- The National Thrift committee, Inc., which for 49 years has spread the gospel of regular savings and thrifty habits, has decided to cease functioning.

Helen White, executive secretary of the Chicago-based organization, says that the organization became caught in the grip of a tight money market.

The squeeze on earnings of its 725-member financial institutions began 18 months ago and their contributions fell off.

Unable to raise the money for the annual budget of $50,000, the board decided to cease functioning effective July 1.

SILAGE WEIGHT TEST PROVES GEHL CHOP-ALL CHOPS BEST

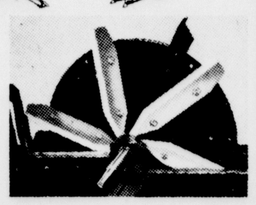

SHORT CUT SILAGE SAVES UP TO 28% STORAGE SPACE

There's more to fine chopping than meets the eye. The real proving ground of a short cut is in your silo. Short cut silage distributes better, packs better, unloads better . . . makes better feed.

To prove that the Gehl Chop-All cuts finer than any other chopper, silage from a Gehl and 11 competitive choppers was weighed and compared during the forage harvester field demonstrations at a recent Farm Progress Show. The method of handling and weighing each sample of silage was identical.

The Gehl-chopped silage outweighed all other samples, even though the volume of each was the same. The chart above shows what this means to you. You can actually put up to 55 tons (28%) more Gehl-chopped silage in a 16' x 50' silo (based on 50 lbs. per cubic foot of Gehl-chopped silage.) A real saving in storage space and costs! The reason? Gehl's short cut silage packs better!

Here's why the Chop-All cuts best: Six chrome-edged knives, on an unbreakable flywheel, cut forage from inside to outside (just like scissors) against a tungsten carbide cutter bar. Three power-driven compression rollers flatten the crop and hold it tight while the knives cut true, even and short. Two heavy-duty bearings hold the chopping flywheel rigidly in place for an unvarying short cut.

Here's News! Gehl's Select-A-Cut Transmission enables you to select short, medium or long forage length with the push of a lever. Another quality feature of the Chop-All.

INSECTICIDES AND CORN FOR DAIRY CATTLE

Some of our dairymen need to purchase corn from commercial sources to feed their cattle. Some dairymen are asking if they have to worry about purchasing corn from fields treated with aldrin or heptachlor insecticides.

M-U Extension Entomologist George Thomas has some good news for these men. He says shelled or ear corn harvested from fields treated with the recommended dosages of soil insecticides aldrin or heptachlor has not been found to contain detectable amounts of these chemicals. Research has shown that these residues in corn grain are not detectable until the per-acre dosage rates reach ten or more pounds per acre.

However. . . the stalk or leaves, particularly the lower portion of the plant, may contain residues following soil application of these insecticides. Therefore, it would be suggested that dairymen check the insecticide history of the crop before buying silage from commercial sources.

CONTROL OF MULTIFLORA ROSE

Although multiflora rose is often recommended for conservation uses, it sometimes becomes a weed problem on farms. Some of these farmers are asking about control recommendations.

M-U Extension Weed Control Specialist L. E. Anderson says multiflora rose is difficult to eradicate due to its tolerance to many of the commonly used herbicides. Control methods will vary with the size of the area to be treated.

For extensive areas, Anderson recommends the application of Silvex or 2, 3, 5-TP at a rate of three-pounds acid equivalent per acre. This in a carrier consisting of 20-gallons diesel oil and 80-gallons of water. Apply after the leaves have reached the fully-expanded stage of growth. . . .and when the shrubs are making rapid growth. Drift of this herbicide, Silvex, can be a hazard to nearby sensitive crops . . . so apply with caution.

Individual plants of multiflora rose can be eradicated by applying two-teaspoons of monuron around the base of the bush.

VITAMIN A LOSS IN HAY

Farmers putting up hay are storing some of this hay for longer than a year. These livestockmen are asking what Vitamin A losses occur when green, leafy hay is stored for this long a period.

M-U Extension Animal Husbandman Homer Sewell says hay may lose three-quarters or more of its original Vitamin A value after one year of storage. Hay that has been stored in a mow through two summer seasons is NOT a dependable source of Vitamin A.

Sewell explains . . .plants do not contain Vitamin A. Instead . . . plants contain carotene, a pigment which animals convert into Vitamin A. Carotene and Vitamin A are easily destroyed by oxidation. .. . and carotene is lost from hay in storage at a faster rate during high temperatures. Severe heating of hay in the mow can destroy much of its Vitamin A value.

Bootheel Farmers Move South, Strike It Rich

MUCH HAS BEEN WRITTEN about the loss of farm population in the Missouri Bootheel because of advances in the mechanization of agriculture and the growing use of chemicals in weed control. Many residents of the region have, over the years, viewed with alarm the drying up of day labor jobs on the farms, forcing the workers off the land and out of the area.

Very little, however, has been written and said about another distinct loss to the Bootheel that has been taking place for several years in the agricultural industry, the "migration" of a number of substantial farm families to the Deep South -- the states of Mississippi and Louisiana. These are not day labor or former sharecropper families, but long-time large landowners of the Bootheel, many of whom were fine community and area leaders.

What seems to have set up this southern movement of Missouri farm operators a few years ago was the wide difference in the prices of farmland in Missouri and the two southern states. A number of fairly large Bootheel landowners discovered they could sell their farms at the higher prices prevailing in Missouri, then go to Mississippi or Louisiana and buy as much as twice the acreage of excellent farm land for the same money.

In addition, with the land there selling at lower prices, taxes were lower, and they could gain as much as 30 days in the growing season as compared with that in Missouri, giving more assurance for making a crop and also producing greater yields at less cost. As one Bootheel farmer and gin operator stated, "While we're paying $6 a day for field labor here, they are paying from $3.50 to $4 down there."

A member of a Hayti family which moved to Louisiana, in town on a visit, said that another money-making deal there was buying woods land, then removing the trees which are sold to pulp mills. After that the land is cleared for farming with heave equipment--then you're in business to farm or sell the improved land at a substantial profit. Others raise cattle and soybeans which, according to our reports, are quite profitable operations. One Hayti area farmer sold out his Pemiscot county land, went to Mississippi two years ago, taking on a 1000-acre tract which he developed. We are told that he has had an offer for it that would give him a $100,000 profit.

In most cases, however, it was a matter of getting in on a good thing at the right time. Since then the prices of farmland in Mississippi have climbed until it has reached the point where other Bootheel farmers considering moving down there say they haven't been able to find any bargains. The gap between Missouri and Mississippi land prices appears to have closed up rather rapidly, mainly because of the growing number of Missouri farmers and others going down there and buying in.

There are various explanations of why farmland prices in Mississippi were so low a few years ago compared with prices in the Bootheel. Landowners there saw the old traditional South caving in around them with the new civil rights movement and they wanted to sell out and get out. Large plantations, owned by the same family for many years, were broken up and sold, the new generations apparently showing little interest in continuing to own and operate them.

BABYSITTING

When a teen-ager babysits, she not only has a responsibility to the family for whom she is sitting but she has a responsibility to herself.

Here are a few hints you might follow if you plan to babysit in the near future.

First, if you receive a call to babysit from someone you do not know, always take their name, phone number, and address. Ask them for the name of the person who referred you to them. Then tell the person you will have to call them back to confirm the date.

You should then check the phone number and address in your phone book and call the family who referred you to them. This serves as a check for you and helps this family to realize that you take your job seriously.

Whenever you babysit, you should always leave the phone number, name and address of the family you are babysitting with, with your family so that they can contact you if they need to do so.

Here's another hint, if this is the first time you have sat for a family and if the children do not know you, it is always a good idea to have a get acquainted time for both you and the children. This may be done by arranging to visit with the family the day before or to arrive about thirty minutes before the parents are to leave. It is always harder for children to be left with strangers than friends.

Whenever you babysit, there is a list of information you should have to be a well informed babysitter. Be sure to find out where the parents will be and the phone number by which they can be reached.

Another good number to know is the fire station, police station, or sheriff. It is a good idea to have the number of the next door neighbor, grandparents or close relatives and the family doctor.

An up-to-date babysitter will know the favorite name the family calls the child. She will know if there is a family pet and know its name. She should know if the child has a favorite toy, record, or story. A wise babysitter is always prepared with a story, game or song with which to entertain the child.

Other questions you might to be the answer to are: Does the child sleep with the lights on? What windows, if any, the parents leave open? Time for bed? How much T.V.? Or any medicine the child may need to take?

All these things take a little extra time and trouble to find out, but the results are worth the trouble.

Remember the University of Missouri Extension Centers of your county will be conducting "Babysitting" Clinics in your county this year. Look for further information in this paper or contact the Extension Center in your county for more information.

New Community Program For New Madrid Co.

MOREHOUSE -- North New Madrid County Community Action Agency Council is the name chosen for the Delta Area Economic Opportunity program, held at Morehouse last night at the school cafeteria.

W. A. Graves, assistant director, Portageville, was in charge of the meeting, at which time officers, county board members and advisory committee members were chosen.

Herbert Bird, Matthews, was elected president; Ivan McNew, Morehouse, vice-president; Mrs. David Croom, Canalou, secretary.

Named to the county board were, Charles Menees and Mrs. Barbara Lawrence, both of Morehouse, and Lonnie Lawson, Canalou.

Chosen for the advisory committee are, Sue Nimmo and Bill Westerfield, both of Morehouse, Charles Ralph, Canalou; Mrs. John Calvin, Fairview, and Randolph Kem, Matthews.

The first order of business following the election of officers and committees, was the naming of the new organization, followed by the sending of application blanks to secure aides. Those filing applications should return them to the secretary, Mrs. Croom, no later than June 23.

The next meeting will be held in the Morehouse city hall next Thursday night.

Lilbourn Starts Summer School

LILBOURN -- In keeping with the government's stepped-up program for better education for boys and girls, Supt. Max Timmons of the Lilbourn R-1 school district has two summer school programs in operation. Both programs got underway Monday June 13.

The preschool Head Start program has enrolled 72 youngsters to date, and afew more are expected to enroll.

Head Start seeks to prepare children, who will be six years of age by Oct. 1, for a "quick take off" when they enter the regular classes at the beginning of the regular school term this fall. It provides reading readiness, health examinations, dental care, and immunizations for all children eligible to enter school in September.

Teachers working in this program were required to take a one week orientation course at the University of Missouri to qualify. They are -- H. B. Mitchell, director; Ruby Tope, Aliene Mitchell, Claudette Scott, Dorothy Wade, Ellenora Giddens, Susie Noe, Bennie Holyfield, and J. D. Washington, a visiting teacher. Mrs. Juanita Newton, a registered nurse, is also assisting.

Mothers of children in Head Start employed as teacher-aids are Mrs. W. C. Stanley, Mrs. Meford Gremore, Mrs. Elethra Small, Mrs. Lucy Baehr, Mrs. Annie Conner, Mrs. George Smith, and Mrs. Ilene Wade. These aids will serve for the first four weeks and then another group of mothers will assist.

In addition to the Head Start program, the school is conducting a program in-remedial reading and arithmetic. This program has a total enrollment of 166 pupils who are deficient in the regular school work. Like Head Start, this program will continue for eight weeks.

Teachers in the remedial program are Imogene Calbert, Lessie Snelling, Mrs. J. D. Washington, Sophia Taylor, Doris Clay, Marcella Carrol, Jane Nunn, Shelby Hurley, Gayttye Sutherland, and Curtis Cross.

These teachers are provided aids, who are college students training to become teachers. They are Carole Cooper, Mary Farmer, Barbara Wolf, Gale Timmons, Pat Hayes, Linda Tinsley, Barbara Robinson, Joyce Gremore, Linda Coffee and Mrs. Loretta Moore.

Other employees in the programs are cafeteria workers, bus drivers, and a secretary.

SILAGE WEIGHT TEST PROVES GEHL CHOP-ALL CHOPS BEST
SHORT CUT SILAGE SAVES UP TO 28% STORAGE SPACE

There's more to fine chopping than meets the eye. The real proving ground of a short cut is in your silo. Short cut silage distributes better, packs better, unloads better . . . makes better feed.

To prove that the Gehl Chop-All cuts finer than any other chopper, silage from a Gehl and 11 competitive choppers was weighed and compared during the forage harvester field demonstrations at a recent Farm Progress Show. The method of handling and weighing each sample of silage was identical.

The Gehl-chopped silage outweighed all other samples, even though the volume of each was the same. The chart above shows what this means to you. You can actually put up to 55 tons (28%) more Gehl-chopped silage in a 16' x 50' silo (based on 50 lbs. per cubic foot of Gehl-chopped silage.) A real saving in storage space and costs! The reason? Gehl's short cut silage packs better!

Here's why the Chop-All cuts best: Six chrome-edged knives, on an unbreakable flywheel, cut forage from inside to outside (just like scissors) against a tungsten carbide cutter bar. Three power-driven compression rollers flatten the crop and hold it tight while the knives cut true, even and short. Two heavy-duty bearings hold the chopping flywheel rigidly in place for an unvarying short cut.

Here's News! Gehl's Select-A-Cut Transmission enables you to select short, medium or long forage length with the push of a lever. Another quality feature of the Chop-All.

THE MISSOURI Public Service Commission will accelerate its program of investigation into illegal water and sewer operations in Missouri.

"Unauthorized water and sewer utility operations are costing Missourians needless money and inconvenience," PSC Chairman William R. Clark said.

Below Normal Temperatures Anticipated

The tendency for cool weather which slowed crop development early in the season remains in the weather outlook. The 30 day period ending in mid-July is expected to bring below normal temperatures and near normal rainfall to the Missouri Bootheel.

Drying periods between rains during the past few weeks have kept a good balance between adequate sub-soil moisture and soils firm enough to support heavy equipment. There are still a few areas troubled by excess water but field work is in progress in most sections of the Bootheel.

Rains during the period from mid-June to mid-July will come generally in showers and thundershowers preceding cold fronts. These may be expected on 8 to 10 days with good drying conditions between shower periods.

Normal rainfall for the Bootheel division as a whole is 3.59 inches from mid-June to mid-July. Normals for specific cities are:

Caruthersville, 3.46 inches; Fisk, 3.81 inches; New Madrid, 3.89 inches; Poplar Bluff, 3.75 inches; Dexter, 3.79 inches; Morehouse, 3.53 inches; Parma, 3.76 inches; Sikeston, 3.64 inches.

Short term averages for other Bootheel cities are:

Charleston, 3.56 inches; Kennett, 3.49 inches; Portageville, 3.45 inches; Malden, 3.34 inches.

High pressure systems moving inland from the Pacific Northwest will provide periodic cooling and shower periods as they push into the upper Great Plains and Mississippi Valley. High pressure in the southwest will promote shorter periods of warming than are normally encountered at this time of year. Consequently, relative humidity will not be as persistantly high as in most seasons. Usually temperatures rise above 90 degrees on more than half the days during this period. 100 degree heat is not common this early in the year. Cooler than normal days and nights will tend to slow crop development.

A number of dry days will be available for application of chemical controls. Forecasts should be watched in order to avoid brisk winds associated with cool outbreaks. Best time for spraying will usually be the second day after a front passes and high pressure settles over the region.

Water loss due to evaporation and plant use normally runs near 3 inches greater than precipitation from mid - June through mid-July. Cooler temperatures will reduce water loss a bit but some crops, particularly on lighter soils, may need irrigation. Weather early in the season should be generally favorable for completion of wheat harvest and bean planting. Cotton should be watched for possible problems with aphids. Consult your County Director for advice on the need for treatment.

Farmers should check 5-Day Outlooks released three times each week as guides to open weather for haying. Maximum temperature forecasts may help potato growers to schedule harvesting on days least likely to cause heat damage.

FDA Cracks Down On Diet Labels

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government announced new regulations today which affect the labeling or content, or both, of most special diet foods and diet supplements.

Dr. James L. Goddard, commissioner of food and drugs, told a news conference the regulations are designed to become effective 180 days after publication in the Federal Register Saturday.

The Food and Drug Administration said the revised regulations are aimed at providing the consumer with more facts about the food he buys for weight control, for dietary supplementation with vitamins and minerals, and for other special diet needs such as controlling salt intake.

A major change from current procedure is adoption of Recommended Dietary Allowances as a guide to meeting nutritional needs. These allowances, based upon findings of the National Academy of Sciences, replace what Goddard described as FDA's outmoded 25-year-old concept of "minimum daily requirements."

The new regulations will:

Restrict "low calorie" labeling to foods that contain 15 or fewer calories per serving.

Limit "reduced in calorie" claims to products which contain at least 50 per cent fewer calories than their ordinary counterparts.

Establish eight classes of foods which may be "fortified" with vitamins and minerals. These include breakfast cereals and iodized salt.

Stipulate which nutritional elements, and the amounts of each, that may be used in "fortified" foods.

Prohibit extravagant promotion of "shotgun" multivitamins and mineral supplements containing nutrients that meet no dietary need and tend to deceive the consumer.

Below Normal Temperatures Anticipated

The tendency for cool weather which slowed crop development early in the season remains in the weather outlook. The 30 day period ending in mid-July is expected to bring below normal temperatures and near normal rainfall to the Missouri Bootheel.

Drying periods between rains during the past few weeks have kept a good balance between adequate sub-soil moisture and soils firm enough to support heavy equipment. There are still a few areas troubled by excess water but field work is in progress in most sections of the Bootheel.

Rains during the period from mid-June to mid-July will come generally in showers and thundershowers preceding cold fronts. These may be expected on 8 to 10 days with good drying conditions between shower periods.

Normal rainfall for the Bootheel division as a whole is 3.59 inches from mid-June to mid-July. Normals for specific cities are:

Caruthersville, 3.46 inches; Fisk, 3.81 inches; New Madrid, 3.89 inches; Poplar Bluff, 3.75 inches; Dexter, 3.79 inches; Morehouse, 3.53 inches; Parma, 3.76 inches; Sikeston, 3.64 inches.

Short term averages for other Bootheel cities are:

Charleston, 3.56 inches; Kennett, 3.49 inches; Portageville, 3.45 inches; Malden, 3.34 inches.

High pressure systems moving inland from the Pacific Northwest will provide periodic cooling and shower periods as they push into the upper Great Plains and Mississippi Valley. High pressure in the southwest will promote shorter periods of warming than are normally encountered at this time of year. Consequently, relative humidity will not be as persistantly high as in most seasons. Usually temperatures rise above 90 degrees on more than half the days during this period. 100 degree heat is not common this early in the year. Cooler than normal days and nights will tend to slow crop development.

A number of dry days will be available for application of chemical controls. Forecasts should be watched in order to avoid brisk winds associated with cool outbreaks. Best time for spraying will usually be the second day after a front passes and high pressure settles over the region.

Water loss due to evaporation and plant use normally runs near 3 inches greater than precipitation from mid - June through mid-July. Cooler temperatures will reduce water loss a bit but some crops, particularly on lighter soils, may need irrigation. Weather early in the season should be generally favorable for completion of wheat harvest and bean planting. Cotton should be watched for possible problems with aphids. Consult your County Director for advice on the need for treatment.

Farmers should check 5-Day Outlooks released three times each week as guides to open weather for haying. Maximum temperature forecasts may help potato growers to schedule harvesting on days least likely to cause heat damage.

PUBLIC NOTICES

Required by law to inform citizens of matters affecting them or their property.

Sealed proposals for the construction of two additional classrooms to the Math - Science Building, Senior High School, Sikeston, Missouri Scott County Reorganized School District R-6, will be received at the office of the Board of Education Sikeston, Missouri until 4:00 p.m. DST, Wednesday, June 29th, 1966 at which time bids will be opened publicly.

Plans and specifications for the project may be inspected and information concerning the securing thereof and the deposit therefor, the work to be done thereunder, the manner of payment therefor, the conditions of bidding, the required bid security, and the contract documents, may be obtained, together with the printed form on which BIDS MUST BE MADE, at the office of Buchmueller, Whitworth & Associates, Architects and Engineers, 412 Tanner Street, Sikeston, Missouri

Attention is called to the fact that the rates of pay for labor and mechanics engaged in the construction of the project will not be less than the prevailing local wage rates for similar work as determined by the Industrial Commission of Missouri.

The Board of Education reserves the right to waive any informalities and to reject any or all bids.

Charles D. Matthews,
Secretary,
Board of Education
Scott County School
District R-6

FDA Cracks Down On Diet Labels

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government announced new regulations today which affect the labeling or content, or both, of most special diet foods and diet supplements.

Dr. James L. Goddard, commissioner of food and drugs, told a news conference the regulations are designed to become effective 180 days after publication in the Federal Register Saturday.

The Food and Drug Administration said the revised regulations are aimed at providing the consumer with more facts about the food he buys for weight control, for dietary supplementation with vitamins and minerals, and for other special diet needs such as controlling salt intake.

A major change from current procedure is adoption of Recommended Dietary Allowances as a guide to meeting nutritional needs. These allowances, based upon findings of the National Academy of Sciences, replace what Goddard described as FDA's outmoded 25-year-old concept of "minimum daily requirements."

The new regulations will:

Restrict "low calorie" labeling to foods that contain 15 or fewer calories per serving.

Limit "reduced in calorie" claims to products which contain at least 50 per cent fewer calories than their ordinary counterparts.

Establish eight classes of foods which may be "fortified" with vitamins and minerals. These include breakfast cereals and iodized salt.

Stipulate which nutritional elements, and the amounts of each, that may be used in "fortified" foods.

Prohibit extravagant promotion of "shotgun" multivitamins and mineral supplements containing nutrients that meet no dietary need and tend to deceive the consumer.

Erpelding Named To Honors

ROLLA, Mo. -- William J. Erpelding, 515 Clayton, Sikeston, has been named to the Student Council Second Honors List at the University of Missouri at Rolla.

This award is presented to each student who has maintained a 2.75 to 2.99 average each semester for four semesters completed at the University of Missouri at Rolla, with no failures.

THE PRAYER
For Today From The Upper Room

SATURDAY, JUNE 18, 1966

"Do not be anxious about tomorrow, for tomorrow will be anxious for itself. Let the day's own trouble be sufficient for the day." (Matthew 6:34 RSV)

PRAYER: Our Father, may our faith in Thy goodness and mercy be deep in our souls and the desires of our hearts be in keeping with Thy will. Grant us, as children of Thine, that we may be led by Thee in our daily lives. For the Savior's sake. Amen.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter is 14 and driving me out of my mind because of her obsession with what she considers up-to-the-minute style.

I have gone along with Lois up to now because I haven't wanted her to feel different from the rest of the girls in her crowd. But things have gotten out of hand. The girl is getting herself up to look like a comic. I feel I must draw the line somewhere -- but WHERE?

Lois has hemmed up all her dresses so that they hit her about four inches above the knees. She wants everything right around the hips and the louder the colors and patterns the better.

She goes around both day and night wearing sunglasses as large as coffee cups. Her hair (which she irons on a board) hangs in her eyes and looks ghastly. I am happy that she is allergic to eye make-up and cannot wear it. For several months last winter she looked like a raccoon.

My husband and I have had some serious talks about what to do but we just don't know where to draw the line. Will you please print this letter not only for us but for other parents who must be equally baffled? -- ADRIFT WITHOUT ANSWERS

Dear Adrift: Styles do change - and they will continue to change because it's good for morale and good for business. But some of the stuff I've seen lately -- not only on teen-agers, but on their mothers -- may be considered fashionable, but it strikes me as positively indecent.

The op look and the pop look and the ironed hair and the kooky glasses -- o.k., if a girl keeps herself clean. But those skin- tight, thigh-high skirts are vulgar. There's nothing left for a girl to do to attract attention except to set her hair on fire.

Parents not only have the right but they have an obligation to say, "This far -- and NO further!" There comes a point at which respectability must take precedence over "trend" -- and, so help me, over "what everybody else in the crowd is doing." When you feel that your teen-ager is getting too far out, step in and lower the boom.

Dear Ann Landers: I was 18 when I fell madly in love with a married man. I waited for him three years, until he could get a divorce.

We have been married 14 months and have a son who is six weeks old. The baby is sickly and cries a lot. My husband says his other children never cried at night and he doesn't see why this one has to. According to him it is my fault.

He criticizes my housekeeping and says his first wife was wonderful that way and he isn't accustomed to anything else. He knew I hated housework before I married him but he said it didn't make any difference.

Last night he made a mean remark about my figure and it really hurt. I explained that it takes a woman about three months to get her shape back after a baby. He said his ex-wife got her shape back in three weeks on four different occasions.

I'm very unhappy and afraid he is, too. What happened to the most exciting love affair in history? -- NO NAME

Dear No: It was legalized.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents. . . if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged by Parents? How To Get More Freedom." Send 50¢ in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

THE STATE IS THE CAMPUS

Scott and Mississippi Counties Youth Agent

SCOTT AND MISSISSIPPI COUNTY 4-H CAMP

Plans are nearly complete for the Scott and Mississippi County 4-H Camp at Lake Wappapello. The camp is planned for Wednesday, July 6, to Friday, July 8.

The planned camp program includes some of the usual camp activities such as swimming, canoeing, and basket weaving. Some of the new features o this year's camp will be a program sponsored by a local electric cooperative on lighting using several demonstrations. Also included in the program will be a session on "Hidden Benefits of Wildlife" presented by the Missouri Conservation Commission. Other activities planned include archery and rifle instructions by qualified instructors.

Both evenings at camp will be filled with flag lowering, vespers, group singing, and other group activities and recreation.

All 4-H'ers attending this camp will need a doctor's statement that they are physically fit, and a health form filled out and signed by their parents to be turned in to the Extension Center by June 20. The camp fee will be due in the Extension Center, June 27.

Anyone having questions is asked to call the University Extension Center in Benton or Charleston.

GRAVEL HILL 4-H'ERS TO HOST HORSE SHOW

The Gravel Hill Rough Riders 4-H Club will host a horse show Saturday, June 18, beginning at 7:30 (daylight savings time). The horse show will take place at the Rough Rider's Horse Show Arena located on Route D, two miles east of Route UU.

All 4-H'ers will be admitted free upon presentation of their 4-H membership card.

Extension Center News

Last week in this column we encouraged farmers who applied nitrogen preplant or very early in the growing season to consider adding additional nitrogen. The reason for this recommendation is the loss of nitrogen due to excessive rainfall.

Several farmers have asked exactly how nitrogen is lost from the soil and John Garret, Area Soils Agent, sums it up this way.

Nitrogen is removed from the soil in three main ways: 1. Crop removal, 2. leaching, and 3. denitrification. The ideal way would be for it all to be removed by the growing crop. However, this is seldom if ever the case. Under ideal conditions, the amount removed by first year crop is about 65 to 70 percent of total applied.

Leaching is the downward movement of nitrogen through the soil profile. This nitrogen often moves below the root zone so it becomes unavailable. Leaching is more severe on sandy to very fine sandy soils than loam or clay soils. This is the main reason fall or winter application of nitrogen is discouraged on sandy soils.

Denitrification is the loss of nitrogen as a gas into the atmosphere. When soils get saturated or waterlogged, bacteria present in the soil will use oxygen from the nitrate fertilizer for survival. This leaves the nitrogen free to escape as a gas.

Denitrification is the most severe on heavy clay soils that have poor internal drainage. Often times, more nitrogen is lost by this method than by leaching on sandy soils. To give you a little idea of how serious it can be, the following research from Mississippi is cited.

On heavy clay soil, they applied 120 pounds of nitrogen and kept the soil waterlogged for periods of 10 and 20 days. Over a four year period the soil lost an average of 63 pounds of nitrogen after ten days and 92 pounds after 20 days. In other words, from 50 to 75 per cent of the 120 pounds applied was lost each year. Many farmers applied all of their nitrogen preplant in March or early April. Some applied as much as 200 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre. We have had ideal conditions for leaching and denitrification since the nitrogen was applied. April was an extremely wet month with some areas receiving as much as 20 inches of rain. Corn was replanted on many farms but nitrogen was not reapplied. Some fields still have less than desirable stands, but it is too late to do anything about that. Well, what can be done about the nitrogen problem? First, inventory your present situation. Did you apply your nitrogen preplant or sidedress most of it? If it was sidedressed since corn has come up, you are probably okay. If your corn on a soil subject to severe leaching and denitrification? Does the corn have a yellow color instead of a dark green? Yellow corn usually means nitrogen deficiency. Do you have enough plants left to justify additional nitrogen? If the answer is "yes" to most of the above you need to sidedress extra nitrogen as soon as possible.

Springfield Guard Unit Again No. 1

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. AP -- The 1107th Transportation Company of the 142nd Transportation Battalion will again receive the Eisenhower trophy for excellence in administration, training, strength and attendance.

This is the second time in three years that the Springfield National Guard unit has won the state's highest award for the most outstanding unit of company size.

The trophy will be formally presented next Thursday to Capt. James Eubanks, company commander.

CREATE COOL COMFORT WITH SIMPLE DECORATING TRICKS

Creating a cool, summertime atmosphere in a room is a surprisingly simple way to beat the heat -- at little expense and practically no effort. Just see what you can accomplish in the living room with a stack of pretty bath towels, for instance: Convert the towels into summer slipcovers -- using the big bath sheets or beach towels in a cool color such as aqua or lemon yellow, or some pastel that fits into the general decorative scheme. Or choose bold multicolor stripes just for fun.

These temporary slipcovers can be fitted to sofa and chairs by stretching the towels smoothly on back, arms, and seat or cushion, then anchoring them with short hatpins. Mitre the corners of each towel by folding them square, the way a hospital bed is made, so they will look trim. These covers can be removed easily and put into the washer often.

Heavy drapers at the windows add nothing to summer comfort, so replace them with hand-sized terry cloth towels -- gay little pieces that can be clipped onto a curtain rod a la cafe curtains, using the decorative clips especially designed for just such a purpose. These can serve as shades as well as window dressing. Nothing washes as quickly and easily as terry, and not a stroke of the iron needed.

Little finger-tip towels are perfect for upholstered chair which you don't want to cover entirely. Besides being colorful, they protect fabrics from soil. Pin them to the backs of chairs and sofa, and to the arms where soil collects.

Big cotton kerchiefs, such as the traditional bandanna, make gay trimmings for small windows in kitchen or bathroom. If you don't want the trouble of installing permanent curtain rods, make use of the easy-up telescope-type rods that fit inside the window frame. These have a spring action, plus suction cups at both ends, that allow them to fit snugly into any space and to be removed any time with a twist of the wrist.

The less cluttered a room, the cooler it seems. Heavy pieces of furniture are best put in storage for the hot months, and a piece or two of lightweight summer furniture substituted. Wrought iron pieces upholstered in easy-to-suds - off woven plastic are good choices because the woven plastic "breathes" just like fabric and provides the same summertime comfort.

Since the easiest housekeeping in hot weather is the kind you can do with a speedy suds-and-water going-over, why burden yourself with thick rugs? After all, nothing is cooler than a bare floor which is freshly swabbed.

Caruthersville Gets $73,500 Grant for Industrial Park Road

WASHINGTON AP -- A $73,500 grant to help Caruthersvill, Mo., build a four-lane access road to an industrial park was announced today by the Department of Commerce.

The money, from the Economic Development Administration, will be matched by the city, making the total available for the project $147,000.

The city said that four firms in the industrial park plan expansions when the access road is completed, adding about 400 new jobs.

SCOTT AND MISSISSIPPI COUNTY 4-H CAMP

Plans are nearly complete for the Scott and Mississippi County 4-H Camp at Lake Wappapello. The camp is planned for Wednesday, July 6, to Friday, July 8.

The planned camp program includes some of the usual camp activities such as swimming, canoeing, and basket weaving. Some of the new features o this year's camp will be a program sponsored by a local electric cooperative on lighting using several demonstrations. Also included in the program will be a session on "Hidden Benefits of Wildlife" presented by the Missouri Conservation Commission. Other activities planned include archery and rifle instructions by qualified instructors.

Both evenings at camp will be filled with flag lowering, vespers, group singing, and other group activities and recreation.

All 4-H'ers attending this camp will need a doctor's statement that they are physically fit, and a health form filled out and signed by their parents to be turned in to the Extension Center by June 20. The camp fee will be due in the Extension Center, June 27.

Anyone having questions is asked to call the University Extension Center in Benton or Charleston.

GRAVEL HILL 4-H'ERS TO HOST HORSE SHOW

The Gravel Hill Rough Riders 4-H Club will host a horse show Saturday, June 18, beginning at 7:30 (daylight savings time). The horse show will take place at the Rough Rider's Horse Show Arena located on Route D, two miles east of Route UU.

All 4-H'ers will be admitted free upon presentation of their 4-H membership card.

Extension Center News

Last week in this column we encouraged farmers who applied nitrogen preplant or very early in the growing season to consider adding additional nitrogen. The reason for this recommendation is the loss of nitrogen due to excessive rainfall.

Several farmers have asked exactly how nitrogen is lost from the soil and John Garret, Area Soils Agent, sums it up this way.

Nitrogen is removed from the soil in three main ways; 1. Crop removal, 2. leaching, and 3. denitrification. The ideal way would be for it all to be removed by the growing crop. However, this is seldom if ever the case. Under ideal conditions, the amount removed by first year crop is about 65 to 70 percent of total applied.

Leaching is the downward movement of nitrogen through the soil profile. This nitrogen often moves below the root zone so it becomes unavailable. Leaching is more severe on sandy to very fine sandy soils than loam or clay soils. This is the main reason fall or winter application of nitrogen is discouraged on sandy soils.

Denitrification is the loss of nitrogen as a gas into the atmosphere. When soils get saturated or waterlogged, bacteria present in the soil will use oxygen from the nitrate fertilizer for survival. This leaves the nitrogen free to escape as a gas.

Denitrification is the most severe on heavy clay soils that have poor internal drainage. Often times, more nitrogen is lost by this method than by leaching on sandy soils. To give you a little idea of how serious it can be, the following research from Mississippi is cited.

On heavy clay soil, they applied 120 pounds of nitrogen and kept the soil waterlogged for periods of 10 and 20 days. Over a four year period the soil lost an average of 63 pounds of nitrogen after ten days and 92 pounds after 20 days. In other words, from 50 to 75 per cent of the 120 pounds applied was lost each year. Many farmers applied all of their nitrogen preplant in March or early April. Some applied as much as 200 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre. We have had ideal conditions for leaching and denitrification since the nitrogen was applied. April was an extremely wet month with some areas receiving as much as 20 inches of rain. Corn was replanted on many farms but nitrogen was not reapplied. Some fields still have less than desirable stands, but it is too late to do anything about that. Well, what can be done about the nitrogen problem? First, inventory your present situation. Did you apply your nitrogen preplant or sidedress most of it? If it was sidedressed since corn has come up, you are probably okay. If your corn on a soil subject to severe leaching and denitrification? Does the corn have a yellow color instead of a dark green? Yellow corn usually means nitrogen deficiency. Do you have enough plants left to justify additional nitrogen? If the answer is "yes" to most of the above you need to sidedress extra nitrogen as soon as possible.

Springfield Guard Unit Again No. 1

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. AP -- The 1107th Transportation Company of the 142nd Transportation Battalion will again receive the Eisenhower trophy for excellence in administration, training, strength and attendance.

This is the second time in three years that the Springfield National Guard unit has won the state's highest award for the most outstanding unit of company size.

The trophy will be formally presented next Thursday to Capt. James Eubanks, company commander.

CREATE COOL COMFORT WITH SIMPLE DECORATING TRICKS

Creating a cool, summertime atmosphere in a room is a surprisingly simple way to beat the heat -- at little expense and practically no effort. Just see what you can accomplish in the living room with a stack of pretty bath towels, for instance: Convert the towels into summer slipcovers -- using the big bath sheets or beach towels in a cool color such as aqua or lemon yellow, or some pastel that fits into the general decorative scheme. Or choose bold multicolor stripes just for fun.

These temporary slipcovers can be fitted to sofa and chairs by stretching the towels smoothly on back, arms, and seat or cushion, then anchoring them with short hatpins. Mitre the corners of each towel by folding them square, the way a hospital bed is made, so they will look trim. These covers can be removed easily and put into the washer often.

Heavy drapers at the windows add nothing to summer comfort, so replace them with hand-sized terry cloth towels -- gay little pieces that can be clipped onto a curtain rod a la cafe curtains, using the decorative clips especially designed for just such a purpose. These can serve as shades as well as window dressing. Nothing washes as quickly and easily as terry, and not a stroke of the iron needed.

Little finger-tip towels are perfect for upholstered chair which you don't want to cover entirely. Besides being colorful, they protect fabrics from soil. Pin them to the backs of chairs and sofa, and to the arms where soil collects.

Big cotton kerchiefs, such as the traditional bandanna, make gay trimmings for small windows in kitchen or bathroom. If you don't want the trouble of installing permanent curtain rods, make use of the easy-up telescope-type rods that fit inside the window frame. These have a spring action, plus suction cups at both ends, that allow them to fit snugly into any space and to be removed any time with a twist of the wrist.

The less cluttered a room, the cooler it seems. Heavy pieces of furniture are best put in storage for the hot months, and a piece or two of lightweight summer furniture substituted. Wrought iron pieces upholstered in easy-to-suds - off woven plastic are good choices because the woven plastic "breathes" just like fabric and provides the same summertime comfort.

Since the easiest housekeeping in hot weather is the kind you can do with a speedy suds-and-water going-over, why burden yourself with thick rugs? After all, nothing is cooler than a bare floor which is freshly swabbed.

Today In U. S. History

Today is Saturday, June 18, the 169th day of 1966. There are 196 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1812, Congress declared war on Great Britain as a result of a long-standing controversy over arbitrary British interference with American ships on the high seas.

On this date

In 1815, Napoleon was defeated in the Battle of Waterloo.

In 1895, the Great Northern Railroad was opened for traffic.

In 1940, Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini met in Munich to draft terms for a French armistice.

In 1942, Winston Churchill arrived in the United States for a series of talks with President Franklin D. Roosevelt about the war.

In 1946, President Harry S. Triman, authorized improvements in medical care for veterans.

Ten years ago -- Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov, during a visit to Egypt, offered Egyptian President Nasser a Soviet loan for almost the entire amount of money needed for the proposed Aswan High Dam on the Nile River.

Five years ago--A Strasbourg-to-Paris express train derailed and 24 passengers were killed and more than 100 others injured.

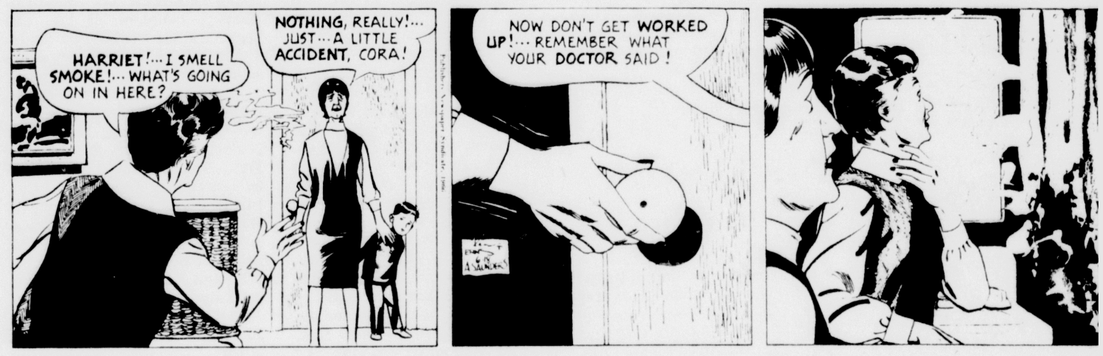

One year ago—An Air Force Titan 3 rocket—the most powerful booster at that time—was launched from Cape Kennedy, Fla. It successfully put into orbit both its 8,300-pound final stage and a record 21,000-pound dummy payload.

Lesczynski Added To 'Ten Most Wanted'

Walter Leonard Lesczynski, a convicted bank robber who fled from an Illinois hospital while awaiting removal of one of seven police bullets that struck him while he fled from a $25,000 amusement park holdup, has been added to the FBI's list of "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives."

He is currently charged with an April, 1965, bank robbery in Calumet City, Illinois, and has reportedly vowed not to return to prison and be prepared to shoot it out with any law enforcement officer attempting to arrest him.

Lesczynski allegedly robbed the First Calumet City Savings and Loan Association, 555 Burnham Avenue, Calumet City, Illinois, of $5,988 at the point of a shiny, snub-nosed revolver on the morning of April 5, 1965, fleeing with the loot stuffed in his pockets.

On August 29, 1965, Lesczynski was shot at least seven times while trying to flee from some 40 police officers after allegedly participating in the $25,000 holdup of a children's amusement concession at Melrose Park, Illinois. Four bullets passed completely through his body, some were removed by operations and he was confined, under guard, at the Cook County Jail Hospital awaiting removal of another slug from his upper hip joint when he escaped at 5 a.m. on the morning of December 17, 1965.

On the same day as the escape, a Federal warrnat charging him with the Calumet City bank robbery was issued at Chicago, Illinois.

Lesczynski's first criminal conviction occurered in March, 1953, when he was sentenced to one year in the Cook County Jail on a charge of petty larceny and burglary. He was released in February, 1954.

Less than a year later he was charged with armed robbery and upon conviction in January, 1955, he was sentenced to serve from seven to fifteen years in the Illinois State Penitentiary at Joliet. He was paroled in December, 1959.

A little more than one year later, he was arrested at Chicago on numerous armed robbery charges and the following day was charged by the FBI with two Chicago bank robberies, one occurring in October, 1960, and the other in December, 1960. He and an accomplice took $5,494 in the first holdup and $18,274 in the second. Pleading guilty to both offenses, Lesczynski was sentenced to two concurrent five-year terms to run concurrently with any sentence received from local authorities for the local armed robberies. He was returned to the Illinois State Penitentiary at Joliet where he remained until November 25, 1964, when he was again paroled. Less than five months later he allegedly committed the Calumet City bank robbery for which he is currently being sought.

Lesczynski is a white American, who was born at Chicago, Illinois, on May 12, 1930. He is 5' 11" to 6' tall, weighs 175 to 185 pounds, has a fair complexion, medium build, hazel eyes and dark brown hair that is receding. He has scars on palm and heel of his right hand plus bullet hole scars on both hands, both legs, his right shoulder and above his left hip. He also has operation scars on his lower abdomen and the right side of his chest. Tattooed on his upper right arm is "SSN 352-22-2845." He reportedly has false dentures and occasionally wears black, horn-rimmed glasses. He has worked in the past as a machinist and machine operator but is said to be a good typist and to prefer clerical work.

He is said to be above average in intelligence, enjoys expensive clothes, food and lodging when finances permit, maintains an extremely neat and well - groomed appearance, drinks coffee avidly and likes to frequent night clubs although he drinks lightly, usually consuming only one or two drinks. Lesczynski reportedly enjoys participating in various sports, being particularly fond of swimming and handball.

Lesczynski should be considered armed and extremely dangerous. Anyone with information concerning the whereabouts of this fugitive should immediately contact the nearest office of the FBI, the telephone number of which may be found on the first page of local telephone directories.

Lesczynski Added To 'Ten Most Wanted'

Walter Leonard Lesczynski, a convicted bank robber who fled from an Illinois hospital while awaiting removal of one of seven police bullets that struck him while he fled from a $25,000 amusement park holdup, has been added to the FBI's list of "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives."

He is currently charged with an April, 1965, bank robbery in Calumet City, Illinois, and has reportedly vowed not to return to prison and be prepared to shoot it out with any law enforcement officer attempting to arrest him.

Lesczynski allegedly robbed the First Calumet City Savings and Loan Association, 555 Burnham Avenue, Calumet City, Illinois, of $5,988 at the point of a shiny, snub-nosed revolver on the morning of April 5, 1965, fleeing with the loot stuffed in his pockets.

BUFFALO, N.Y. AP -- Ralph A. Miller, 71, of Providence, R. I., has pleaded guilty to drunkenness and other charges after, police said, he was arrested while "driving his wheelchair down the middle of Main Street."

Police said cars swerved to avoid hitting Miller or his wheelchair before he was arrested Thursday night on charges of being drunk, disorderly, and resisting a policeman.

Judge Ann T. Mikoll Friday ordered Miller to a hospital for an examination.

The Providence man, a disabled veteran whose legs are amputated, said he was on a bus stopover while en route to Detroit.

HARVEST WORLD'S TOUGHEST CROP WITH 'BEST OF EVERYTHING' IH COMBINES

Because all crops qualify as "the world's toughest" to the farmer harvesting that particular crop, a combine that'll handle any crop to maximum efficiency must have "the best of everything!" IH combines do. Judge for yourself.

- IH exclusive deep-ledge platform puts cutterbar 4 to 6 inches further ahead of the auger than other combines, gives you superior reel control.
- IH exclusive fin and wire racks are almost plug-free in any crop. You operate at faster ground speeds and still save all the grain.
- IH exclusive full-width threshing uses entire separator width, assures cleaner threshing. (models 303, 403, 503, 402)
